No. 17—114th YEAR — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1971 — 10 CENTS DAILY 20 CENTS SUNDAY

Saturday Brings Big Changes for Most

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — New Year's Day 1972 is not just a holiday, as the nation's wage-earners, taxpayers and patronizers of the mails will soon discover.

It is the official launching date for tax reform, a new unemployment insurance scheme and increased mail rates.

Effective Saturday:

● The massive tax reform bill, passed by Parliament last week, goes into effect. The new tax rates and rules will affect every individual taxpayer and every Canadian business.

● The federal government's new unemployment insurance scheme goes into operation. Benefits will be increased and coverage made universal. An estimated 1,200,000 will start paying unemployment insurance premiums for the first time.

● The rate for a first-class letter mailed in Canada will be eight cents instead of the present seven cents.

Whether this New Year's financial package is received as a boon or a bane will depend upon individual philosophy as well as income.

Under the new tax bill, all married wage-earners will pay less income tax in 1972. Another 750,000 taxpayers will be eliminated from tax rolls altogether by virtue of new increased personal deductions.

Single wage-earners who earn more than $8,000 a year will, however, pay more tax in 1972 because of the new rates.

Under the tax bill, federal gift and estate taxes will be abolished and a capital gains tax will be imposed for the first time. The government has yet to declare a valuation day for capital gains purposes. This will be done retroactively to prevent investor speculation.

Following are the major items in the tax bill that will affect the individual taxpayer:

● The basic individual tax exemption will be increased to $1,500 from $1,000. For married couples this exemption will be increased to $2,850 from $2,000.

● Families will be able for the first time to deduct child-care expenses. The allowable deduction will be $500 a year for each child under age 14, to a maximum of $2,000 a year per family.

● Those aged 65 or older will have special exemption increased to $650 from the present $500.

● Wage-earners will be able to deduct up to $150 a year as employment expenses without receipts; wage-earners will also, for the first time, be able to deduct expenses incurred in moving to a new job.

Gaunt Thant Departs

Retiring UN leader waves farewell — AP

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A gaunt, tired U Thant said goodbye to his UN associates Thursday as he ended 10 tumultuous years as secretary-general.

Some were reported near tears during the day-long round of farewells, but the 62-year-old former Burmese schoolmaster said his own feeling was one of relief.

For the United Nations, it was the end of an era. Thant had served as chief of the UN secretariat since Nov. 3, 1961, longer than either of his predecessors, Trygve Lie and Dag Hammarskhold.

Still showing the effects of his recent bout with a duodenal ulcer, Thant plans to take a complete rest for two months and then begin work on his autobiography.

"It will take me a year to write it," he said.

Thant plans to stay on at the UN-rented residence in the Riverdale section of New York for two months at least, paying the rent himself after Jan. 1.

He has received offers from several universities and foundations but has not made up his mind what he will do after finishing his autobiography.

Thant began his final day by arriving at UN headquarters at 9:45 a.m. in his official chauffeur-driven limousine. Asked whether he was happy to be leaving his post, he evaded a direct reply, saying: "I have a great feeling of relief."

Most of his schedule was reserved for a series of individual farewell meetings with senior UN officials. Other events, however, included a luncheon in honor of the departing Romanian ambassador, Gheorghe Diaconescu, and a farewell party given by Thant's staff.

Thant's successor, Kurt Waldheim of Austria, is in Florida for a brief rest before taking over Monday.

Today is technically Thant's last day in office, but it is a UN holiday.

Pullout Ultimatum Ignored

Malta Seeks Allies In Tiff with U.K.

Mintoff: Soviet treaty

From AP, UPI

While Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath rejected Malta's "pay-up-or-get-out" ultimatum Thursday, the island's Prime Minister Dom Mintoff flew to Tripoli where he opened talks with Libyan leaders in an effort to find support.

Mintoff has demanded an immediate $11 million from Britain for base facilites on the island or the withdrawal of all British forces and their dependents from within Malta's six mile limit by Saturday.

Following Heath's personal rejection of the ultimatum, the 3,500-man British garrison was preparing to leave.

Tripoli radio said that Mintoff had met for three hours with Libyan leader Col. Muammar Kadafi but did not give details.

In London, Heath's government said it is ready to resume talks if Mintoff backs down. Defence secretary Lord Carrington, in a radio interview, said that British withdrawal would take about three months. He hoped that Mintoff would "not suggest or propose any harrassment" of withdrawing British forces but if there was any trouble "we would look after ourselves."

Carrington added that "although negotiations have been very difficult, I am ready to fly out for more talks if Mr. Mintoff changes his mind."

There is still concern in London that Mintoff may one day turn some Malta base facilities over to the Soviet Union which could use them to rival the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The ultimatum stems from Malta's financial problems — on Christmas Day, Mintoff told his people that its foreign debts have reached a total of $104 million which he described as "frightening" for an island population of only 322,000 people.

Earlier this week Mintoff signed a trade and friendship treaty with Russia, but without any known promises of help.

British officials estimate that withdrawal of British forces would mean a loss to Malta of about $33.8 million, spent annually by personnel and their families.

They also thought that it would add about 7,500 to Malta's present 6,000 jobless out of a total work force of 100,000.

The "rent" demanded by Mintoff is in addition to a one-time cash payment of $12.35 million already paid by Britain for six months starting Sept. 30.

Heaviest U.S. Raids End But Damage Tally Secret

AP, UPI

SAIGON — The United States ended its deepest, longest and heaviest U.S. air campaign against North Vietnam in more than three years Thursday after U.S. jets blasted targets for a fifth day Thursday.

The U.S. command said three planes were lost and five crew members missing. But it held up any announcement of damage to North Vietnamese air fields, radar and anti-aircraft facilities and supply depots by laser-guided bomb and other advanced weaponry.

The Viet Cong radio claimed eight U.S. planes were shot down Thursday with two airmen captured and numerous others killed. It said this brought to 19 the total number of planes downed. The U.S. command said one plane was shot down Sunday and two Thursday.

A previous North Vietnamese report said seven planes were shot down, making 14 in all. The discrepancy was not explained.

The Hanoi delegation to the Paris peace talks Thursday reiterated its government's claim that "a large number of women and children" were killed in the five days of U.S. air raids on North Vietnam.

Delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said President Nixon, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird and Secretary of State William Rogers "through multiple statements made over the past days have clearly indicated that the United States will continue its air attacks against the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam."

River Pilots Reach Accord

QUEBEC (CP) — Agreement has been reached in a dispute involving 91 St. Lawrence River pilots and they are returning to work immediately, Gaston Rousseau, a spokesman for their union, said Thursday night.

He told a news conference agreement was reached after day-long talks in Ottawa with representatives of the Lower St. Lawrence Pilots Corp., shipowners and the federal transport department.

The pilots stopped work Dec. 23 and held a study session that lasted a week. They were objecting to what they called a dangerous deep draught on some tankers and the refusal of shipowners to pay both pilots on a ship full rates.

The settlement averted what could have snowballed into a disruption of shipping across Canada by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Red Cross Can't Help Biharis

Food, Drugs Dwindle

NARAYANGANJ, Bangladesh (AP) — Food and medical supplies dwindled to desperate levels Thursday for 30,000 beleaguered Biharis inside the world's largest jute mill. The International Red Cross said it is unable to offer immediate aid.

Laurent Marti, the Red Cross mission director, told a news conference in nearby Dacca that he could not send in help without the consent of the Bangladesh government, and his statement indicated the approval had not come.

"I would not dare give you an estimate of when help will arrive," Red Cross spokesman Peter Kuhn told reporters. "But we are convinced the government is aware of their situation and will act very soon."

The controversy about the plight of the Bihari minority — 2 million people in the predominantly Bengali nation of 75 million — brought an angry response Thursday night from the Bangladesh government.

A statement issued by Education Minister Yusuf Ali said allegations that minorities are being harassed and deprived of food and other essential supplies "are false, baseless and malicious."

Ali said the Biharis at the Adamjee jute mill in Narayan-

Bhutto Willing To Talk With Indians

AP, Reuter

Pakistan's new president said Thursday he is willing to sit down and talk with leaders of India, which thrashed his country's armed forces in a war over Bangladesh.

But Zulfikar Ali Bhutto said he would talk with the Indians only if they demonstrated a change in attitude toward Pakistan.

Bhutto maintains that India never accepted Pakistan as a country even as far back as 1947 when the British left the subcontinent. The British created East and West Pakistan because the two areas, separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory, were chiefly Moslem. India is chiefly Hindu.

"Pakistan wants to live in friendship with all its neighbors and more especially with India," Bhutto told a meeting in Lahore, Pakistan, "and I would like to have a dialogue with India even tomorrow if it changed its policy and reconciled itself to the creation of Pakistan as an independent state."

A Radio Pakistan broadcast summarizing Bhutto's speech made no mention of East Pakistan, now called Bangladesh, as previous broadcasts have done since Bhutto took over the presidency last week.

But Bhutto was quoted as saying: "Pakistan does not want any part of India, nor will it allow India to occupy any part of Pakistan's territory."

Earlier in the day Bhutto was reported by government sources as proposing a loose federation of Bangladesh and West Pakistan along the lines of the one Egypt, Syria and Libya have formed. The informants said Bhutto made the proposal to Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader held in West Pakistan since March.

Diplomatic sources in Rawalpindi expressed doubt that the sheik would agree.

Rare Unanimity Brings Ottawa Nearer Holidays

OTTAWA (CP) — A last-minute amendment to the farm marketing bill that would give Parliament the final word on the establishment of national agricultural quotas was approved by the Commons late Thursday.

The Senate was expected to pass the bill today, which would mean the two chambers could adjourn for winter holidays after joining to witness royal assent. They will be off until Feb. 16.

The Commons, after some hesitation, gave Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson unanimous consent to introduce the amendment, which has been demanded by some of the provinces.

Third and final reading began shortly before midnight Thursday night after the opposition forced 11 votes on proposed amendments — all defeated.

About 175 members were in the 264-seat Commons despite a day-long snowstorm.

Prime Minister Trudeau led about 115 Liberals in overwhelming an opposition that combined on most of the votes.

The bill would set up the structure for the establishment of national agricultural marketing agencies for different commodity groupings. These agencies would be able

U.K. Vetoes UN Vote On Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Britain vetoed a resolution in the Security Council Thursday night rejecting its proposals for a settlement with the Smith government in Rhodesia.

It was only the sixth time that Britain had used its right of veto in the 26-year history of the United Nations.

New Awards System Planned in '72

Heroes Must Wait

OTTAWA (CP)— Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday the government hopes to announce early in 1972 a new system of military and civilian awards.

He was replying in the Commons to David Groos (L-Victoria), who said bravery awards earned by crew members of the destroyer Kootenay in an explosion and fire are more than two years overdue.

Trudeau said the entire question of awards for bravery and other reasons has been under consideration for some time.

NOTES TO YOU . . .

You might recall that when the government erased the 15 per cent sales tax on electrical appliances, the price of TV sets came down. But now those prices have crept back up again and the TV industry gives a rather lame reason for the increase. Claims booming TV sales have forced prices up, which somehow or other doesn't add up to much sense. Like to wager the profit picture is way up too . . .

THE YEAR-IN, year-out success of the Colonist 500 Fund is a constant source of joy around our office and shows Victorians do a pretty wonderful job.

The last total I saw was slightly more than $32,000, whereas in Vancouver, with a much larger population, the Vancouver Sun's Tiny Tim Fund reached $33,925. I suggest the Victoria spirit of helping others was considerably greater . . .

WALTER KRAFT retired as the big boss of Safeway last week and the B.C. employees of that company threw a retirement party for him. Kraft was probably the main reason why Safeway almost completely eliminated bottled soft drinks from their shelves in favor of the canned variety. Anyway, the pop concerns in B.C. had a special presentation for Kraft at the party — an empty six-pack . . .

LEAVE ME give a kind word to the B.C. Telephone operators — those gals who were probably at the end of their wits during the deluge of long distance calls placed during the Christmas weekend. I tried, without success, to place a call to Switzerland Christmas Day. Started early in the morning, continued until mid-evening. However, every operator I encountered — and I must have hit just about every one on duty — was pleasant and sounded sincerely apologetic that she could not get me through. Finally made the connection Boxing Day morning and again, the co-operation was first rate all the way. I think they did an excellent job under very trying conditions . . .

IT IS generally conceded (not by him, however) that W. A. C. Bennett's next election campaign will be his last. YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Liver Not Flushable

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a "fatty liver"? Does it mean the liver is coated with fat?

I heard that orange juice is the only fluid which flushes out the liver. Is this correct?

Does an enlarged liver mean liver damage?

If a liver is not enlarged, can it still be damaged?—E.M.

No, a fatty liver is not "coated with fat." The fat is scattered through the tissues of the organ — and reduces its efficiency. Alcohol, obesity and diabetes are three of the principal factors associated with a fatty liver.

Forget about "flushing out the liver." That's an old, decrepit notion based on a misguided idea of what the liver is like. There isn't anything that will "flush out the liver." Nor is there any need to try to.

An enlarged liver means that something is wrong with it, and it may be damaged or congested. That includes a fatty liver.

But a liver can be damaged without showing enlargement. Sometimes a liver badly damaged by cirrhosis may not be enlarged, but actually shrunken.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A recent blood test showed an excess of uric acid. The doctor put me on medication and said this would help expel this acid.

Is there some type of food I should eat or not eat to help? Will vitamins decrease or increase it? Does an excess amount of uric acid give you a reaction similar to arthritis?—A.F.N.

Diet — avoiding foods with high purine content — has some effect in preventing excess uric acid, but medication is a much more important factor. Vitamins have no effect either way.

Excess uric acid can lead to gout, and in a sense, when gout is active (attacks come and go) it is a form of arthritis in that it causes severe joint pain. That phase of gout is called gouty arthritis.

Uric acid also can cause kidney stones, so there's more than one very good reason for keeping the level down.

of other provisions in the tax bill affecting individuals and corporations. The above list provides only the briefest highlight of measures affecting the individual.

The tax bill, which was a decade in preparation by three federal governments, is the most complex and detailed legislation ever passed by the Canadian Parliament. Opposition members claimed repeatedly during debate on the bill which the government eventually forced through Parliament by use of closure, that no one yet fully understand its complexities.

Effective Saturday, the Trudeau government's new unemployment insurance plan goes into full operation, with expanded coverage and benefits.

All employees will automatically be required to start paying into the plan. At present, only those employees who earn less than $7,800 a year are required to pay premiums.

There are an estimated 1,160,00 Canadian employees who will thus be required to start paying unemployment premiums for the first time.

Under the plan, benefits will be substantially increased and eligibility requirement eased. Claimants will receive two-thirds of their income to a maximum of $100 a week.

Those with as little as eight weeks' employment will be able to qualify for partial benefits: and those with at least 20 weeks employment will be eligible for maximum benefits.

Employers will be required to deduct the unemployment premiums from employees' paycheques in the same way that income tax is now deducted.

Effective Saturday, the new sickness, pregnancy and retirement provisions of the new unemployment plan will also come into full operation.

Persons who have been in the labor force for 20 weeks or more during the previous year will be able to collect benefits for 15 weeks because of sickness or pregnancy.

Those aged from 65 to 70 who retire voluntarily from the labor force will be eligible for a three-week retirement benefit.

Contributions under the unemployment plan will be income tax deductible. The formula for calculating individual contributions is highly complex. However, individual contributions will range from about 71 cents to$1.32 a week. Employers will be required to contribute a roughly equivalent amount.

For the million-plus who will be entering the plan for the first time the contributions will be slightly less for the first three years.

to set marketing regulations and production quotas.

The amendment given approval during debate on the report stage and sure to be part of the final bill, requires that any production quota schemes designed by the agencies would have to come before Parliament in the form of an amendment to the act.

Olson also moved less significant changes that had been demanded by opposition parties as part of an all-party agreement to pass the bill by today.

The Senate is actually already on holidays, but some Senators at least were to be called back for a few hours to deal with the bill.

The Commons also normally would be on holidays, but the government called members back Tuesday to deal with the bill, and threatened to keep them sitting until it was disposed of.

Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) threatened to block Olson's production quota amendment, but stopped short.

One nay would have vetoed the amendment, requiring that it be brought in later in a separate bill. McIntosh declined to cast it after he was given the chance following a few moments of procedural confusion.

MONTREAL — A Congolese diplomat accused of importing 120 pounds of hashish into Montreal admitted he was to receive $6,500 for making the delivery, an RCMP officer testified.

Cpl. Gilles Favreau, testifying at the trial of Marcel Sampu, 45, said the hashish was to be delivered to a man registered as "J. Anderson" at a downtown hotel here. Police have been unable to find the man.

Sampu was identified as first secretary at the Cairo embassy of the republic of Zaire, formerly the Belgian Congo.

Cpl. Favreau said the man, when arrested at Montreal International Airport July 20, claimed diplomatic immunity and refused to allow customs officers to search his luggage.

When Sampu could not produce any vertification that he was in Canada on a diplomatic mission, police examined his three pieces of baggage and found several bags of hashish.

Texas Gulf Settles Hefty Suit

NEW YORK (CP) — The Texas Gulf Sulphur Co. has announced a $2.7-million agreement with a majority of former shareholders who brought suit in connection with the company's major ore discovery near Timmins, Ont., in 1964.

Under terms of the settlement, the money is to be deposited into a settlement fund to be administered by the courts.

Judge Dudley Bonsal of the U.S. District Court for the southern district of New York has scheduled a hearing for March 9 as to the fairness and reasonableness of the settlement.

The Thursday announcement by Texas Gulf followed a decision Dec. 20 by the supreme court to deny a hearing on a lower court finding that the company and nine individuals had violated federal U.S. law and security exchange regulations designed to guard against fraud.

Following the Timmins discovery, the company issued a news release casting doubts on its importance.

The company said the news release was being issued in response to false and exaggerated rumors regarding the drilling operations.

The settlement agreement includes a pending class action brought on behalf of persons who say they sold Texas Gulf stock on the basis of the news release, issued April 12, 1964.

'Mastermind' Wanted Back in West Germany

Lawyer Held in Kidnap

MEXICO CITY (Reuter) — Mexican authorities confirmed Thursday night that police are holding West German lawyer Heinz-Joachim Ollenburg following a request from West Germany for his extradition to face kidnap charges.

Ollenburg is accused by police in Essen, West Germany, of masterminding the Nov. 29 kidnapping of millionaire Theodore Albrecht, which brought a record ransom of $2.1 million.

The 47-year-old Ollenburg and his girl-friend, Angela Paeck, were detained early Friday after arriving Wednesday night in a tour group which flew from Frankfurt to Acapulco on Mexico's Pacific coast. With other members of their party they changed planes in Acapulco and went to Mexico City.

In Essen, West Germany police said an application had been made to Mexican authorities for Ollenburg's extradition.

Essen police said Ollenburg had been tracked down to a Mexico City hotel where he was living with a young girl.

Albrecht was seized in his car while leaving his office near Essen Nov. 29, he was set free Dec. 16.

Police said Albrecht had identified Ollenburg's apartment, on the fourth floor of a house in the centre of Duesseldorf, as the place where he was held captive.

Police said the lawyer had only one accomplice, Paul Kron, who was arrested in Duesseldorf Dec. 22 and made a full confession.

Italians' Midnight Mayhem

ROME — On New Year's Eve in Italy, when they ring in the new and toss out the old, they aren't kidding.

In comes the new year, and out goes the old, out the window also go old bottles, old garbage, sinks, crockery, furniture, toilets, bidets, and old bathtubs.

Parts of Rome and other Italian cities make New York's Times Square at midnight sound like a convention of Trappist monks.

For the streets of Italian cities on New Year's Eve between the hours of 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. are among the noisiest and most dangerous places in the world.

A veritable blizzard of glass, crockery, woodwork and porcelain rain down and newcomers to Italian cities are advised to stay clear.

Last year, an Italian professional man by mischance parked his car, a tiny fiat, on a sidestreet in Trastevere, the lively working quarter of Rome.

He returned on New Year's morning to find it demolished by a bathtub that had been tossed out of an upper apartment window.

Hundreds of injuries are reported the morning after and each year Italian authorities make appeals to the citizenry to take it easy on the midnight mayhem — but so far to little avail.

The custom of tossing all one's old possessions out the window on New Year's Eve has been going on for generations in Italy, particularly in the high-spirited southern part.

In recent years, however, as Italians have become more affluent and their furniture and bathroom fixtures of better grade, there have been fewer sofas and chairs plummetting to the streets.

But families still save up bottles, chipped crockery and porcelain to get rid of with a bang on New Year's Eve, which is also known as St. Silvestro's night.

Firecrackers, too, are increasingly popular and the louder the better.

So far this season, Roman hospitals have reported treating more than 100 persons for injuries from fireworks.

Italian newspapers are raising the alarm against firecrackers, called "botti." Rome's Il Messaggero called the firecrackers the "uncivil custom," and Turin's La Stampa said that Rome sounded "like a city in a war zone."

La Stampa also deplored the fact that southern Italy's noisy custom of fireworks and tossing out of crockery was moving into the big industrial cities by the northern migration of workers.

For most of northern Italy, New Year's Eve is more sedate — parties for the young and a quiet evening for the older generation. For others, the usual big tables at fancy restaurants and nightclubs, with champagne at midnight.

It is customary to call one's parents or nearest relatives as nearly as possible to midnight and the deluge of calls usually overtaxes the national phone system for a couple of hours, with long delays, and mixed-up calls.

On New Year's Day, the required dish to eat is "zampone," pigs feet stuffed with chopped, seasoned pork, along with lentils — the dish signifies abundance.

And on Jan. 1, everyone puts on something new — socks, stockings, shirts, neckties, handbags, scarves, or whatever.

After a big New Year's Eve, the most welcome sight in Italy the next day is not one's favorite hangover cure, since Italians tend not to over-indulge in drink, but the city street sweepers.

They work their way through the litter, cleaning it up, and perahps taking home an item of furniture or a bathroom fixture they consider still usable.

Strangely, in a nation rent by strikes, the sweepers have never struck on New Year's Day.

"If they ever did," says one Roman, "Italian streets would be a terrible, unliveable mess the morning after."

One Babe Cried In Manger

HOUSTON, Tex. (Reuter) — Church workers found two babies Wednesday in the manger of St. Anne's Roman Catholic Church nativity scene — and one of them was crying.

The real baby, only a few days old, had been abandoned. It lay just in front of the statue of the infant Jesus.

"It was all wrapped in a nice blanket and well taken care of," said church worker Marie Smith.

Child care officers promptly placed the boy in an emergency foster home while police began seeking the mother.

Cairo Prodded

Why Not Direct Talks?

United Press International

Israeli Deputy Premier Yigel Allon said Thursday Egypt has "little to lose and everything to gain" by direct peace negotiations with Israel. He said if Egypt really wanted peace it would establish "direct contacts, even secret ones" before it became totally subservient to Moscow's will.

"This is the way to brighter and better times for the whole of this region," Allon said in a speech at the final session of an international conference of Sovietologists at Tel Aviv university.

In Cairo, Parliament Speaker Hafez Badawi said Egypt wants peace but will liberate Israeli-occupied Arab territory "no matter what the sacrifices." Badawi's remarks came at a meeting with a four-man British Liberal party delegation visiting Arab states at the invitation of the Arab League.

Also in Cairo, the Middle East News Agency reported the Egyptian army, navy and air force have completed a one-week rehearsal of the battles which they expect to fight in liberating Israeli-occupied Sinai.

And back in Tel Aviv today, Israel's retiring armed forced chief said he doesn't think the Egyptians really mean it when they say their only chance to regain lost territory is by war.

Lt.-Gen. Haim Bar-Lev said Israel's military might now is stronger than ever, able to throw back an Egyptian attempt to cross Suez Canal, to neutralize Egypt's anti-aircraft missile system and to retaliate in kind if Egypt attacks civilian targets in Israel.

In Provincial Dealings

UBCM Aiming For Peace

VANCOUVER (CP) — Establishment of a firm working relationship with the provincial government will be the principal objective of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities in 1972.

President Ernie Broome of Vancouver said Thursday that in the past, the UBCM has tended to engage in political conflicts with Victoria rather than encouraging a co-operative effort to solve municipal problems.

In the past, Broome said, the UBCM has tried to "score points" in its brief to the government but last fall a tone of co-operation was written into the cabinet brief.

He said that the cabinet said it would fulfill some of the requests and the ministers explained why some of the requests could not be put into effect.

"These are things that we did not understand before ... now we will be able to explain it to the next convention."

Broome wants the labor relations counselling service to be at a pay-as-you-go basis. He says that a village that pays $110 a year doesn't cover the cost of one trip to the area.

Broome will be sending recently appointed executive-director Jeff McKelvey to Victoria to operate a one-man lobby during the next session of the legislature.

McKelvey says he will be available to explain the municipal position on issues affecting UBCM members to MLAs of all political parties.

Injunction: No Change

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice D. R. Verchere of the Supreme Court refused Thursday to grant Canadian Pacific Railway and the Brotherhood of Railway Workers' union an injunction expansion restraining teamsters and other unions from refusing to handle goods brought to B.C. construction sites by trucks driven by non-teamster drivers.

Blackmail Rejected

UNLESS MALTA'S ARDENT and ambitious socialist Premier Dom Mintoff reconsiders his position and abandons what amounts to a multi-million dollar blackmail effort, the British presence will shortly vanish from the island.

Such a development would have a certain strategic significance, but not the impact that loss of the naval base at Valetta would have meant to Britain and her allies when so much depended on the mobility of the Mediterranean Fleet.

Regret over the departure of the British from the fortress island is likely to be confined to the Maltese who will find themselves out of a job — and they will amount to more than 5 per cent of the work force — and old soldiers, sailors and airmen who helped to defend the bastion against the relentless assault of Axis forces in the last world war. These, and a few sentimentalists who wince at every reminder of a lost world empire.

Malta, however, has been an independent nation since 1964, and the British military facilities were maintained there by treaty and substantial rent arrangements. The rental of installations, in fact, was one of the chief sources of Malta's revenue.

But when Premier Mintoff came to power — with a one-seat majority — he saw a chance of winning a better contract, what with NATO forces using the British dockyard, airstrips and workshops and the Soviet Union looking for new Mediterranean bases. He tore up the agreement which paid his country a mere $15 million a year and demanded six times the sum.

After much bargaining he finally settled for rental of about $26 million a year and whatever other sums he could collect from NATO nations using the Valetta facilities. Britain was to pay half the rent immediately. She did so last Sept. 30.

In spite of the understanding, a message reached London on Christmas morning demanding a further $11 million payment for the use of the island or the whole deal would be forgotten. Once again Premier Mintoff had torn up the contract.

Prime Minister Heath views this action as nothing short of blackmail, and his view will be shared in the West. His decision to withdraw all British forces and their dependants from Malta immediately is the answer to what he considers an ultimatum.

The British prime minister is not bluffing. But Premier Mintoff probably was. Now, however, he has overplayed his hand, and unless he finds some way of reopening the game this is the end of it.

It also could well be the end of the Mintoff administration. Only the unlikely acceptance by the Soviet Union of terms Britain found unrealistic and unacceptable can make Premier Mintoff look like any other than a reckless gambler. And a loser at that. It would serve him right.

Sobering Reminders

PERHAPS the driving public is becoming more responsible. The road record over Christmas certainly suggests this. Few accidents were reported, and only two cases of a main cause of mishaps, alcohol impairment at the wheel, brought court action.

There was a fair amount of imbibing, though, from the line-ups seen at the liquor stores in the preceding week, and it could be that some of the goodwill spirit of the season counteracted the taking of the other kind.

The weather undoubtedly played a part, too, although there was considerable partying before the snow arrived, and there wasn't this added reason for greater driving care.

It may be, then, that the message is sinking in; that the advertising campaigns with the drinking-and-driving slogans are getting results.

A little more time will tell. The jolly season is not yet over. This is the crunch weekend with as much, and probably more over-indulgence in New Year welcoming than at Christmas-time.

It is now, more than at any other time perhaps, that Section 224 of Canada's Criminal Code should be reviewed in the minds of motorists. The section determines the precise point at which a driver, or anyone in control of a motor vehicle whether it is in motion or not, is breaking the law by the very content of alcohol in his blood stream.

The section states that the individual "having consumed alcohol in such a quantity that the proportion thereof in his blood exceeds 80 milligrams (.08) of alcohol in 100 millilitres of blood is guilty of an offence punishable on summary conviction and is liable to a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $1,000 or to imprisonment for not more than six months, or both."

And it might be well for the motorist to remind himself, too, that Section 223 of the code contains the same penalties for refusing to take a breathalyzer test when requested to do so by a police officer.

Another point to be remembered, as well, is that even if a breathalyzer reading is below .08, impairment or reckless driving charges still can be laid under Section 222.

Without a breathalyzer, blood alcohol levels cannot be measured with complete accuracy because each individual reacts to alcohol according to body weight, the amount of food eaten, and, of course, the number of drinks taken over a given period of time.

On average, a 170-pound man can reach the .08 level by having three drinks within one hour. And he can maintain that level by having one drink an hour over each of the next several hours.

This may be all old stuff to most drivers, but it cannot be repeated too often if it is the reason why there was little trouble in Christmas traffic.

"No, no. I'LL get up for the beers — I need the exercise."

Egyptians Skeptical

Cairo Stops Preparing for War

By IRENE BEESON from Cairo

IN spite of all the official talk of war in the Middle East, most Egyptians believe that President Anwar Sadat is still hoping that a way may be found to avoid carrying out his "decision to fight" Israel again.

★ ★ ★

They are, however, convinced that there will be no move by Israel, the United States, or any of the big powers or the United Nations that would justify, in Egyptian opinion, a change of heart or policy on the part of Sadat. But they think that a mere prolongation of the cease-fire may lead to serious disturbances.

It is from Egypt's universities that turbulence is most likely to erupt in the coming weeks.

The first challenge to the authorities from the students came the day after the assassination on Nov. 28 of Jordanian Premier Wasfi el Tel. Students in several universities posted up petitions calling for the release of the Palestinian "heroes" charged with the killing. Security men at Cairo University intervened to prevent a demonstration and, as a compromise, the students were allowed to hold a meeting on the campus. Students have been going around Cairo canvassing for signatures for petitions and organizing public opinion polls.

Questionnaires in the polls have, however, strayed from the burning subject of the assassination to embrace the wider issue of the Arab-Israeli conflict and Egypt's position. To the questions, "Do you consider the four Palestinians guilty?" or "What is your attitude to political murder?" and "What action do you propose should be taken if the four accused are sentenced to death?" have been added questions directly related to war or peace in the area.

The situation in Egypt today is very similar, in lower key, to that of May-June 1967, with the difference that the frightful experience of the unbelievably swift Arab defeat and the intervening four and a half years of humiliating enemy occupation have wrought changes in the thinking and outlook of a great many Egyptians. They are now more skeptical, more wary, less easily swayed. The fact that it is no longer Gamal Abdel Nasser, with his magnetism and quasi-hypnotic power, who creates and directs the situation has robbed it of the emotionalism which was often confused with patriotism.

President Sadat's tough statements are, one feels, the echo of the will of large, frustrated sections of the Egyptian — and Arab — people and army; a declaration of the "state of the nation" and an implicit appeal to the world to help make another war impossible or unnecessary.

Now, however, many Egyptians and observers here believe Sadat has talked himself into a war or, at least, into armed action of some kind.

Outwardly, except for reduced street lighting, Cairo has never appeared to be farther away from war, less "mobilized."

For the third time since June 1967, Egypt has been instructed to put on the war paint and get ready for action. The first time was in June 1967, when fighting was really over. For a short spell blackout, dimmed headlights, anti-blast walls and sandbags gave an illusion of mobilization.

In February 1970, at the height of Israeli air raids, tumbledown protective walls were propped up again, sandbags refilled and blackout orders fitfully complied with.

Now, as then, the "first step" is partial blackout — street lights reduced, headlights painted blue, full blackout for all government buildings and public sector factories. But now, as then, in Cairo at least, the exceptions cancel out the rule. Brightly-lit windows identify and pinpoint offical buildings and the dimming of headlights, even on public transport, is less than half-hearted.

Belts are being loosened, not tightened. Cairo's middle-class and smart set are living it up as though they were already celebrating peace after victory. Austerity is still strictly a status symbol.

"Our decision is to fight," repeated daily in all official speeches and statements, has lost its urgency. It has become a slogan, and acquired the soporific rhythm of a leitmotif.

The press and TV issue directives on how to behave in an air raid, and at the same time the Cairo municipality is busy pulling down public air raid shelters to make way for car parks in the centre of Cairo.

In a series of meetings with the different committees of the Arab Socialist Union, President Sadat has discussed the "magnitude of the coming battle, its burdens, the means of confrontation and the moves to be taken at all levels." Each of the country's governorates is now considered an independent defence unit with its own "war council."

But Egyptians, who have watched it all happen and peter out twice before, are not impressed. They see no evidence, even at this crucial time, of a truly serious effort to mobilize and discipline the population.

They have noted the inconsistencies between official statements made over the past year and the fact that mobilization, such as it is, was tackled at the eleventh hour of the "year of decision," in the fifth year of enemy occupation, 18 months after the leadership told the people that there was only a 1 per cent chance of reaching a peaceful settlement.

Egyptians are asking why, since the government admits chances of reaching a peace settlement expired months ago, they have waited until now to start talking about planning civil defence and mobilization.

Washington Calling

U.S. Aid for Arab Education

By MARQUIS CHILDS from Beirut

FOR the few million dollars in U.S. federal aid to education that goes into supporting the American University of Beirut in Lebanon the United States receives a highly disproportionate return. It is a return in influence and appreciation throughout the Arab world. Americans who come here agree almost without exception that as a form of foreign aid this is infinitely preferable to the kind of scatter-shot aid that is in such deep trouble in Congress.

Founded 106 yeas ago, the AUB was part of the current of idealism that sent American missionaries, doctors and educators to the far corners of the earth. With their dedication and their devotion they created the image of a nation selfless in the pursuit of good works.

As evidence of the influence of the university, four members of the present cabinet, including the prime minister, Saeb Salem, are graduates. At least six of the director generalships in the bureaucracy are also out of AUB. And many other graduates are in public service posts throughout the Arab world.

The founders were Presbyterian, Congregational and Dutch Reform missionaries who came out in the mid-50s of the last century. They soon discovered that converting Moslems to Christianity was a well-nigh hopeless assignment since Christ is incorporated in the Moslem religion not as a deity but as a great prophet who preceded Mohammed. So they turned to education and founded what was first known as Syrian Protestant College, with a class of 18 and a faculty of six.

The stern, bewhiskered portraits of the founders look down from the walls of the board of directors' room in an institution that now has 4,000 students, schools of medicine, nursing, agriculture, and a hospital and a liberal arts college. These were men who believed in the beneficent power of knowledge, the leavening force of education in the New England tradition of a century ago.

The first president was Daniel Bliss and he was succeeded by his son, Howard, who was equally zealous and dedicated in promoting the university. A later president was Bayard Dodge of the Phelps Dodge interests. John Case of Standard Oil, for many years president of the board of directors, gave a major push both in fund raising and in direction as the university grew.

An important contribution is in the know-how so vital to Arab development. The faculty is 70 per cent Lebanese. Saleim Macksoud, professor of irrigation in the agricultural school, travels throughout the Arab world giving technical assistance on irrigation projects.

While it is the largest and most influential, AUB is only one of a half-dozen institutions in the Middle East founded MORE under the direction of American educators. The American University and the American College in Cairo are in this same tradition. So is Roberts College, a secondary school in Istanbul that helped to generate a university taken over by the Turkish government.

The present president of AUB is soft-spoken Dr. Samuel Kirkwood, who came to Beirut in 1961 to be dean of the medical faculty. Chartered under the laws of New York State, the university is responsibe to the regents of the state system. Of the total budget of $16,223,000 about 30 per cent comes from federal aid to education. Even with private giving and foundation support the university could not have gone on without help.

American educators in the Middle East have no illusions about the scope of their influence. Technically, and AUB with its laboratories and advanced research facilities has moved into the technological orbit, the influence is great. Politically, even with the moderates as distinct from the wild extremists in Al Fatah and other far-out Fedayeen groups, it is slight.

There is a deep sense of injustice over the loss of Arab lands and the fact that the United States almost invariably throws its weight behind Israel. Men and women educated in American-supported colleges are keenly aware of the degree to which the standing of Israel is involved in American domestic politics. They look with a certain disillusion on the great nation that was once their ideal.

If there is no war, and almost every discussion begins with that if, the belief in rapid Arab development is strong. The greatly increased oil revenues from the boost in oil prices will go into productive investments and schools and hospitals after the example of Kuwait. The potential is here and it has been brought into being in part by a century of American educators.

The End of the United Nations?

By OTTO VON HABSBURG

WHEN Red China was admitted to the UN on Oct. 25 and Taiwan was excluded, this was considered a major U.S. defeat. While African extremist representatives dishonored the assembly hall with their barbaric dance, a Russian delegate approached the U.S. delegation. As a sign of a new solidarity in shared unhappiness he whispered: Here is the beginning of the end.

The grotesque and scandalous events since that date justify this pessimism. India's aggression against Pakistan has revealed the world body's total impotence. When a super-power is the agressor, lack of action may be perhaps excused. But when a second-rate country like India cynically slaughters a weaker neighbor, and the UN is not even able to pass a resolution naming the culprit at least for the archives, one can really no longer see what its justification can be.

The events of recent days show something which was clear since Peking's admission: when the two aggressive powers of the world, Russia and China, have the veto power, the UN has lost its last moral justification. One or the other will always immobilize the machine; with the present charter nothing can be done about it. Worse still, even indirect operations for maintaining peace, as years ago in Cyprus, are no longer possible. The Security Council is only a tribune for demagogues — perferably against Portugal and South Africa — and nothing more.

Despite the organization's desperate propaganda efforts this fact is becoming public knowledge. This is dangerous for the UN and its parasites. The budget of the organization has been much inflated recently, according to the principle that the less one does, the more it will cost. A huge bureaucracy was established in order to satisfy the "young states" and because the privileges of the "new class" are so enormous that a growing number of persons jump on the gravy train. This not only applies to the UN proper, but equally to its branches, charitable and other. The machine has become so top-heavy and salaries so onerous that already last year an Indian, though belonging to the cult, had admitted to me that a dollar given the UN to combat misery had only 25 per cent of the results compared with those obtained by a similar sum given to private and particularly church charities.

Waste and utter uselessness has created so much discontent in the United States, that the politicians sooner or later will have to reduce American contributions. Since the United States provides 31 per cent of the visible and a higher percentage of the invisible expenditures of the UN, American reaction will be felt, the more so since many other states are behind in their payments — if we except the global sucker, the German Federal Republic, which pays voluntarily, though not a member and having no word in policy making or administration.

The financial crisis will hit a number of programs. Furthermore the American example will be followed. Moral bankruptcy will be coupled with financial collapse. The only hope is Parkinson's law, according to which bureaucracy continues to live and thrive even after the reason for which it was established has ceased to exist. A typical example is the survival of the League of Nations administration until the UN came along.

It is significant for the reality of the crisis that the most directly affected powers are studying already the problem of a replacement for the UN. The U.S.S.R. has sounded out several governments over the possibilty of creating regional organizations. The European Security Conference, it was suggested, could form something for the Old World. This would have entailed the danger that the Soviet Union would have been the only major power in the new organization, the latter thus becoming an instrument in the service of Moscow. This is why the idea was turned down by several Western European countries.

The fact that such ideas are discussed gives a measure of the UN's decline. The crisis was probably inevitable from the very beginning. A structural fault has existed since the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, where the U.S. government tried to give a permanent international foundation to a purely temporary wartime alliance, instead of looking for an international order based on law. This was the original sin of the UN, which now turns out to be the paramount cause of its decadence.

Decision, Then Reasons

From The Gazette, Montreal

The prime minister told the Commons that his government decided many weeks ago what its position towards foreign investment ought to be. He's not going to tell us that position. Certainly not until background papers have been prepared. Mr. Trudeau is at least consistent. Rationalization after the fact is a specialty of his administration.

And how long are we to be kept in suspense? Mr. Trudeau won't say. Supposedly until he can work up a creditable set of reasons for whatever that position may be. If it's the position that words and actions have already indicated, one of progressively tighter restraint, we may have to wait quite a while. Rationalization won't be easy.

Schreyer, right, at statue unveiling

Knotted Riel Unveiled

WINNIPEG (CP) — A statue of Metis leader Louis Riel was unveiled Thursday on the grounds of the Manitoba legislature building by Premier Ed Schreyer.

Emblazoned on the 30-foot high concrete shell enclosing the 15-foot statue are the words:

"I know that through the grace of God, I am the founder of Manitoba."

The statue is a symbolic representation and shows a naked figure with a large head and knotted, misshapen torso.

The sculptor, Marcien Lemay of St. Boniface, said the cement figure, which has its arms twisted behind its back as through straining against bonds, is in a "dynamic rather than static position."

At the unveiling, Premier Schreyer said Riel at the time of the formation of Manitoba in 1870 "was a very young, brilliant and courageous man who was in many ways a pioneer of great vision."

Riel was "one of the founders and political and social pioneers of our province," Schreyer said.

He was a pioneer in the sense "that he dared to expect, politically, representative government" and that "he dared to expect equal rights for all regardless of race or nationality or mixture of blood."

St. Boniface architect Etienne Gaboury, a descendant of Riel's grandmother, Marie Ann Gaboury, designed the memorial.

Canada's NATO Squadrons

Nuclear Strike Role Ends

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian nuclear strike role in Europe, which emerged out of a storm of controversy nine years ago, comes quietly to an end at midnight tonight.

In the new year two Canadian squadrons assigned to NATO, equipped for either a nuclear or conventional bombing role, will become conventional ground attack squadrons only.

A third squadron is being converted from a reconnaissance function to a conventional attack. This decision was announced in the government's defence white paper, unveiled in August, but will not take effect until July 1.

The decision to vacate the nuclear strike role was announced in September, 1969, as a followup to Prime Minister Trudeau's decision to reduce and overhaul Canada's military commitment to the Atlantic alliance.

The number of Canadian squadrons in Europe has in the meantime been reduced from six — four strike-attack and two reconnaissance — to three.

Defence department sources say termination of the nuclear role will be instantaneous and automatic, are planned at the Baden-Soellingen base in southern Germany.

However, the changeover will mark the beginning of a program to refit the CF-104 Starfighters that will cost up to $10 million during the next two years.

The program will involve equipping the reconnaissance squadron to carry bombs instead of cameras, and improve the bomb-carrying capability of the other two formations.

Each plane in the new Canadian force will be capable of carrying 2,000 pounds of bombs in its fuselage and 1,000 pounds under each wing. A 20-millimetre, M61A cannon will be installed in the Starfighter, as well as a 2.75-inch rocket launcher and improved radar.

The end of the strike roll — one of Trudeau's major objectives in the defence field — will mean a dissolution of Canada's offensive nuclear capability.

The CF-104 strike squadrons have been capable, in a war situation, to fly deep into Soviet territory on tactical or strategic bombing missions with their nuclear payloads.

Seattle Hungry Finally Get Surplus Food

SEATTLE (AP) — The first distribution of surplus food, stalled for a while in administrative channels, was made in Seattle Thursday.

Sen. Warren Magnuson (D —Wash.) said "it's not a pleasant commentary on the American system that we have people hungry and people unemployed."

The more than four million pouds of surplus commodities brought to the city by the U.S. agriculture department, were passed out from a former grocery store in Seattle's predominately minority central area.

The $2 million worth of foodstuffs such as dry milk, rice, beans, canned meat and dried eggs are expected to last for a month.

The agriculture department for several months refused to distribute surplus commodities in the region because a food stamp program was in operation. The department released the food shortly after a federal court said the department had acted illegally in refusing to operate dual programs.

Food stamps, sold at a discount to qualifying persons, can be used in grocery stores as cash.

Attack Causes Furor

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario Conservative MP Douglas Alkenbrack caused a brief furor in the Commons Thursday as he levelled a series of accusations against John Carson, chairman of the Public Service Commission.

Alkenbrack sought Carson's removal from office.

He said the chairman is "being used by those who seek to subvert the merit system" of hiring federal employees.

Carson had brought the office "under a cloud" with "outright favoritism" based in many cases on race and language, Alkenbrack alleged.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux interrupted to caution Alkenbrack that the rule under which he was speaking gave no chance for a defence against such allegations.

Topless Nymph Attracts Magazines, BBC

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — Searchers for a topless nature girl known as the Nullarbor Nymph said they found a set of bare footprints during a four-vehicle hunt Thursday through the plains where she was reported seen bouncing along with a flock of reddish kangaroos.

A bus driver claimed he spotted the scantily clad girl Wednesday morning and that passengers left food and drink on the roadside for her.

The nymph has been described as a tall, blonde girl wearing only a kangaroo skin miniskirt. Ron Sells, 31, a Eucla rabbit trapper who claims to have seen her twice, denied it was just another one of those tall outback pub stories the locals tell to visitors passing through.

German magazines already were pouring in offers for the first pictures and interview with the nymph and the British Broadcasting Corp. telephoned the only hotel in the small town of Eucla, 600 miles east of Perth, for confirmation.

Mrs. Helen Gurley, wife of the station owner who has the only other telephone in Eucla, thinks it's a great big hoax.

"I think it's just a publicity stunt," she said Wednesday.

She and her husband Harvey have lived on the 750,000-acre station for six years and have never heard of anyone living in the bush.

Ulster Attack

Speaker's Home Burned

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen bombed and burned the home of Ivan Neill, speaker of Northern Ireland's House of Commons Thursday and a suspected squad of Irish Republican Army gunmen lured a young man behind a local movie theatre and shot him in the leg, the army said.

Other masked gunmen raided the central offices of the Londonderry Low-Cost Housing Authority and destroyed hundreds of files in a public bonfire, an army spokesman said. Earlier in Londonderry, gunmen had fired on British troops.

The army security sources said the wounded young man, whose identity was withheld, was taken behind the Broadway Theatre in the Roman Catholic Falls Road area of Belfast and shot.

"We believe it was done by an IRA punishment squad," a source said.

He gave no reason for the "punishment."

During the day, bombs also badly damaged a factory in Newry and caused the fire which gutted Neill's home. Neither blast caused any injuries.

In a secretly distributed statement, the IRA claimed responsibility for the destruction of the low-cost housing files which were taken outside the office and burned at a street intersection.

The statement said the burning was a protest against the internment of IRA suspects and the deduction of back rent payments from the welfare cheques of tenants.

In Londonderry's Bogside area, gunmen earlier shot up a car that spun out of control and crashed into a building. An army spokesman said the unidentified driver was rescued without injuries.

But Traffic Still Chaotic

Rome Bus Rides Free

From Reuter-AP

ROME — A nine-day experiment in free rides on buses and streetcars got off to a smooth start in Rome Thursday as city authorities watched to see whether it would help solve the capital's mammoth traffic headaches.

The aim of the test project, under which no one will have to pay the 50-lire (eight-cent) bus and streetcar fares until Jan. 7, is to lure Romans out of their private cars, which clog the street in endless traffic jams, and into public transport.

Midway through the first day, some officials were expressing optimism.

"All my buses are running on time; it's an improvement," said a bus superintendent at a central terminus.

Others were less happy with the results.

"It's too soon to tell, but so far traffic seems as chaotic as ever," said a traffic policeman at the city's main intersection, Piazza Venezia.

Commented a bus driver: "There were a few more people in the bus, but no fewer cars on the roads."

Some Romans motored to town, parked their cars as before and resorted to free short hops.

Jet Exceeds Rated Speed

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Russia's Tupolev-144 supersonic airliner has flown for several minutes at 1,556 miles an hour, faster than its rated cruising speed, Tass news agency reported.

The 120-seat airliner, which bears a close external resemblance to the Franco-British Concorde, is due to go into passenger service by 1975.

Search Halted

MIAMI (UPI) — The U.S. Coast Guard abandoned a search Thursday for the last of five men whose 53-foot pleasure cruiser Ixtapa sank 11 days ago. Three men have been rescued and one body recovered.

Birth Rate In U.S. Lowest Yet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States birth rate may have sunk this year to an all-time low of 17.4 births per thousand population, 4 per cent drop from the 1970 rate of 18.2 per thousand, the government reported Thursday.

Except for the previous record low of 17.5 births per thousand recorded in 1968, this year's estimated rate has not been approached since the depression of the 1930s. Even then, the rate was 18.4 per thousand in 1933 and 1936.

Groom Took Wife, Powder

'Old Friend' Best Man

OTTAWA (CP) — Funnybone man Tom Bell, Conservative whip, said in the Commons Thursday that "an old friend" of the federal Liberal government acted as best man at the Christmas Eve wedding of convicted murderer Yves Geoffroy.

He identified the "old friend" as Raymond Denis, executive assistant to the late Justice Minister Guy Favreau.

Denis was sentenced to two years in prison in 1966 for offering $20,000 to a government lawyer not to oppose freedom on bail for narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard.

Denis
. . . ex-liberal aide

Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer said he was not aware that Denis acted as Geoffroy's best man.

Geoffroy, serving a life sentence for killing his first wife, was allowed out of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary to get married.

He took a second wife and then a powder and hasn't been seen since.

Goyer told Bell that Geoffroy was allowed out to get married after prison officials consulted social workers and the prison chaplain.

Leaks, 'Crooks' Linked

OTTAWA (CP) — Commenting on the latest leak of a cabinet document, Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday that as long as there are crooks, and persons ready to condone crooks, these things will happen.

But in replying to a series of Commons questions on the issue, he said he hoped a way could be found to make various government documents available to the public.

Gerald Baldwin (PC—Peace River) had asked assurance that there would be no further leaks. But the prime minister said he could not guarantee the future conduct of any individual.

Trudeau made similar comments when asked about earlier leaks.

The latest leak involved a cabinet document on northern development in the next decade. It was published in Thursday's Globe and Mail.

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) asked whether Trudeau had considered appointing George Bain the Globe and Mail correspondent who wrote about several of the documents, to the privy council so he would be sworn to secrecy.

Before the daily question period began, Baldwin unsuccessfully sought the unanimous consent of the House to propose that the government introduce legislation to provide more freedom of information for Canadians.

There was also a tongue-in-cheek motion from Frank Howard (NDP — Skeena) commending Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien for making the document available and expressing the hope that other ministers would follow a similar course.

Trudeau told George Hees (PC — Prince Edward-Hastings) that ministers are thoroughly investigating their departments to discover the source of the leaks.

Hees asked whether it now was time to call in the RCMP. Trudeau thanked the Conservative MP for the suggestion that the "police be put on those who publish leaks."

He told Ran Harding (NDP — Kootenay West) it was his understanding that the document was a memorandum and not a cabinet decision. There were many documents relating to the government's goals and objectives.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) asked whether the prime minister considered copyrighting documents to prevent outside publication. Trudeau said there were legal and other aspects that would first have to be considered.

Paddle Wheeler Burns on Nile

CAIRO (AP) — A sidewheel paddle steamer that once belonged to King Farouk caught fire and sank during a tourist excursion on the upper Nile Tuesday night, killing one crew member and injuring 53 others. Eleven more sailors are missing.

Hold-Back On Milk Relaxed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Dairy Commission's hold-back policy on payments to shippers of manufacturing milk and cream is being relaxed, Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson announced Thursday.

"This change will further improve the returns of dairy farmers," he told the Commons, adding that a shortage of butter production in Canada has impelled the change.

He described it as a "special measure" for the current dairy year ending March 31.

Penguins Don't Drink Beer

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

Man Launches Assault Against Polar Pollution

McMURDO STATION, Antarctica (AP) — Where man goes, man pollutes, and this pristine white continent has not escaped the consequences of human exploration.

But now an anti-pollution conscience is greatly diminishing the insults that man has been wreaking on this environment.

For 14 years at this main United States base in Antarctica, trash, garbage, beer cans, plastic containers, old tires, abandoned machinery have been floating out to sea on melting ice floes, soon to sink to the bottom of McMurdo Sound.

In places, divers report, the seabed is becoming a highway of litter that crowds sponges out of living space.

For 14 years, raw sewage has been piped into the Sound, hard by the shoreline of Ross Island.

This summer season, a $175,000 incinerator capable of burning 600 pounds of material an hour is going into action.

Next summer a sewage treatment plant, costing $225,000 and using chemicals and bacteria, is expected to make sewage sterile for later disposition into the Sound.

Landfill sites are being sought for compacted cans and other non-burnable trash.

There are those who say man-made pollution is of no great consequence here, because man occupies only a few areas of the 5½-million-square-mile continent, and that penguins contribute more body waste by far than man does to the sea.

Conservationists and ecologists reply that man can do something to reduce the impact of his waste, while animals can't, and that penguins don't drink beer and throw away the cans.

Further, they say, discarded materials may last for many years in cold waters possessing fewer organisms than warm climes to act upon biodegradable materials.

Dr. Bruce Parker, a biologist, has warned that unless action is taken, this continent is "heading for a pollution crisis that could kill its value as an unparalleled site for research."

Scientists also express concern that nutrients from raw sewage might lead to a population explosion among star fish and sea urchins which could crowd out other sea species.

Driver Yields Cash And Life History

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police were hunting Thursday for a hitch-hiker who commandeered a Gastown restaurant manager's car early Thursday and forced him to hand over $150.

Clarke Jackson, 36, of West Vancouver, told police that as he drove home after finishing work he stopped to pick up a hitch-hiker and was forced at knifepoint to drive to a motor hotel and register under an alias.

He said he was forced to write down his life story, including names of banks, credit cards and family members.

The rider turned down an offered cheque for $150 and demanded cash instead.

Golds

LONDON (AP) — Thursday's closing gold prices in U.S. dollars an ounce: London $43.55; Paris $44.17; Frankfurt $43.62; Zurich $43.60; Hong Kong $45.50; Beirut $1,397 (a kilo).

Christmas Rally Turns Around

NEW YORK (AP) — The glitter disappeared Thursday from the stock market's Christmas rally as prices showed their first decline since the holiday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed off 4.59 at 889.07.

Analysts said the market succumbed to the dual pressures of last-minute tax selling and profit-taking.

Trading was dull through the day but picked up near the close, delaying the New York Stock Exchange tape at the bell by one minute.

In the news background, several West Coast banks cut their prime lending rates ¼ per cent, from 5⅛ per cent to 5¼, following the example set by New York banks two weeks ago.

The NYSE index of 1,300 common stocks fell 0.20 to $56.22.

Metals Up

TORONTO (CP) — Base metal issues edged fractionally higher while prices in most other major sectors closed lower in moderate trading. It was the market's second consecutive declining session.

Chrysler fell 1⅛ to $29, Rothmans 1 to $16, Sherritt ¼ to $14⅝, Canadian Superior Oil ⅝ to $43⅜, Falconbridge 1 to $79½ and Inco 1 to $31½.

International Utilities lost ½ to $43⅜, Scurry-Rainbow ½ to $14½, Canadian Imperial Bank ¼ to $24⅞, Moore ⅛ to $38 and Aquitaine ¼ to $24.

Molson Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices fell back as all sectors declined in light trading.

Leading gains on the Montreal Stock Exchange, Canadian Arena jumped 1¾ to $16¼ on 5,300 shares traded.

Canadian Arena, which owns the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and the Montreal Forum, announced Thursday that members of the Molson family have sold their majority interest in the company to a group of Montreal and Toronto businessmen.

Mixed Day

VANCOUVER — Prices were mixed in moderate trading. Turnover approached 2 million for the first time in two weeks. Ocean Cement, whose shareholders Wednesday voted acceptance of a takeover by Genstar, was up 25 cents to $30. Peace River Petroleum led oils, off 1½ cents at 16½. Afton led mines up 14 cents at $1.41.

Connally's Car Comments Rile Japanese

Why the $2,511 Markup?

By LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally, whose remarks often set off sparks, has aroused the ire of the Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association.

Connally was quoted as saying that, "While a Ford Pinto sells for $2,200 in the United States, it sells for more than $5,000 in Japan because of a high tariff and discriminatory commodity taxes."

Connally should have stopped while he was still accurate, says the Japanese group. It concedes that a Pinto sells for $5,500 in Japan but points out that the tariff duty and commodity tax on it amount only to $749. Together with a few other costs, that makes wholesale value of the Pinto when it reaches the Japanese dealer's showroom $2,989. What then causes the $2,511 markup?

The Japanese car makers say Ford causes it because Ford refuses to spend money on a distribution and servicing organization in Japan that will enable its Japanese dealers to achieve high volume. The dealer can't sell enough Pintos to pay his overhead unless the profit on each car is enormous.

The Japan Automobile Manufacturers Association charged bluntly that American car makers sold Connally a bill of goods in making him think they really want to sell cars in Japan.

Kenkishi Konishi, New York representative of the association, said what Detroit really wants is to buy a huge chunk of the Japanese automobile industry and is using charges of discrimination against American cars in Japan as a weapon to compel the Japanese government to allow Detroit's Big Three to accomplish this.

Konishi said the Japanese car makers are willing to accept American investment in their industry but not American control. Present law allows up to 50 per cent participation by foreign capital in car making newly established by merger. But foreign investment in existing Japanese car making concerns is limited and must be approved by the government.

Konishi said Japan frankly fears the vast financial power of Detroit if takeover bids were allowed. "Japanese producers cannot help but be alarmed when they see that the largest auto maker in Britain is not British owned but is a subsidiary of Ford Motor Co.," he said. "How would Americans like to see a foreign takeover of one of your basic industries?" Konishi asked.

Konishi said Detroit's reluctance to make the huge investments necessary to sell American-made cars in Japan at the same modest markups at which they are sold in the United States is understandable.

He said the plain truth is that most American cars are too large for Japanese roads, burn too much fuel and cost too much for Japanese pocketbooks. Also, he said, the automobile still is more or less a luxury in Japan. Few Japanese drive to work because train and bus service is excellent and parking space is scarce.

The Pinto, Chevrolet's Vega and American Motors' Gremlin are small enough for Japanese roads, Konishi said, but it doesn't really pay to set up an expensive distribution and marketing system for them in competition with Japanese cars.

Those Japanese who buy American cars, he said, are well-to-do and buy the vehicles for reasons having nothing to do with price.

Millions for Phones

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Telephone Company and its subsidiary, the Okanagan Telephone System, will spend $131 million on construction in 1972, B.C. Tel President Ernest Richardson said Thursday. He said it is the largest annual construction program in the company's history.

The bulk of the capital budget is allotted for expansion and improvement of long-distance switching and transmission systems and improvements to local switching and distribution systems.

Copper Mine Reopens Soon

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

It's been more than three years since copper ore was brought to the surface for processing at the Jordan River Mine. Indications are that production will again become a reality late in January.

Mine manager John Clyne said in an interview Thursday that work is progressing well as Crownex International and Pechiney Development, two Vancouver-based companies, rehabilitate the west coast mine that has operated intermittently since 1962 under various ownerships.

Clyne said that close to $2 million has been spent in the last 18 months on the project. He also added that contract for sale of the copper concentrate has not been signed yet but is expected to be soon. He declined to say who a possible purchaser might be.

The ore will be crushed by rod and ball mills when production gets underway, said Clyne, and the flotation method will be used to draw off the concentrate.

A trucking contract also has not been signed but when it is, the contractor will haul the concentrate to Hatch Point, near Cowichan Bay and Satellite Channel. The route is not known.

Capacity for the mill is estimated at 1,500 tons per day. Ore reserves, according to the Financial Post's Survey of Mines, is 1,323,607 tons of proven ore grading 1.22 per cent copper, 3,297,900 dons possible ore grading 0.91 per cent copper and 183,500 tons possible ore grading 1.50 per cent copper per ton.

The mine was originally opened by Cowichan Copper in February, 1963. Flooding by the Jordan River closed it down in December of that year. Production was not resumed until December of 1965 but then suspended again in September, 1966. It was resumed again early in 1967 but suspended once more in October, 1968.

Crownex, a wholly-owned subsidiary of Dison Development Ltd., acquired the property on a lease from Sunro Mines in October, 1969.

Exemption $100,000 Less

Just to straighten out Thursday's estate tax story carried in these pages, exemptions for a spouse should have read $60,000 not $160,000 as printed.

Clyde Nevin of Canada Permanent Trust, who had a busy morning reassurring his clients that the rules hadn't changed since the 1970 amendments, also detailed the clause with regard to estates left to charity.

Such estates must be left to a recognized charity; they must be to charities in B.C. and they must be used by the charity as they see fit, not for any specific purpose directed by the will.

Genstar's Offer Approved

Coincidental with the signing Wednesday for purchase of Ocean Cement Ltd.'s Wharf Street property by the city was approval in Vancouver of the sale of controlling interest in the company to Genstar Ltd. of Montreal.

Shareholders of Ocean Cement accepted Genstar's offer of $29 in cash per share or the option of Genstar's 6½ per cent subordinated debenture in the principal amount of $32. The debenture will have a 20-year conversion privilege at a rate equivalent to 2.3 shares of Genstar for each share of Ocean. The offer expires Jan. 13.

Bids for Pipeline Given Extension

The Public Utilities Commission has extended by one week the deadline for applications to build and operate a natural gas pipeline from the mainland to Vancouver Island.

The deadline is now noon Wednesday, J. F. K. English, commission chairman, said Thursday.

Reason for the extension, he said, was to give any other companies who wished to apply some extra time to prepare their submissions.

When the original deadline closed at midnight Wednesday, five companies had submitted applications for the pipeline. But English said he would not disclose the names of the firms until the final deadline.

Our Trade Plus May Be Slimmer

OTTAWA (CP) — Even with a vigorous export effort, Canada may experience a further drop in its favorable trade balance with the rest of the world in 1972, says Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin.

In a year-end review of economic conditions, issued Thursday, the minister also said inflationary pressures are likely to remain a matter of serious concern during the coming year.

"There has been little indication of decelaration in unit labor costs as average wage rate increases continued in 1971 to exceed gains in productivity by a wide margin," said the review.

Strong and sustained growth sufficient to reduce unemployment and take up the slack in the economy would be the primary aim of government policy in the new year.

Canada's export prospects for 1972 are strengthened by an expanding U.S. economy which has been given a lift by realignment of world currencies, says Pepin.

At the same time, the high exchange rate of the Canadian dollar relative to the U.S. dollar will make it more difficult for Canadian exporters to maintain their share of the expanding U.S. market.

A slower tempo of business activity in some other industrial countries may exert a dampening effect on Canadian sales to overseas markets, though a more favorable exchange rate with overseas customers should help offset this.

Imports are likely to continue rising sharply in line with mounting domestic demand.

"Even a vigorous and sustained export effort may not prevent some further diminution in Canada's balance in trade and other current transactions."

Canadian exports rose 5 per cent in 1971, following a 13-per-cent increase the preceding year. Imports, however, were 12 per cent higher than in 1970.

Canada's merchandise trade surplus fell from the 1970 record high of $3 billion to just over $2 billion.

Canada's balance on all current transactions will show a surplus for 1971, though small compared with the $1.1 billion surplus achieved in 1970.

The domestic economy moved forward more strongly in 1971, with output rising by about 6 per cent compared with increases of 3 per cent in 1970 and 5 per cent in 1969.

The employment trend as a consequence had strengthened notably. Employment for the year rose more than 2½ per cent, twice the 1970 rate of increase.

Nevertheless, the increase in jobs had not been sufficient to reduce unemployment. The seasonally-adjusted rate of joblessness was still about 6½ per cent in the final quarter of 1971.

The main source of strength in the national economy in 1971 was a renewed advance in consumer spending, reinforced by a vigorous upsurge in residential building.

Spending on consumer durables was at least 15 per cent higher in value terms, following a decline of 5½ per cent last year.

"Given proper vigilance Canadians can look forward to sustained improvement in economic conditions in the year ahead," says the resume.

Canadians Stayed At Home

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada made less from foreign travellers this year, but more from Canadians travelling at home, the Travel Industry Association of Canada says.

In a year-end statement by president F. G. Brander, the association says more Canadians travelled in Canada in 1971 than in any year other than 1967 — Centennial Year.

As a result, the association says Canada's travel trade deficit should drop to $165 million this year from $235 million in 1970.

World Airlines Outlook:

Rough, But Improved

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Air Transport Association predicted Wednesday that 1972 will be another rough but slightly-improved year for the world's scheduled airlines.

Director-General Knut Hammarskjold said in a statement that scheduled passenger traffic will increase by at least 7 per cent in 1972 to 270 million passengers and that scheduled freight traffic will increase by 10 per cent to 11,300 million tonne-kilometres — a standard of measure used by the aviation industry.

Hammarskjold said a recovery in economic growth, already under way, should extend into the new year and a "strong expansion in consumer spending is expected to have a positive effect on the demand for air transport services in 1972."

"These growth rates represent a significant improvement over the generally low 1971 growth rates, which were mainly due to unfavorable economic conditions in major traffic-generating countries."

But the director-general, who heads the Montreal-based trade association of 108 scheduled airlines, added several notes of criticism both for governments, consumer groups and member airlines themselves for seeking short-term benefits.

He said it is desirable that governments and manufacturers give priority to helping the world air transport industry solve its environmental and cost problems.

Busy, Busy, Busy For Air Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — In the three-day period immediately prior to Christmas Air Canada handled a record number of passengers on domestic and international flights.

The airline said in a statement Thursday it carried 101,700 passengers between Dec. 22-24. The total 11.5 per cent more than the 91,200 carried during the same three days in 1970.

The busiest day was Dec. 23 when the airline transported 36,500 passengers, up 4.6 per cent from the 34,900 carried on the same date last year.

Advance bookings for Jan. 2-3 indicate the airline will be carrying some 34,000 people on both days.

That one-day travel record was established Jan. 3, 1970, when 37,100 passengers flew with Air Canada.

Treasury Bills

OTTAWA (CP) — New 91-day Government of Canada treasury bills auctioned Thursday: $180 million at an average price and yield of 99.215 and 3.21 per cent. Last week, same amount and term, 99.220 and 3.15 per cent. 182-day: $40 million at 98.377 and 3.31 per cent. Last week, same amount and term, 98.413 and 3.23 per cent.

Arabian Nights Golf Provided by Royal Genie

Couscous on Cushions and a Classy Course

By BILL SHIRLEY
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

RABAT, Morocco — What's a nice little underdeveloped country like Morocco doing with a $50,000 golf tournament?

After all, only 400 of the 16 million inhabitants play the game. Of that exclusive group, about 25 are Moroccan. The others are French or service personnel from other nations.

For one thing, the government wants the world to notice Morocco.

That's the reason it recently held the first annual Moroccan International Golf Grand Prix and invited several hundred persons from around the world to a lavish week-long party.

ROYAL HOST

It was no run-of-the-mill tournament. The host was a king, the sponsor was a government and the tab was $120,000 — an official but conservative estimate.

The idea came from King Hassan II, the world's only royal golf nut and a man who has been under considerable fire since an abortive coup in July for devoting too much time to the game.

Moroccan officials say the king is really trying to improve his country's handicap in world tourism. The object of the tournament, they said, was to make people notice Morocco's splendid climate, fine hotels and restaurants and ancient and fabled casbahs.

The recent visitors (about 120 from the United States) were no ordinary tourists. There were 25 golf pros, including Billy Casper, Sam Snead, Doug Sanders and former U.S. Open champions Tony Jacklin and Orville Moody. And there were several international celebrities — Robert Goulet and Ray Bolger, and such members of the European jet set as Charlie Chaplin's son, Sidney, and Gunther Sachs, the German playboy and former husband of Brigitte Bardot.

Hassan provided royal treatment, literally rolling out the red carpet. It was a week no travel agent could have arranged, no millionaire could have bought.

American guests were flown from New York to Casablanca by chartered jet. From the time they stepped off the plane they were entertained lavishly, and at times personally, by the king, his younger brother, Prince Moulay Abdallah, the U.S. ambassador and the Moroccan secretary of tourism.

Two Royal Air Maroc jets whisked them from Casablanca to Maralkesh, Winston Churchill's favorite resort. An army transport plane hauled the 7000 pounds of luggage.

MOROCCAN LUXURY

At Marrakesh, the prince threw a black tie party at the Bahia Palace and the king hosted a luncheon at the Royal Golf Club — a five-course Moroccan meal right out of The Arabian Nights. Sitting on cushions and carpets in huge goatskin tents, guest ate lamb, pigeon, chicken and couscous, Moroccan style (with their fingers), while watching singing and dancing by Berber tribesmen.

The king then put his guests aboard the royal train for the trip from Marrakesh to Rabat. The maroon and cream streamliner, used only for special occasions, whistled nonstop through a countryside where shepherds still tend their flocks on cold nights.

In Rabat, there was another black tie dinner, a party at the ancient Tour Hassan Hotel, more luncheons and, oh yes, the first annual Moroccan International Golf Grand Prix.

FIRST-RATE COURSE

Surprisingly, the visitors found a beautiful, first-rate golf course, the Royal Golf Dar Es Salam, built by Robert Trent Jones in a national forest of cork-oak and eucalyptus trees. The course was so long and difficult that Moody, winner of the $12,000 first prize, was the only player who could break par for 72 holes. He shot 291, one under.

While the professionals were shooting for the $50,000 in cash, 75 amateurs were playing for expensive trophies of gold, silver and leather. The winners received their awards from the king at a reception in the Palais Royal.

In addition to plush Dar Es Salam, there are 12 other courses in the country, including the king's three private nine-hole courses at his palaces in Rabat, Fez and Skhirat.

In the United States, Dar Es Salam would have cost more than a million dollars. In Morocco it cost considerably less because it was constructed by the army, under the leadership of Gen. Mohammed Medbouh, who then headed the Moroccan Golf Federation.

The tournament was patterned after the Bob Hope Desert Classic because Medbouh had played at Palm Springs, Calif., last February (Casper was one of his partners) and helped his amateur team finish second.

INSPIRED PLAYER

Already the country's second-ranking golf nut, Medbouh was inspired at Palm Springs and he vowed to stage a tournament just like it. Hope's entry list was used to supply some of the guests.

However, the general was not present for the royal show. He masterminded the attempted assassination of Hassan July 10 and was killed, reportedly by his own men. More than 400 persons, including 10 of the country's 15 generals, either died in the assault on the king's summer palace at Skhirat or were executed in the bloodbath that followed.

ROYAL PRIVILEGES

There are advantages to being a golfing king. Starting times are no problem, there are no other foursomes to hold him up and his three-foot putts are "gimmes." As Casper says, "we wouldn't want him to be embarrassed if he missed one."

For the king's convenience, his three private courses have lights so he can play at night if it is too hot in the daytime or he has a busy day.

TOP ADVICE

When he needs help on his game, Hassan sends plane tickets and expense money to Harmon or Casper. With such top advice, Hassan in three years has progressed from a hacker to about a 12 handicap. He often shoots in the high 70s and low 80s, Casper said.

A little fellow (about 5-6, 135) he gets his distance with good timing. "He has a good swing," Casper says.

Before he got hooked on golf, Hassan tried other sports like horseback riding and gymnastics. He soon tired of them. Someone suggested golf, he summoned Harmon and the romance began.

A king who is a golf nut can't be all bad.

Happiness is a Steelhead in a Snowstorm

Jerry Jones, 17-year-old Californian, was the happiest fisherman around as he posed with 13-pound steelhead he took out of the Nanaimo River during Wednesday snowstorm. He was using rod and chest waders he received for Christmas. (See Alec Merriman on Page 9).—(Agnes Flett Photo)

Lee Gets Another Award As Top 1971 Sportsman

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — It seems to be unanimous. Golfer Lee Trevino is the man of the year in sports.

The popular Texas pro, already selected as Sportsman of the Year by Sports Illustrated, Thursday was announced as the choice of the St. Louis Sporting News for the same honor.

Trevino, who made golfing history this year by winning the U.S., Canadian and British Open tournaments within a month, wound up with five tournament victories and earnings of $231,201. That's the second highest total in golf history, topped only by Jack Nicklaus, who won $244,400 this year.

Trevino led up until earlier this month although he underwent an emergency appendectomy during the summer and missed six weeks of play.

He is the fourth winner of the Sporting News award, which went to Detroit pitcher Denny McLain in 1968, New York (Mets) pitcher Tom Seaver in 1969 and college basketball coach John Wooden last year.

Cougars, Jets Break Negotiations

Poole Eligible for Next Two Games

Victoria Cougars are still hopeful of making a deal for two players who have chosen to remain inactive rather than play here, but it doesn't look as if it will involve Winnipeg Jets.

"It's impossible, that's all off," was the Thursday comment of general manager Eric Bishop, who has been talking trade with the Jets for some time and thought that it was only a matter of time until an agreement was reached.

It had been rumored that Bishop was going to send Rod Loynachan and Wayne Bianchin, two disenchanted forwards, to the Jets for forward Reg Malinoki.

Whether such was the case remains conjecture now that talks have broken off.

"The deal they wanted to make and the one I had in mind didn't bear much resemblance," said the disappointed Bishop.

TRADE POSSIBLE

But Bishop, who has been wheeling and dealing all season in an effort to at least make a run at a Western Canada Hockey League playoff spot, is quite certain he isn't far away from yet another trade.

"A lot of clubs would like to get Loynachan and I'm sure something will be worked out."

He didn't have the same confidence regarding a deal for Bianchin, a husky winger who left the club asking to be traded and is waiting it out at his home in Nanaimo.

"Just one nibble," was Bishop's answer when asked if he thought he could make a trade for Bianchin.

PERMISSION GRANTED

Meanwhile, the Cougars have been given permission to use Ron Poole, 17-year-old Victoria centre, up until Jan. 5.

Poole, who had been playing with Penticton Broncos of the B.C. Junior Hockey League, became the centre of a controversy when he returned to Victoria ostensibly to join the Cougars as a replacement.

Broncos protested to the WCHL and the BCJHL and everyone has been marking time since.

The matter is expected to be settled at a meeting in Vancouver next Wednesday. Attending will be Bishop, BCJHL-president Dennis Coates, Penticton-president Dr. Arnold Lowden and Scotty Munro, owner of the Calgary Centennials who was appointed WCHL representative at the league meeting in Edmonton last Tuesday.

Dr. Lowden said Thursday that Poole had been given a "conditional release" to play with the Cougars until Jan. 5, which is the date of the meeting. Pending the approval of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association, Poole will be eligible to play here Saturday against Regina Pats and on Tuesday against the visiting Vancouver Nats.

MINNEAPOLIS — Beaten three times and tied once in their previous five games, Minnesota North Stars Thursday left a record home crowd of 15,752 convinced they have ended their slump by outplaying Boston Bruins before settling for a 2-2 tie.

The battle between the division runner-ups was the only National Hockey League action of the night. It moved the Bruins within three points of the East Division lead and the North Stars within eight points of Chicago Black Hawks.

Beaten only once in their last 21 games and now unbeaten in eight successive games, the Bruins needed an outstanding display of goaling from Gerry Cheevers before splitting the points.

Cheevers turned aside 44 shots, many of them in sensational fashion, in a game which produced 86 shots on goal. Minnesota-veteran Gump Worsley, although not having quite as many tough shots, played well in blocking 38 shots.

Barry Gibbs, scoring during a first-period power play, and Jude Drouin, coming through early in the third period, got the Minnesota goals. Phil Esposito and Johnny McKenzie scored for Boston, both in the second period.

Esposito's goal was his 30th of the season, making this the fifth consecutive season he has reached that figure.

FIRST PERIOD

Next game: Tonight — Regina at Vancouver.

Tom Lysiak took over the lead in the Western Canada Hockey League scoring race from teammate Stan Weir Thursday night when he scored four goals and added five assists in powering Medicine Hat Tigers to a 12-6 win over Edmonton Oil Kings in Medicine Hat.

Lysiak scored two goals in the first period and two more in the second and assisted on three of Derek Kuntz's four goals. Lysiak's other assists were on goals by Jeff Ablett and Weir. Lysiak has 76 points and Weir 74.

The Tigers' other goals were scored by Lief Jackobsen and Dick Jellema.

Don Kozak scored three times to lead the Oil Kings and the other goals were scored by Randy Smith, Terry Smith and Darcy Rota.

There were 26 penalties assessed in the hard-hitting game, 14 to the Oil Kings, including a game misconduct to coach Brian Shaw in the second period.

Shaw was ejected after jumping onto the railing following a fight between Henry Van Drunen of Edmonton and Bob Gassoff of Medicine Hat.

The win moved the Tigers to within five points of the second-place Oil Kings in the league's western Division and left them seven points ahead of Newk Westminster Bruins, 7-4 winners of visiting Saskatoon Blades.

It was the second loss in three games on the coast for the Blades, who crashed, 7-4, Tuesday night in Memorial Arena to Victoria Cougars and then recovered Wednesday night to hammer Vancouver Nats, 11-1.

The Bruins had to outscore the Blades, 4-2, in the third period for their victory after the teams battled through a scoreless first period and split six goals evenly in the second period.

Lorne Henning, one of the league's most promising players, scored two goals and had two assists for the Bruins.

Bernie Lukowich scored two goals — including what turned out to be the winner midway through the third period — and added an assist while Vic Mercredi also scored twice for the Bruins, who won their fourth consecutive game.

Ron Kennedy scored New Westminster's other goal.

Bob Bourne and Murray Myers both scored twice for the Blades and Russ Walker got the other goal.

In the league's only other game Thursday night, Donn McLaughlin scored three goals to lead Brandon Wheat Kings to a 7-3 win over Flin Flon Bombers in Brandon.

Mt. Douglas Wins Crown In Whyte Hoop Tournament

Mt. Douglas Rams, on a third-quarter charge, captured the 11th annual Bob Whyte invitational basketball tournament Thursday at Central Junior High School.

Rams broke up a tight game after the intermission and went on to a 77-53 triumph over Reynolds Roadrunners, the defending champions in the event.

In the consolation final preliminary, Courtenay Towhees collapsed completely in the final half to allow Mount View Hornets to score an easy 55-29 win.

Rams and Roadrunners battled to a 15-15 deadlock in the first quarter and Rams took a 30-27 lead at halftime. In the third quarter, Rams scored 23 points while Roadrunners had their troubles, scoring only six points on four foul shots and one field basket.

Bert Zethof led the Rams with 18 points and Leon Mitchell, who had 32 points in Reynolds' 80-44 win Wednesday over Mount View, had 16 for Roadrunners. Greg Gardner had a 16-point performance for the winners.

Mount View led, 27-22, at the half and outscored Courtenay, 11-2, in the third quarter and had a 17-5 margin in the final quarter. Towhees managed only five foul shots, all good, and a field basket in the last half.

SHARE HONORS

Dennis Daviault and Gary Budd shared the scoring honors for Hornets with 18 points each. Daviault had an outstanding opening half, scoring all but two of his points before the intermission. Mike Smith and Stu Gardland were the top scorers for Courtenay with eight points each.

MT. DOUGLAS (77) — Greg Gardner 16, Bert Zethof 18, Ron Smith 6, Bent Hansen 5, Kevin Worth 10, Harry Hitchman, John Tucker 4, John Champion 8, Randy Jackson 4, John Evans 2, Wayne Robinson 4.
REYNOLDS (53) — Mike Finlayson 3, Rich Jones 11, Dan Ireland 8, Leon Mitchell 16, Brian Montgomery 4, John Speller 2, Terry Bains 3, Tom Jones, Barry Scroggs 4, Doug Klingspohn.

MOUNT VIEW (55) — Kevin Gilbert 2, Dennis Daviault 18, Bruce Lubinich 6, Vic Teng 2, Gary Budd 18, Norm Baker 2, Navjeet Ghag 1, Lou Rowley, Glen Alexander 2, Dave Haglstrom, Kurt Robb 4.
COURTENAY (29) — Bob Hitchcock 3, Wolf Ilmer 2, Mike Smith 8, Stu Garland 8, Bob Watson 4, Dave Douglas, Rob Lyle 2, Dennis Webber 2, Doug Bruce, John Baldwin, Pete Hurley, Scott Ferris.

Host Club Wins Midget Jamboree

NORTH VANCOUVER — Host North Shore won the B.C. midget hockey jamboree Thursday night with an 8-3 victory over Arbutus in the final of the 24-team, four-day tournament at the North Shore Winter Club.

North Shore reached the final by blasting Victoria Metro Toyota, 10-0, in one semi-final game earlier Thursday and Arbutus edged Prince George, 4-3, to gain the other final berth.

In the "B" final, Richmond beat Noth Kamloops, 6-5, in a thriller.

Doug Galloway was named the final game's outstanding player, scoring one goal and assisting on two others for the winners. North Shore, which started the tournament with a 9-0 shellacking over Esquimalt, finished with four wins and outscored their opponents, 34-4, in the march to the title.

Tim O'Brian was the scoring leader for North Shore in the game against Victoria, scoring two goals and picking up three assists.

Stuart Ostland of Arbutus was named the tournament's most valuable forward, Robin Sadler of North Shore was selected as the most valuable defenceman and D'Arcy Koch of Prince George was picked the top goalkeeper in the tournament.

Chamberlain Again Key Figure As Lakers' Streak Reaches 30

Los Angeles Lakers, with Wilt Chamberlain again controlling the boards, Thursday extended their record National Basketball Association winning streak to 30 games by rolling to a 122-106 victory over Seattle SuperSonics in Seattle.

Chamberlain pulled down 24 rebounds to spark the overwhelming fast break used by the Lakers, and this time it was Jim McMillan who led the Los Angeles club in scoring, contributing 34 points. Twelve of them came in the last stages of the first half and left Los Angeles with a 56-45 bulge at half-time.

But the SuperSonics, led by Spencer Haywood, who finished with 34 points, and Don Smith, who had a 25-point game, came storming back to take an 83-82 lead with 10 minutes left.

The Lakers then did again what they have done so often in their amazing streak. They set an unmatchable pace, hitting on 20 of 26 field-goal attempts in the final quarter.

Scores of other NBA games on Thursday: Baltimore 110, New York 102; Golden State 128, Detroit 122; Houston 129, Atlanta 115; Chicago 117; Portland 92; Phoenix 123, Buffalo 102.

Track Records Tumble

SASKATOON (CP) — Two runners from the United States lived up to their star billing with easy victories when the seventh annual Saskatchewan Indoor Games ended Thursday night.

But Martin McGrady of Los Angeles and George Young of Casa Grande, Ariz., had to share the spotlight with Canadian athletes who smashed six native records during the two-day track and field meet.

McGrady, undefeated during 12 indoor races in 1970 and the world indoor record holder for the 600 yards, won the invitational event in one minute, 12.4 seconds. His world record time is 1:07.6.

Young, three-time Olympic competitor and world indoor record holder for the three miles, won the invitational men's two miles in 8:46.

JUMP MARK SET

Claude Ferrange, 19, of Montreal cleared seven feet on his first leap to break the Canadian native men's high jump record of six feet, 11 inches, held jointly by former Courtenay athlete, John Hawkins, and Rick Cuttell, both of the University of British Columbia.

Newcomer Glenda Reiser, 16, of Ottawa, who only started "serious competition" last June, finished second to veteran international campaigner, Doris Brown of Seattle, in two events but set two Canadian native midget records.

In Thursday's 1500-metre race, won by Miss Brown, 29, in 4:23.7, Miss Reiser was second in 4:31.4, which is 3.1 seconds better than the midget record set by Doreen Martens of Vancouver in 1970.

On Wednesday, Miss Brown, co-holder of the world record for 880 yards, won the 800 metres by 50 yards in 2:08.5 and Miss Reiser was second in 2:12.8 to beat Sheila Maharg's midget record of 2:15.5 set in 1968.

Biggest surprise Wednesday was the defeat of Debbie Brill of Haney by Brenda Staffanson of UBC and formerly of Nanaimo in the invitational women's high jump.

Clansmen Boost Viking Streak

Powerful Simon Fraser University Clansmen of Burnaby extended University of Victoria Vikings' losing streak to eight games by downing the Vikings, 89-60, Thursday in a men's exhibition basketball game at UVic gym.

In the preliminary junior varsity men's exhibition game, SFU walloped the UVic Jayvees, 86-45.

Eilan Sloustcher held the hot hand in the opening half, scoring 16 points to lead the Clansmen to a 50-29 margin. In the second half, he was held to one point but Larry Clark, who had 11 points in the opening half, picked up 10 more to finish with 21 points.

Gord Hoshal led the Vikings with 21 points, 13 in the final half. Captain Alex Devlin of the Clansmen also had 17 points for the winners, who whipped the Vikings at SFU, 112-67, on Tuesday.

FINE SHOOTING

Both clubs shot well from the foul line, Clansmen getting 31 points from 43 attempts for a 72.1 per cent average and Vikings sinking 22 of 33 shots for a 66 per cent average. Clark was outstanding for SFU from the line, converting 11 of 12 throws.

Luckily for Vikings, only two of the eight losses have been in Western Canada Inter-Collegiate Athletic Association league play.

Doug Walton of UVic Jayvees had 20 of his team's 45 points. Jim Chernoff topped the visitors with 19 points.

CLANSMEN (89) — Jim Ciccone 8, Alex Devlin 17, Rudy Wiebe 8, Eilan Sloustcher 17, Bill Oliver 2, Werner Spann 2, Ken Olynyk 2, Rick Kazanowski 2, Vern Porter 8, Dave Coutu 2, Larry Clark 21.

Molsons Sell Canadiens, Forum, Voyageurs To Businessmen for Estimated $30 Million

The thaw seems to be starting, and that means fishing conditions will change rapidly. Iced-in marinas on the salt-chuck will be able to get boats out almost immediately. Rivers that have been low could reach flood stages if there is a rapid melt. Snow-plugged access to river fishing spots could become a terrible mess.

But the change in weather which will mean higher water and cold water racing to the estuaries will send those little signals to the steelhead that are waiting to ascend into the rivers for their spawning runs.

Meanwhile, if you can get to some of the rivers that are fed from higher levels which remain at the freezing level, you could find those low-water river conditions that just beg for anglers to try catching steelhead on a weighted salmon-egg fly and fly rod.

Snow conditions haven't dampened the enthusiasm of steelheaders, who have been crowding the river banks in great numbers and getting some good fishing. But, it has meant a great deal of pressure on the more easily accessible spots.

Cowichan River has been quite good below the Silver Bridge, around the White Bridge. And for some of those hardy anglers who have been getting into Riverbottom fishing spots and to the waters below Skutz Falls it has been exceptional. One angler has taken 16 steelhead from the Cowichan already this winter.

The Cowichan has been a little low. It is one river that will likely rise slowly and should be in good condition this weekend.

The Nanaimo River has been low, has had lots of fishing pressure, and has been producing only a few steelhead. Seventeen-year-old California visitor Jerry Jones took a 13-pounder below the highway bridge on the Nanaimo in a snowstorm this week on an Ernie Johnson steelhead fly. He was trying out his Christmas presents . . . a steelhead rod and chest waders.

Little Qualicum has been producing a few steelhead.

Puntledge has been fair, Tsable is worth a try. It is early for the Oyster, but it has been producing steelhead.

The Boxing Day steelhead derby in the Alberni Valley recorded 19 fish, 11 more than last year. Scotty Robinson was the winner, for the second successive year, this time with a 15-pounder. Most of the Alberni steelhead have been coming from the Somass. There has been three and four feet of snow along the Ash. Sarita River has been producing some steelhead.

Campbell River has been maintained at low water over the holiday period, but anglers have been taking some fish. Lower reaches of Quinsam have been fair, but access to upper reaches has been all but impossible. The Gold has been pretty well a snowshoe proposition.

The Sooke had a good run of steelhead just before Christmas. A thaw should bring in another run.

★ ★ ★

Ice around marinas has slowed down winter Chinook fishing, but the Sooke to Oak Bay waters have been producing an average of 1.4 chinooks to a boat. Pedder Bay has been iced in for a week or two. Saanich Inlet marinas were iced in most of this week, but those who have been getting out have been averaging 3.4 fish to a boat, mostly grilse and small jacks.

Sidney waters have been producing chinooks around Coal and Dock Island on small Strip Teaser and Hootchies, fished deep with 150 feet of line. James Island waters have also been producing.

Lenn Lambrecht, who operates the Genoa Bay Marina, says fishing for winter chinooks in those waters has been good, especially around Separation Point and in Sansum Narrows around Bold Bluff where moochers have been taking them and Burial Island. Crofton, Chemainus, Tent, Thetis and Kuper Island waters have been fair for grilse and chinooks, fished deep with Hootchies or small spoons.

Nanaimo waters have been giving up chinooks up to 21 pounds.

Campbell River mouth has been iced in for the past week, but yesterday's rains should free the boats so anglers can go after the chinooks in Duncan Bay.

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League came under new ownership Thursday when a group of Canadian businessmen purchased controlling interest in the club's parent company — the Canadian Arena Co.

The group, headed by Montreal lawyer Jacques Courtois and including Edward and peter Bronfman of Montreal and John Bassett of Toronto, purchased approximately 700,000 of the 1,025,000 shares from the Molson brothers — David, William and Peter.

It thus gained control of the Canadiens, the Montreal Forum, and Nova Scotia Voyageurs — the Canadiens' American Hockey League farm team.

PRICE UNKNOWN

While no firm purchase price was announced, the NHL team and the Forum are believed to be worth close to $30 million. Canadian Arena Co., shares closed at $16.25 on the Montreal Stock Exchange following announcement of the sale.

The current going rate for an NHL franchise is $6 million, with the new clubs still required to pay $40,000 for each player drafted to stock its team. Buffalo Sabres and Vancouver Canucks joined the league at these prices last season, and earlier Thursday it was announced that Atlanta and Long Island will join the NHL next season at the same price.

In addition, Long Island must pay a $5-million indemnification to New York Rangers for territorial rights.

LAND VALUABLE

While the land on which the Montreal Forum stands is carried on the books at approximately $400,000, estimated real estate value is in the neighborhood of $5 million.

Financing for the purchase was handled by the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The Molsons had been majority shareholders in the Canadian Arena Co., since 1968.

Edward and Peter Bronfman are cousins to Charles Bronfman, principal shareholder in Montreal Expos. However, they hold no interests in the National League baseball club.

They have made their mark on Canada's financial community mainly through real estate developments.

The Bronfman brothers are principals in Edper Investments Ltd.

MINORITY MEMBER

Bassett enters as a minority shareholder in the group through his ownership of Baton Broadcasting Ltd. of Toronto. He joined Harold Ballard and the late Stafford Smythe in 1961 in buying Maple Leaf Gardens, which own the NHL Leafs, from Conn Smythe.

Bassett was chairman of the Gardens board until he resigned last January. Last September, Ballard and Smythe bought out Bassett's approximately 25-per-cent interest in the Gardens for $5.8 million.

At the same time, Bassett announced that Baton Broadcasting has acquired 99.45 per cent of the Argonaut Football Club of the Eastern Football Conference, buying up $2,250,000 worth of stock held by several other shareholders.

Courtois, a Queen's Counsel, is chairman and president of Gaz Metropolitan as well as a director of the Bank of Nova Scotia, British Northwestern Insurance Co., Canada Life Assurance Co., among others.

As spokesman for the new group, Courtois stressed it will continue to operate all hockey teams owned by Le Club de Hockey Canadien Inc., and the Forum "to provide sports fans with the fine facilities and the exciting brand of hockey they have become accustomed to."

Both David Molson and Courtois said the change of ownership will not affect the operation of the hockey club. All key management personnel, including vice-president and general manager Sam Pollock and coach Scotty Bowman, will remain.

Stadium Plans Show Thin Concrete Dome

SEATTLE (AP) — Preliminary designs for a Seattle stadium seating 67,000 for football and about 61,000 for baseball, probably under a thin concrete dome, were revealed this week.

The design drawings submitted to the King County Design Commission show a circular stadium. The interior has three principal seating levels, with four levels in two areas to be shared by news media and the public.

A concrete dome, with an average thickness of six inches, appears the most economical method of covering the stadium, John Christiansen, a representative of the design team said.

Bids probably will be received for wood and steel domes, he added.

The stadium is scheduled to be built just south of Seattle's central business district on a 39.5-acre site where the King Street railroad station stands.

The site, however, is opposed by a citizens' group which hopes to halt construction, and to place an initiative on the September 1972 ballot.

The stadium will not be air conditioned in the usual sense. And industrial spot-cooling concept is to be used to cool only certain areas, said Lloyd Christofferson, another member of the design team.

Construction is to be done requiring bidders to keep their on a design-and-build method, bids within specific design limitations. This is an effort to keep the cost of the project within the $40 million approved by voters nearly four years ago.

Lease Deadline Wins Extension

HAMILTON (CP) — This city's chances of getting a 15,000-seat arena, with a World Hockey Association team as the main tenant, appeared brighter Thursday.

John Agro, the Hamilton lawyer acting for local WHA franchise holders, said he will recommend an extension of the deadline for signing an arena lease.

Last week, Mr. Agro had advised Mayor Vic Copps the WHA team must have some commitment from the city for a major-league arena by 5 p.m. Thursday.

The mayor indicated it would be impossible for the city to meet that deadline with a firm position on the availability of a 15,000-seat arena for next hockey season.

LITTLE INTEREST

Board of control had shown little interest in the proposal of a St. Catharines businessman that involved a guarantee by the city of a $700,000 return over a 35-year mortgage period.

The mayor said Wednesday a second offer would be made for a 15,000-seat arena by a Hamilton construction company.

Mr. Agro said he was impressed with the Hamilton firm's proposal after meeting with its president this week.

He said he would recommend to WHA franchise holders Douglas Michel and Jim McCreath of Hamilton that the deadline for signing the lease be extended to give the city an opportunity to deal with the new offer.

He said one difficulty was the deadline facing the WHA franchise holders themselves — reportedly a $75,000 payment they must make to the league at the end of the month.

Mr. Agro said he would suggest to Mr. Michel and Mr. McCreath that they attempt to get some extension of this league deadline.

The WHA franchise holders say they are not interested in building the arena themselves.

Boe, Putnam To Head New NHL Franchises

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors has awarded conditional franchises to Nassau Sports Ltd., and Atlanta Hockey Inc., for operation in the 1972-73 season, NHL president Clarence Campbell announced Thursday.

The additional two franchises, which will operate in the Nassau County Arena in Long Island, N.Y., and the Atlanta Coliseum, will bring NHL strength to 16 teams for next season.

Nassau Sports Ltd., will be headed by Roy Boe of Long Island, as president. The operating organization will be a partnership which will include eight Long Island residents who have been associated with Boe in other enterprises, including New York Nets of the American Basketball Association.

Atlanta Hockey Inc., will be headed by William R. Putnam as president and the organization will be made up of seven or eight prominent Atlanta businessmen.

HAWK OWNER

Also associated with the Atlanta organization is Thomas G. Cousins, owner of Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association and prime mover in the construction of the Atlanta Coliseum.

The cost of each new franchise has been set at $6 million, with the new Long Island organization also reported required to pay an additional $5 million imdemnification to New York Rangers because of the new club's proximity to the latter's home ice.

Putnam was the original president of Philadelphia Flyers when that club was accepted into the NHL in the original expansion to 12 teams from six for the 1967 season.

UNANIMOUS CHOICE

In making his announcement, Campbell said the NHL governors had "approved unanimously the recommendations of the special study and finance committees, which conducted lengthy hearings from a number of applicants last Tuesday in New York."

The formal admission of the two new entries will take place at the league's annual all-star game and meeting in Bloomington, Minn. — home of the North Stars—Jan. 24-25.

Skillings Wins PCCA Spiel In Three Straight Matches

NORTH VANCOUVER — Steve Skillings' Victoria rink retained its hot hand Thursday to win the senior division of the Pacific Coast Curling Association junior bonspiel here at Vancouver Capilano Club.

Winners of the Vancouver Island zone title Wednesday, the Victoria quartet left Nanaimo following the bonspiel and went to the Mainland where they took three straight games Thursday.

Skillings, with third Murray Walker, second Bruce Coulter and lead Bill Okell, downed Steve Leesing's host-club rink, 9-6, in their opener, beat Jim Lait, also of Capilano, 8-4, in the second game and clinched it with a 6-3 decision over Brad Miller of Cloverdale.

Only four rinks, one each from Vancouver Island and Fraser Valley and two from the host Vancouver zone, took part in the round-robin competition.

In the junior-division competition, Vern Stevens of Cloverdale downed Al Thompson of Burnaby's McPherson Club, 8-1, in the sudden-death final game which was conceded after eight ends.

Thompson, 2-0 prior to meeting Paul Holland's Duncan rink in the final game of the round-robin, lost an 11-3 decision to the Islanders, forcing the deciding game. Holland, with third Robert Young, secnd Wade Hill and lead Steven Williams, wasn't so fortunate in his first two games, losing 6-10 to Mark Moir of North Shore Winter Club and dropping an 8-5 decision to Stevens. Holland's rink also captured the Island title on Wednesday.

Canada Drops Two Decisions

STOCKHOLM (CP-AP) — Two Canadian hockey teams lost their games Thursday in two international tournaments here.

Galt Hornets went down 7-3 to Soedertaelje of Sweden in the Ahearne Cup while Swedish champions Bryanes of Gaevle defeated Calgary Stampeders 6-5 in the Star Cup.

NFL Veteran Ends Career

CLEVELAND (AP) — Offensive tackle Dick Schafrath has announced his retirement from professional football, ending a 13-year career with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

Schafrath, 34, said Wednesday he was taking a full time job with Mark McCormack and Associates, an agency that represents various sports figures. He has been working part time for the agency for several years.

Penguins Cut Two Players

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Penguins of the National Hockey League Wednesday have sent goalkeeper Jim Rutherford and rookie defenceman Joe Noris to their Hershey farm club.

Rutherford, 22, played in 10 games with the Penguins and had a 3.37 goals-against-average. He was acquired from the Detroit Red Wings during the off season.

Noris, 20, was Pittsburgh's third round amateur draft choice, and appeared in 35 games, scoring two goals and five assists. Noris, whose home is in Denver, was the only American-born player on the Penguin roster.

Boston Names Mound Coach

BOSTON (AP) — Lee Stange, 35, an 11-year major league veteran, has been named pitching coach of Boston Red Sox, succeeding Harvey Haddix, who quit for personal reasons after just one season.

General manager Dick O'Connell said he "reluctantly accepted" Haddix's resignation, but was pleased to be able to promote Stange from within the American League organization.

New Zealand Wins Yachting Series

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — New Zealand was declared provisional winner of the Southern Cross Cup Thursday. The four-race yachting series ended with the 650-mile Sydney-to-Hobart race.

New Zealand craft scooped the first three placings in the Sydney-Hobart race on corrected times. The provisional results showed Pathfinder won the event, Runaway was second and Wai-Aniwa was third.

The New Zealand yachts, all one-tonners, also won the one-ton section of the race.

Officials of the Australian Cruising Yacht Club said that the final results would not be declared until all the craft had finished the race. Early tonight, 49 yachts were still to arrive in Sydney.

First across the finish line Wednesday night was the big American yawl Kialoa II, followed by the New Zealand cutter Buccaneer and two other American Yachts, Ondine II and Americans Eagle. But none of these four was among the top nine on corrected times.

Gower Heads New College

Anglican, United Students Study Together

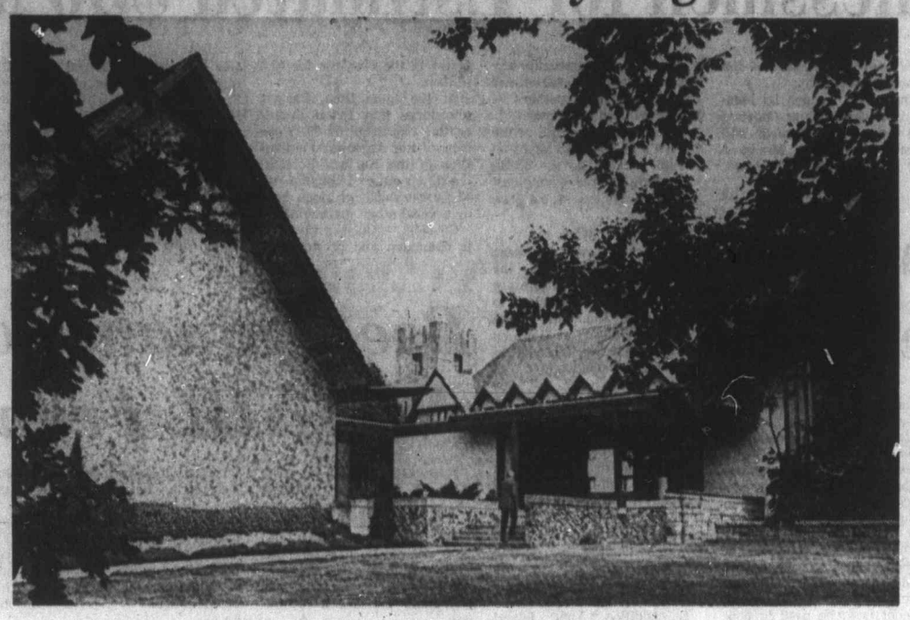
Anglican Archbishop Godfrey Gower, who was Metropolitan of B.C. from 1968 until his retirement in 1971, has been elected chancellor of the Vancouver School of Theology, the joint Anglican-United college.

He will be installed at an inaugural convocation of the new school at the end of January.

Gower was co-chairman of the national committee that produced the Principles of Union which began a new stage in the relationship between the Anglican and United Churches of Canada and the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Before he became Metropolitan of B.C., Gower was Bishop of New Westminster.

As chancellor of VST he will preside at the inaugural convocation.



Anglican and United Churches share one school

The new school was formed last spring after the General Synod of the Anglican Church and the General Council of the United Church had approved the principle of ecumerical theological education. The two founding colleges — Anglican Theological College and Union College — gave up their separate identities.

The combined school is the result of studies which began in the parent colleges in 1966. In 1969 the noted theological educator, Dr. Charles Taylor, was engaged as an adviser. His report was the basis for the decision to develop an ecumenical theological institution.

A 12-man implementation committee was appointed with Archdeacon Dougls Watney and Prof. Reginald Wilson as executive officers.

Representatives of other denominations — Lutheran, Presbyterian, Roman Catholic — and of Regent College and Northwest Council on Theological Education also shared in the planning.

The school is located at 6000 Iona Drive, Vancouver 8.

Majority of Dropouts Hits Lack of Meaning

By DAN THRAPP
Colonist-Los Angeles Times Service

When people drop out of church it is not due to the institution's involvement in social issues or similar dissatisfaction, but because the church has ceased to be important to them, a survey in the United States and Canada shows.

Many people, as an excuse for no longer attending services, say the church is "too activist," or "too involved," or is taking on interests at variance with the gospel.

But these people often are rationalizing — digging for an excuse to cover up a general lag in interest in spiritual matters — the survey suggests.

This and other information was elicited from 3,500 in-depth interviews at 21 denominations in the United States and Canada over a two-year period. The results were summarized by the national council of churches, which, however, did not conduct or sponsor the survey.

Despite the findings about why people drift away from the church, pastors and laymen interviewed expressed faith in the future of organized religion.

Rated least important in reasons why people leave organized religion were "social involvement of the church, doctrinal differences, and inadequate church facilities."

Rather, they drift away, according to most pastors queried, because of a feeling that "the church is not important in modern life," or lack of time, or a compensating interest in other organizations in the community — in other words, they do not feel that what the church offers the today has much meaning.

Most of these questioned said they believed the major function of the local church is winning others to Christ and providing worship for members. Modern churches often forget these basic responsibilities, they said.

The study also sought to obtain a profile of theological beliefs, "psychological orientations" and reasons why people support — or do not support —their churches.

Most ministers and laymen believe that the denomination they belong to is important and deserves financial support.

But they also feel that the money they give or transmit to denominational headquarters generally should be labeled for some specific objective, such as for the training of ministers or the support of home or foreign missions.

However, even though church members sometimes disapprove of the things their national leaders do with contributions, most do not believe that withholding their donations is the answer.

Fewer than one-fourth of the respondents felt strongly enough about their disagreement with denominational policies to wish to keep their donations within the local rea.

Why do people give?

On this central question, the survey showed most people give because of a sense of gratitude to God and a religious awareness of the privilege of being able to share.

Phsychotherapist Views Influences:

Religion Should Aid, Not Destroy

By KEN BRIGGS
Colonist Newsday Service

Has religion done more harm or good? Thinkers have always divided sharply over the question.

At the turn of the century, for example, the two extremes were well represented. Marx's famous diatribes against religion were being widely circulated just when Billy Sunday's Christ-as-panacea crusades were firing up.

Then William James happened along with a sane-headed third alternative. Abandoning polenics, the pioneer psychologist said religion could be either good or bad, depending how and why it was used. He then illustrated those views in his groundbreaking book, Varieties of Religious Experience.

Complex Subject

James' ideas have appealed especially to those who refuse to dismiss religion summarily or to praise it uncritically. Writing in 1902, the Harvard scholar constructed an enduring model for sorting out the tangled influences of a highly complex subject.

One of those who has profited from that model is Dr. James Ranck, a psychotherapist who combines private practice with teaching at the William Alanson White institute of psychiatry in New York City and at Drew University in Madison, N.J. The focus of Ranck's interest: The healthy and unhealthy impact of religion.

Although the bulk of his research has been conducted with protest subjects, Ranck feels that his conclusions apply to any religious group. He does not endorse or indict particular religious bodies but depicts forms of pathology that may appear among any and all.

More Creative

When religion is functioning properly, Ranck says, it subjects become more creative, more in tune with themselves and increasingly aware of their freedom within the bounds of reality.

The other half of Ranck's contention is that religion can cause severe emotional damage. It may produce unnecessary guilt, childishness, overdependency and authoritarianism.

"Religion," Ranck says, "can lend itself just as readily to destructive as to constructive aspects of personality."

Ranck is grounded in both psychology and religion. His background includes a missionary upbringing and service as a U.S. Navy chaplain as well as doctoral work in psychology at Columbia.

Personal Troubles

As a therapist, Ranck encountered personal troubles brought on by bad religious experience. At the same time he continued to believe that religion could be enormously beneficial and that spiritual questions lie at the core of most emotional difficulties. "I agree with Jung, who once said that anyone over 40 sooner or later uncovers the fundamental problem — it is a religious one. It has to do with where you come down in your value system and belief," he says.

Psychiatry generally has had a low regard for religion, Ranck notes, and "tends to write off all of it as pathological." Partly to "correct what I consider a serious distortion," Ranck offers his seminar to graduate students at the White Institute. He regards the course a breakthrough, the first time the profession "has paid any attention to the healthy aspects of religion."

Danger Signs

Knowing when religion is good presupposes knowing when it is bad. Ranck has identified nine danger signs that may mark religion as unhealthy.

- A highly moralistic and judgmental tone and attitude. "The person says, 'Look at him; don't look at me,' to take the heat off himself," Ranck explains. It is primarily a defensive reaction, he says.
- A penchant for legalism that Ranck associates with an attempt to place people in a straitjacket, to force conformity and to oversimplify. "There is always danger in boxing things into rigid categories, to divide everybody into good or bad. It always seems so easy that way," Ranck says, where as health consists of acknowledging complexities.
- A streak of perfectionism that contains the "basic fallacy that ideals are realizable in history." Perfectionists are by definition an unhappy lot, Ranck adds.
- The presence of authoritarianism, permitting little deviation from rigid rules laid down by uncompromising leaders who discourage questions.
- "A messianic obsession," a trait Ranck primarily links with the clergy. The problem revolves around the tendency to demand too much of oneself or others, in the attempt to imitate Jesus. "America is the only country where people actually expect the preacher to practise what he preaches," Ranck says. "In Europe they are shocked to discover that."
- The use of "religion as sedation," as something "that keeps people from growing up." Religion can become a security blanket, promoting passivity and overdependency, and ignoring reality. "For most people this is insurance," Ranck says, "passing the buck to God and everybody else."
- The doctrine that the body is evil and only the spirit is good. "The whole repudiation of the body is a huge problem," Ranck says, "One that has made the church responsible for irreparable damage." The assumption that sex is dirty is an outgrowth of this belief.
- What Ranck describes as the "marketing of guilt and fear." In this process, guilt becomes a weapon for manipulation and makes adherents "afraid to be bad." At its worst, Ranck says, this can lead to overwhelming devaluation of the self. "It is easy to teach a child to feel guilty about something he should not feel guilty about." A chief reason for this pattern, he believes, is a Christian misreading of St. Paul that emphasizes the total abnegation of selfhood to God.
- Exceedingly optimistic or pressimistic outlooks. The optimists err by screening out real evil, while the doomsayers lack a complete picture.

Ranck's idea of what religion ought to be embraces two functions. On the one hand, he says, religion should be a "limiting force" to combat a life of chaos. But religion should also act as a freeing influence, helping the believer to balance his energies, to proportion his concern for himself and his caring for others and to achieve wholeness. In achieving creative potential, which he assumes everyone has, religion is indispensable.

Basic Laws

The grey-haired psychologist believes there are basic moral laws that religion can enable its subjects to adjust to. The list includes the principles of love, justice, truth, giving and the necessity for choosing life.

Arguing that generations have been plagued by false teachings, Ranck urges clergymen to "get rid of things people have been taught that just aren't so." Only half whimsically he throws off the title of a book that exists only in his mind: False Doctrines I Learned at My Mother's Knee. Though no religious group is purely healthy or unhealthy, Ranck contends there is an indication that "denominations that tend toward authoritarian attitudes produce more pathology." That characteristic can be found among both the very liberal and the very conservative, he adds, and not necessarily among either.

Own Attitudes

Ranck has become something of an expert in reading the psyche of clergymen. Nearly every theological student during the past decade has taken the personality inventory that he devised as a predictor of success in the ministry. If the destructive side of religion is to be defeated, Ranck says, the clergyman will have to examine first his own attitudes before rooting out the unhealthy elements in a congregation.

A balanced religion would in Ranck's view instil a sense of realism.

Underpaid Feeling, Too

Protestant Clergymen Chafe Under Pressure

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Protestant clergymen in the United States, particularly in the older categories, are satisfied in their profession. But they feel they're underpaid. And many are chafing under parish pressures.

As in the Roman Catholic priesthood, an increasing number of them seem to be opting out.

These are among the findings of a variety of studies, surveys and symposiums conducted recently in an effort to gauge the mood and problems in the ministry.

Garrett Theological Seminary, a United Methodist institution in Evanston, Ill., in a survey of 4,472 alumni, found that most clergymen enjoy their work and have a sense of accomplishment about it.

Seventy per cent of those graduated in the 1930s are "highly satisfied" in their work, while only 55 per cent of the graduates of the 1960s feel that way about it.

However, another survey of 4,984 clergymen in 21 demoninations, made by the Society for the Advancemet of Continuing Education for Ministers, found that 88 per cent of the total feel they are underpaid.

The median annual income for those polled was $8,037, including housing and other allowances.

Nevertheless, only nine per cent of them said they were "dissatisfied with being in the ministry."

On the other hand, recent studies indicate the exodus from the ministry is increasing, both among Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Rev. Dr. E. A. Vordery of Atlanta, Ga., told a meeting of Southern Baptist home missions leaders that estimates put the total leaving as high as 10,000 pastors and priests each year.

He said common reasons for their departure include inadequate salaries, the general apathy of congregations and unreasonable pressures and expectations placed on them.

Roman Catholic bishops consider the loss of priests from their vocations as the most urgent problem in the church, a survey by Gallagher Report, an authoritative business publication, indicated.

It found that 83 per cent of 31 bishops questioned regard the shrinkage of priestly vocations as the church's No. 1 problem.

It found that 83 per cent of 31 bishops questioned regard the shrinkage of priests as "faithful to conscience." This indicates a moderating of the bishop's attitude about it since two years ago, when 16 per cent took such a view.

The survey also found that most bishops consider the rule of mandatory celibacy as the main reason for the departures.

Improvement Aim for James Bay

Mrs. Wood in project office with, from left, McNie, Talson and Myers

How can a church better serve the community? That is the question posed by James Bay United Church a year ago which has led, after a detailed survey by Mrs. Marian Wood, wife of the minister, Rev. Kenneth Wood, to a local initiative program to be financed by the federal government.

Using Mrs. Wood's survey as a basis for the program, the church's action committee outlined its objectives and the manner in which they would would be carried out. The program was approved this month by the government and is to be implemented by Mrs. Wood and four or five young people by Manpower for six months at a cost of about $15,000.

Aims of the program are:

- To foster a caring community spirit within James Bay.
- To take steps toward improving the environment.
- To provide services to the community which at present are lacking.

A questionnaire has been prepared and is being mailed to James Bay residents. In addition to asking questions it asks for suggestions and advice on the needs of the community.

"We believe that through the active participation of James Bay residents, the friendly atmosphere of James Bay will grow and the beauty and charm of the area can be improved," a covering letter says.

Recipients are also asked to visit the project office at James Bay United Church, 511 Michigan, or to phone 384-5821 during the day or 386-1835 in the evening.

Among questions asked are these: Do you believe the community would benefit from a community information centre? Do you feel there are enough recreational facilities for young people? For older people? Is bus service adequate? Would an attractive low-income housing development be an asset to this community? Are you in need of low-income housing? Do you spend more than 70 per cent of your income on food, shelter and housing?

Residents are asked if they would participate in group gatherings to discuss community issues or if they would volunteer a few hours a month toward bettering the community.

They are also being asked to indicate those areas of concern which they feel deserve the most attention.

Hired by Manpower for Mrs. Wood's action committee are Glen McNie, Eva Myers, Victoria Talson and Deborah Semmens. A sixth person is to be employed in February.

Cleric Quits In Protest Of Observer

TORONTO (CP) — Rev. Donald Keating, a United Church minister in Toronto, has resigned his ministry in protest against editorial policies of The Observer the church's monthly publication.

"Apparently he did not want to be a minister in the same church which had me as editor of the magazine," said Dr. A. C. Forrest. "And I guess the church wasn't ready to fire me yet, so. . ."

In his letter of resignation, Keating charged the magazine with a pro-Arab stance on the Middle East question. He cited an editorial entitled For the War Record from the November issue.

It dealt with accusations that the Christian churches "did nothing" to prevent the rise of Hitler's regime in Germany.

Dr. Donald Ray, associate secretary of the church's general council, said the resignation will be referred to the Winnipeg Presbytery and conference for action because Keating was ordained in 1951 in Winnipeg.

VOICE OF ONE

Psalm a Day Could Change Life

By DR. FRANK MORLEY

There is only one way to a Happy New Year and that is to be able to say the Twenty-third Psalm and mean it. If anyone repeated this psalm every morning for a month it would change his life. It is hard for many to keep their hearts up. Life has many disappointments and is a constant fight against the mood of futility and frustration. For many life has been a slow deterioration of morale, a loss of faith, hope and love, a decline of zest in life, a depletion of loving kindness. Nothing can help a man except the knowledge that he'll never walk alone.

"The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters. He restorth my soul; He leadeth me in the paths of rightousness for His name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I shall fear no evil; for thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou annointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever."

To comment on this psalm is to guild a lily. Countless millions have been comforted and strengthened by it in the loneliness of exile, in the fires of persecution, in the desperation of suffering, and in the hour of dying, men and women have repeated it as their eternal hope. Father Caussade said that the only way to sainthood was commitment to divine Providence or, as another put it, "God knows what he is doing with me."

Prayer:

"Oh God by Whose mercy I have come to the gateway of another year, help me to look backward with gratitude so that I may look forward with hope.

Yet grant that I may not live in remorse and be crippled by the errors and follies of the past, or look at my achievements and be self-satisfied.

Make me aware of the miracle of thy presence and the power of Thy Spirit."

Counsellors To Open Winter Training Talks

The 1972 winter training sessions of the Greater Victoria Citizens Counselling Centre will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 10, in the Annex of Metropolitan United Chuch, Pandora and Quadra.

Theme of the 12 weekly sessions is An Introduction to Counselling — Understanding Ourselves and Others.

In addition to the Monday night meetings an all-day workshop will be held at St. Mary's Priory, Langford, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Feb. 12.

Subjects to be covered in the course are Reflecting Skills, Awareness; The Helping Relationship; Developing Potential; Canada's New Divorce laws; Human Sexuality; Marriage Counselling; Family Counselling; Fight Training; Recognizing Those Who Need Referral; Available Help in Our Community.

Resource persons are Mona and Roy Hundleby, co-ordinators; Rev. Franck Patterson of Cordova Bay and Gordon Head United Churches; Dr. Vance Peavy associate professor, faculty of education, UVic; Dr. Margaret McHugh, assistant professor, faculty of education, UVic; J. J. Gow, Victoria lawyer; Dr. Jack Peterson and Associates, general practitioners; Dr. Alan Cashmore, director, Family and Children's Clinic, B.C. Youth Development Centre, Burnaby; Dr. John Wood, director, Saanich Mental Health Centre; Garth Homer, director, Community Council of Greater Victoria.

In the past year the centre has more than doubled its endeavors, both in counselling and training.

The Hundlebys report that personal counselling has jumped from 165 sessions in 1970 to 375 in 1971. The centre handled 1,400 phone calls in 1971.

Growth workshops and training sessions included more than 300 persons in the year as well as another 200 in other programs.

One of the highlights of the year was a workshop at the Mary's Priory involving Dr. Herbert Otto, California psychiatrist, and his wife Roberta.

Response was so favorable, report the Hundlebys, that four additional all-day sessions were held at the Priory, one in Port Alberni and a demonstration at the B.C. Conference of Family Life Associations at Miracle Valley.

The Mental Health Branch of the provincial government is sponsoring Dr. Alan Cashmore when he takes two sessions of the upcoming course on March 6 and 13.

Total cost of the 12-session course is $6. The all day workshop at the Priory will cost $5, including dinner.

The Hundlebys will be available for consultation after Jan. 6 at 592-1566.

Children's Tax Statement

Anglican Flays Philip For 'Knocking Poor'

LONDON (CP) — An Anglican Church editor has accused Prince Philip of "knocking the poor" by his recent suggestion that one way of keeping down the population explosion might be to tax people for having children.

Addressing a conference on health and the environment at Edinburgh University Dec. 17, Philip suggested various ways of controlling the swelling birth rate, including easier abortion and manipulating the family allowance system.

"We now subsidize people for having children," the queen's husband, himself a father of four, told the conference, sponsored by Edinburgh doctors.

"You could argue that it might be possible to tax people for having children. This is not to say that it will stop them, but it makes it more expensive."

Nicholas Fogg, editor of the Anglican publication Christian Action, said this sounded like "an early-Victorian knocking-the-poor campaign."

Fogg told a press conference that if Philip's idea was adopted, only the rich could afford children.

The 29-year-old editor also criticized Philip's statement that a family of eight children cost the state $30,000 to $78,000 in education and family allowances over a period of 10 years. Fogg said the prince forgot that the same children eventually became earners and taxpayers.

UVic Faculty Members

Fellowships Awarded

Eight University of Victoria faculty members have been granted Canada Council leave fellowships to conduct research projects in their chosen fields, a council news release said Tuesday.

The fellowships, worth up to $7,000 each go to teachers after at least five years of teaching at a Canadian university. Travel and research expenses may be paid in addition to main grant.

The eight Victoria fellowships were part of 188 leave fellowships and 19 research fellowships granted across Canada, totalling $1.6 million.

Teachers and their projects are:

Gordon Bertram, economics department, is engaged in a study of Canadian economics history and is writing a book on the subject for Columbia University Press.

Alan Gowans, historian, is studying the universal parallels in history as revealed in artifacts (a subject taught at UVic, only place in North America). He is also at work on a two-volume work on the same subject.

J. C. H. Jones, economics, will be engaging in a study of the comparative merger policy (in business) between Canada and Great Britain.

Richard May, psychology, will be taking sabbatical leave and studying at the University of Reading, England, in the field of Children's curiosity behavior in learning. He will also work with Dr. Corinne Hutt of Oxford University in the same subject.

Donald Mitchell, archaeology, was in Mexico when the Colonist tried to reach him, but a colleague said it was probable that Mitchell, a prominent B.C. archaeologist, would have some project in the province.

Patricia Roy, history, was also unavailable for comment, but her chosen field is Western Canadian history, and she did her Ph.D. thesis on public transportation in the lower Fraser Valley.

Reginald Terry, English, will take leave to travel to London to do a book on Anthony Trollope, author of more than 148 books. Terry's field is 19th Century fiction.

Victoria's Namesake Getting Loaded

The 27,000-ton Norwegian bulk carrier Victoria City is taking on a cargo of pulp and lumber at Ogden Point docks during her first visit to the port after which she was named.

The inaugural visit was marked Thursday by Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock who presented the ship's captain, James Murray, with a pewter plate bearing the city's coat of arms. In turn, Haddock was presented with one of the ship's round life preservers.

The year-old ship, owned by the Readon Smith line, is scheduled to sail Tuesday for Europe.

Spirituals Arrived, Operettas Started While B.C. Grew

By BERT BINNY

While history in B.C. and elsewhere was in the making 100 years ago, it was in the world of music that two very significant events took place, both in the declining days of the year.

In the fall of 1870 a somewhat testy playwright and librettist met a choir director and composer who was also a man of travel and persistent love affairs.

The choleric barrister was William Schwenck Gilbert and the easy-going, rather dilettante musician with a genius for friendship was Sir Arthur Sullivan.

Their association was to produce at least 14 operettas of which H.M.S. Pinafore (1878) and The Mikado (1885) perhaps contributed most to their reputation.

The Yeoman of the Guard (1888) and The Gondoliers (1889) are often regarded as their finest works but the initial outcome of their partnership was Thespis or The Gods Grown Old, produced at London's Gaiety Theatre Saturday, Dec. 23, 1871.

Thespis was used as an afterpiece to a drama entitled Dearer Than Life. The London Times of Dec. 27, reviewing the performance of the previous night, was uncertain how to describe it.

"The afterpiece," it decided, "was what in Paris would be known as opera bouffe, which in English may be loosely rendered as an opera grotesque.

"The piece as a whole deserves high praise," added the Times which also noted that the dialogue was "superior."

"It met with an excellent reception and . . . the numerous merits of the piece cannot fail to secure for it in public estimation a high place among the novelties of the season."

But the Times proved in error. Thespis ran only a month.

Nevertheless, it was the first in that line of 14 "operas grotesques"; the last, The Grand Duke, being produced 25 years later.

Gilbert and Sullivan were introduced to the U.S. Nov. 15, 1878, with the presentation of Pinafore at Boston. One commentator made the curious statement that it proved a stage presentation could provide wholesome and refined entertainment.

And Pinafore certainly caught on. In one season 90 American companies produced it with five simultaneous productions in New York alone.

Pinafore was also the first presentation by the Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Society in June of 1946. Since then the society, now the Victoria Operatic Society, has staged 13 Gilbert and Sullivan shows including three Pinafores, a like number of Mikados and two Gondoliers.

The second musical milestone set up 100 years ago was possibly less dramatic but fully as durable.

In December of that year the Jubilee Singers of Fisk University at Nashville, Tenn., introduced the true negro spiritual to New York and the eastern states, the same plantation songs as are sung today: Deep River; Swing Low, Sweet Chariot; Little David; Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen and others.

Of this event Sigmund Spaeth, once widely known as the Tune Detective, remarks simply that: "the tour was undertaken as a means of raising funds for the institution" (Jubilee Hall) "but it turned out to be the revelation of the finest folk music yet produced in this country."

Strangely enough, the singers and their director, George White, started out with the intention of competing in the field of conventional opera and classic song. But they soon found out that it was their own music that people wanted.

However, their pilgrimage across the U.S. was effected in anything but the lap of luxury. Their historian, J. B. T. Marsh, tells how, for instance, their hotel bill at Zanesville amounted to $27 and adds:

"What figure it would have reached had not the six girls been put into a single room over a shed, where the bedclothing was so offensive that they were constrained to roll the most of it in a bundle and lay it on the porch while they slept wrapped in their waterproofs, is not known."

At Akron their performance yielded just $20 but, just a few weeks later at Jersey City, a similar performance produced $740.

In other words, the Negro spiritual had arrived.

'Canada Has Highest Jobless Rate'

Labor Underlines 'Economic Crisis'

Canadian Labor Congress has decided to make full employment the theme of its annual Citizenship Month in February, because, it says, Canada has the highest unemployment rate of any major industrial country.

The CLC is sending material outlining the campaign and explaining the congress's views on what it calls Canada's economic crisis to 91 international unions, 19 national unions, and 133 directly-chartered local unions with members totalling 1.6 million.

The CLC is also sending out cards, urging MPs to introduce legislation that will create full employment, which they are asking union members to sign and mail to their local members.

Victoria Labor Council has formed a five-man committee headed by council secretary Larry Ryan, to implement the CLC campaign in the city.

In a leaflet explaining the program, the CLC points out that Canada had an unemployment rate of more than 6 per cent during the last 18 months.

Young people under 25 suffer the most from unemployment with a rate of 9.2 per cent, the CLC says.

Regionally, the Atlantic provinces have experienced the worst rates of unemployment with a 10-month average of 8.5 per cent this year. Quebec is next with 8.3 per cent and B.C. is third with a 7.1 per cent unemployment rate.

The result is, the CLC says, Canada faces "the most serious economic situation since the Great Depression of the 1930s. Unemployment has reached disastrous heights and is not diminishing."

The CLC puts the blame for this situation on the federal government policies, "deliberately designed to slow down the economy" and accentuated by U.S. economic actions such as the 10 per cent surcharge.

In the leaflet, the CLC also urges that the government form a federal agency or department to provide planning which will direct economic growth and development.

North Korea Signs Pact

TOKYO (AP) — Peking has reported that North Korea and Malta have agreed to establish diplomatic relations at ambassadorial level. The New China news agency, quoting Pyongyang's Korean Central news agency, said an agreement was signed Dec. 20 in Valetta following negotiations between North Korea and Maltese representatives.

Four Victorians Appointed QCs

Four Victoria lawyers are among 23 from across the province named in the 1972 Queen's Counsel list made public by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson Thursday.

The four are: Edward Cantell, superintendent of insurance at Victoria Law Courts; John Cowan, of Crease and Co.; Arthur Hall, registrar of companies at Victoria Law Courts; and Neil McDiarmid, of the attorney-general's department.

Other well-known names on the list are Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell and Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm of Vancouver Stock Exchange and B.C. Supreme Court.

Of 23 lawyers receiving the appointment, 14 are from Vancouver, four from Victoria, one each from Burnaby, Prince George, New Westminster, Chilliwack and Dawson Creek.

Under the provincial Queen's Counsel Act, Queen's Counsel are named by the cabinet after the attorney-general has conferred with the province's two chief justices and two members of the bar association.

A maximum of 10 may be named each year but in practice they are named only every two years. This, Peterson has said, is to enable a bigger list to build up for announcement.

Queen's Counsel receive precedence over other lawyers in court.

PROVINCIAL COURT

A scond charge read Thursday in Victoria Provincial Court against a 19-year-old youth raised "such an interesting legal point" that Judge William Ostler refused to allow the youth to plead guilty.

The youth, James Michael Smith, address not known, was charged Tuesday with theft "on or about Dec. 18" of a stereo record player owned by a Hampshire Road resident, and possession Dec. 20 of the same machine. He asked for legal aid and was remanded on $750 bail to next Wednesday for further hearing.

Thursday, Smith was charged with public mischief. The charge alleged that, "being a person charged" with theft involving more than $50, Smith gave false information to a Victoria constable last Tuesday on how Smith came into possession of the machine.

The charge also alleged this was intended "to divert suspicion" from Smith and caused the constable to spend time on an investigation.

Smith indicated he wanted to plead guilty to the new charge, which prosecutor John Macintyre said he had drafted earlier in the day.

But Ostler said he had "grave doubts as to the propriety" of charging a person with diverting suspicion from himself in connection with a charge he already faced.

"It's a most interesting and unusual situation," said the judge. "I've never encountered it before and have never heard of it . . ."

Another point, he said, was this: Was a guilty plea to the mischief charge tantamount to a guilty plea to the theft charge as well?

The judge decided it was "such an interesting legal point" that Smith should have a lawyer. He put the new charge over to next Wednesday, too, and released Smith on his own recognizance in the sum of $500.

Harry Ronald Moore, 20, of 3880 Shelbourne, was committed by Ostler after defence lawyer Dermod Owen-Flood waived a preliminary hearing on a charge of possession of heroin for the purpose of trafficking.

The charge was dated Nov. 16 in Victoria. Bail was set at $3,000 pending Moore's higher-court trial.

□

In traffic court, Guy Provencher, 19, HMCS Qu'Appelle, pleaded guilty before Judge E. F. N. Robinson to a two-count Saanich charge of impaired driving and driving without insurance Dec. 3. He was fined $350 and given a three-month driving ban on the first count and fined $250 on the second.

□

Five persons were fined $350 each and given partial four-month driving bans after they pleaded guilty to separate charges of impaired driving.

They were Gaston Miron, 38, of 1096 Shaw, stopped Nov. 19 in Victoria; Ronald Durrance, 28, of 3721 Saanich, stopped Nov. 27 in Saanich; Irvin Norman Morrey, 22, of 2861 Creigowan, stopped Nov. 25 in Saanich; Peter Gareth Simpson, 18, of 172 Helmcken, stopped Dec. 3 in Saanich, and Eric Anglin, 56, of 3320 Kingsley, stopped Nov. 26 in Victoria.

'Dead' Man Answers Police Rap

MERIDEN, Conn. (UPI) — The mission was to inform a family of a death.

Police Sgt. Robert Kosikenski and patrolman Gregory Lewandowski walked up to the door without comment.

They rapped on the door to tell the family that Boston police had informed them of the death in a shootout Saturday of James Janz, 31.

The door swung open and there stood Janz.

Police later explained that Janz had lost his identification papers during a trip to Boston in September.

Fire Spreads From Chair To Basement

Damage was estimated at between $5,000 and $6,000 after a fire which began in or around a chesterfield chair spread into the basement and roof area of a home at 1432 Holley before Victoria firemen could quell the flames Thursday morning.

Victoria fire department officials said the occupant, John Gabriel, had left at midnight Thursday for work on James Island and Mrs. Gabriel was visiting relatives in Portland, Ore. The fire was reported at 6:19 a.m.

When We Were 100

It Was a Very Good Year

Queen talks to Victorians in Centennial Square ceremony

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

What will you be thinking tonight when the fireworks start to explode and the time draws near?

Of a swashbuckling flyer who slugged his co-pilot and traded him in on an attractive blonde?

Of a gracious queen who smiled in the sun, in the rain and into the teeth of a 50-mile-an-hour wind?

Of those special projects — like new washroom facilities for the old community hall? Or the new library? New park?

Will you be trying to remember (or hopefully forget) Bobby Gimby's Go British Columbia, a song that cost the province close to $11,000?

Or maybe you will be thinking of rally cars, planes, big canoes, gaily lit warships, new books, snowmobiles, hikers, assorted politicians, standard speeches, choirs, school kids, totem poles, flags, bunting, coins, medals, Brownies, Boy Scouts, soldiers, big bands, little bands, dogs wearing hats and more Brownies.

Noise, Color

They were all there as part of B.C.'s Centennial 71, a year that will die New Year's Eve as it began — with a combination of noise, color and ceremony.

B.C. Centennial Committee chairman Lawrie Wallace and Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson are to preside over ceremonies that begin at 11:30 p.m. at Heritage Court. This will include the lowering into place of a time capsule, the playing of the carillon bells, a performance by a band and a choir, and a massive fireworks display in the Inner Harbor.

When it all began the previous New Year's Eve the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon was ablaze with lights in the Inner Harbor as thousands lined the causeway and the legislative lawns. There were choirs and bands made up of more than 300 young people, bells, whistles and the usual fireworks.

Bomb Salute

There was also a 100-mortar bomb salute, fired with non-military charges just to give the year the booming start that was wanted.

Sandwiched between these two outdoor New Year's parties has been another special year that should serve as proof of B.C.'s super tolerance for centennials.

If the province is just a little slaphappy from it all, it's only because there have been no less than four centennials over a 13-year period — five where the city of Victoria is concerned.

The record reads like this: 1958, 100 years after founding of crown colony of B.C.; 1962, 100th birthday of Victoria as a city; 1966, a century after the marriage of the crown colony of Vancouver Island to the B.C. mainland; 1967, Canada's big centennial year; 1971, B.C.'s 100th birthday as a member of confederation.

Big Thought

In spite of all of this, some obscure slogan-maker approached the latest big year with this thought: In the century of centennials, this will be the centennial of the century.

And that may be mighty big by any standard, but not big enough to keep Premier Bennett at home for the official kickoff.

As two air force jets passed over the legislative buildings in special salute last New Year's morning, the tourist-conscious premier was on the reviewing stand in Pasadena, Calf., watching B.C.'s centennial float go by in the 82nd Tournament of Roses parade.

This was supposedly a good move for tourism, especially in centennial year. And never mind just which centennial year.

Windfall Time

What the premier had in mind was 30 seconds of exposure before more than 100 million TV fans.

Back home, the folks were showing a great deal of enthusiasm. And not necessarily for the special events and all the pageantry. It was a time to latch on to the windfalls — or semi-windfalls — that go with such years.

With federal and provincial money helping out, little communities and big cities could tackle some of those things that couldn't otherwise be done — or, at least, wouldn't be done.

No less than 390 regional centennial committees planned projects that ranged from heating and washroom facilities for community halls, to skating rinks, recreation centres, libraries and parks.

The spending could be done at the rate of $2.60 per capita, with the community concerned putting up only 60 cents of this. Each of the senior governments tossed in $1 per person.

Federal Gift

The federal government's gift to B.C. was $10 million, of which $2 million was earmarked for the projects. Another $4.5 million was for ecological preservation purposes, $1 million for celebration programming and $2.5 million will go toward the building of an Indian heritage museum at the University of B.C.

The size of the federal gift didn't mean everyone was going to be happy. Within

Safety Catch

To provide room and safety for final celebrations in Victoria of the province's entry into Confederation, a number of downtown streets will be closed to traffic tonight.

Government will be closed from Humboldt to Superior, and Belleville from Douglas to Menzies. The public may use government employees' parking lots in the vicinity of the legislative buildings.

Takeover Soon At St. Joseph's

The takeover of St. Joseph's Hospital by the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society is imminent, sources said Thursday.

The society was organized more than two years ago to manage the hospital when the Sisters of St. Ann would surrender interest in it.

When the society takes over the hospital under a lease from the provincial government, many members of the Roman Church order will remain with the hospital.

St. Joseph's will be leased to the Society by the provincial government. The existing hospital will be conveyed to the government by the Sisters of St. Ann while property adjoining the hospital, purchased as the site for later expansion, will be conveyed to the government by the Capital Region's hospital board.

Most of the documents are ready for signature by all of the parties involved. The signing could take place next week, and that will mean the present St. Joseph's hospital board will be succeeded by the society.

Blaze Damages Victoria Home

Victoria firefighters quickly extinguished a blaze Thursday night that resulted in heavy damage to the main floor and furniture of a home next to Westendale Construction Ltd., 1198 Yates, Victoria fire department reported. Officials said possible cause of the blaze, which had been burning for some time before they received the report, was a cigarette smouldering in the chesterfield. They said no one was home at the time of the fire.

Two Settle Down

Exhilarating Royal Audience

Having royalty for an audience can be quite an exhilarating experience for a budding composer and musician, but two Saanich youths who shared the Centennial 71 experience in Victoria May 4 are now taking things in their stride.

Rich Margison, 17, of 915 Arundel, Saanich, is now working for a wholesale firm in Victoria and his partner Greg Davidson, 18, of 6844 Woodward Drive, Central Saanich, is currently studying at Camosun College.

Margison and Davidson sang their own song — For This is British Columbia — to Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and Princess Anne during the second day of the royal Centennial 71 tour of B.C. They were Claremont high school students at that time.

The two musicians had 1,000 records of the song made in a Saanich studio and started selling them. Only about 30 of the records, which were made last September, remain unsold.

Commission Studies Crucial Issue

Anglicans, Romans Agree on Eucharist

LONDON (Reuter) — The Roman Catholic and Anglican churches announced a substantial agreement Thursday on one of the issues of belief which have split them for 400 years.

A permanent international commission of Catholics and Anglicans, set up two years ago to pave the way for unity, announced that substantial agreement had been reached on the crucial issue of the Eucharist.

The Eucharist, or holy communion, is the most central ritual of Christian worship, commemorating Christ's last supper before the crucifixion.

Catholic official doctrine has insisted that the body and blood of Christ are present in the bread and wine consumed by worshippers during the service. The doctrine is called transubstantiation.

But since the 16th century, when the Church of England broke away from the Roman Catholic Church, Anglicans have rejected transubstantiation. They maintain that the body and blood of Christ are present "only after a heavenly and spiritual manner."

The international commission's agreement, reached at its last meeting at Windsor in September and published Thursday, is based on two main points.

First, both sides see the Eucharist as a "memorial" of the life, death and resurrection of Christ. The second is that "the sacramental body and blood of the savior are present as an offering to the believer awaiting his welcome."

The statement said: "The memorial is no mere calling to mind of a past event or of its significance, but the Church's effectual proclamation of God's mighty acts."

The commission's statement has still to be ratified by the authorities of both churches.

Both Catholic and Anglican theologians described the agreement as the most important statement since the Reformation.

The commission recognizes that many issues still remain to be settled before the world's 47 million Anglicans and 526 million Catholics can reach unity. But they consider that if there are any remaining points of disagreement they can be resolved on the principles here established."

Long, Sweet Drink Brings Long Sleep

ST. NAZAIRE, France (Reuter) — Alain Chevillard, 25, died in Nantes recently trying to win a bet that he could drink more than a bottle of eau de vie alcohol non-stop.

When a 41-year-old truck driver, unnamed by police, heard about it, he said he could do the same thing and wake up in fine shape. Later his friends found him dead, clutching an empty quart bottle of Calvados apple brandy.

7 Per Cent Interest-Plus

City Tax Penalties Amount to Plenty

Victoria ratepayers who haven't paid their 1971 property taxes will be charged 7 per cent interest on tax arrears starting Jan. 1, 1972.

The interest applies to the actual arrears plus two penalty charges imposed by the city at the end of June and the end of November.

Thus a property owner who owed the city $100 June 29, would have found his tax bill increased to $105 June 30.

If he still neglected to pay the arrears, his bill would have jumped to approximately $110.25 on Nov. 30. Starting Jan. 1, he'll be charged 7 per cent interest on that amount.

If the taxes are still owing by next June — that's when the 1972 tax bills are sent out — the account is classified as "delinquent," according to City Comptroller Jim Bramley.

"After another 10 months or so, the property is put up for tax sale," Bramley said.

If the property is sold, the former owner has 12 months in which to redeem it at the price for which it was sold plus accrued interest, Bramley said.

Therefore, he said, it was far better if people paid their taxes on time. On the other hand, he conceded, the city counts on revenue derived from penalties on tax arrears.

"We get about $70,000 a year from the penalties; that money always goes into the budget," he said.

Beacon Buck Returns

A buck deer which escaped from the Beacon Hill Park deer pen last Saturday ended its exploratory journey through the park Thursday afternoon and wandered back into the enclosure.

Victoria's Parks Director Cliff Bate told the Colonist the deer returned on its own, without help from the parks staff. It escaped when another deer was killed by unknown persons, and dragged through an opening in the enclosure.

"All five remaining deer are now together again," said Bate.

East-West Rates Vastly Different

Sea Levels Rise

Sea levels along the U.S. east coast and the B.C. coast are rising, but at vastly different rates.

In the east, according to Steacy Hicks of the U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, the increase is quite rapid.

But in the west, says Sydney Wigen, head of the tidal branch of the federal government's hydrographic service in Victoria, the rise is very small.

Hicks, a physical oceanography scientist with NOAA's national ocean survey in the U.S., said in a report presented in Washington last week that the sea level from Maine through Virginia had been rising "at an unprecedented rate" since 1963.

The rise, about three inches in eight years, may seem small but in geological terms it is quite large.

In the past 100 years, the sea has risen about one foot on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts. But since 1963, the rise has increased to a rate of more than three feet in a century.

Hicks based his findings on a study of sea level monitoring at 115 places on the coasts of the United States.

In a few west coast areas of the U.S., Hicks noted, the sea-level is going down. Some of these places are Los Angeles, Crescent City, Calif., Astoria, Ore., and Neah Bay, Wash.

Sea-level is also rising on the B.C. coast, but only slightly, says Wigen. "It's very minor indeed," he explained in an interview. "We're not looking at anything of the same magnitude as on the east coast."

In a comparison of the mean sea-levels for Victoria, Point Atkinson, Tofino and Prince Rupert during the last five years with long-term means based on measurements taken for 50 years, there is a slight increase in the sea-levels of the four areas, Wigen said.

There's usually a consistent pattern among the places measured, he pointed out.

"If one place is above normal, then we expect the others to be above normal too," he says. "If not we try to find out what's wrong and start checking our gauges."

As well as the slight increase there has been a continuation of the tendency first noted by Wigen in some preliminary studies he made 10 years ago, in which the Tofino sea-level drops when the sea-level at Point Atkinson has risen.

"Tofino was either high or low relative to the coast and Point Atkinson was the opposite of it," he explains.

Wigen said that he was a bit skeptical about Hicks' findings and didn't think they signified a definite change.

"My first reaction would be: how does he know there's been a basic change in sea-level through just studying it for seven years? We might have seven to eight years of high pressure areas and we know that would cause a decrease in sea-level.

"If I had a trend that showed up for that length of time I would be inclined to be a bit skeptical that there was a definite change. I would like to look in other areas of the coast to check."

Weather patterns can affect sea-levels, so any change in patterns can result in sea-level changes as well, Wigen said.

"Any major weather pattern is likely to repeat itself. For example, if the top 200 feet of the sea were warmer the same pattern could occur for a decade or so, and coincident with the change in the weather pattern would be a corresponding variation in sea-level."

There's also the theory that the earth has only so much to go round, he said. "If we're receiving more than our share then it's for sure someone's receiving less than theirs," Wigen pointed out.

'Fame and Distinction'

All but 20 of 112 recipients of honorary citizenship certificates turned up at Victoria City Hall Thursday afternoon to receive their scrolls from Mayor Courtney Haddock during special ceremony. Certificates, went to "persons who brought fame and distinction to Victoria." Haddock said he knew many more should have been on list but he hoped mayors after him would continue practice. Three recipients in picture are Songhees Chief John Albany, Rick Cockburn of 9764 Fifth Street, Sidney, who participated in last summer's London-Victoria air race and Percy George of 3171 Mars, mayor of Victoria from 1944 to 1950.

Germans Flock To the East

BERLIN (AP) — A total of 13,517 West Germans drove through the wall to East Berlin during the Christmas weekend, police reported.

The number of persons who went by subway and elevated railway could not be determined but it was estimated in the thousands.

When We Were 100 It Was a Very Good Year

B.C., there were all kinds of suggestions about how the money should be spent. Cities like Victoria and Vancouver wanted sizeable slices of the action.

Outside B.C., there were those who didn't think any federal money should be pouring into the province. The Calgary Herald said in an editorial that B.C. should be providing all the money necessary.

Books Born

Meanwhile, books were being born in honor of the occasion. Among them was the 126-page Century of Adventure with selections from The Daily Colonist's Islander magazine.

A year such as this, of course, brings out the rugged, adventuresome qualities of people, both individually and on a collective basis.

Individually, there were people like Bill Hembroff of Courtenay who walked 282 miles from Dallas Road in Victoria to Cape Scott at the northern tip of Vancouver Island to raise money for a new museum in the Courtenay district.

Top Drawcards

Collectively, there were those who entered the 300-mile snowmobile race over early snowshoe trails, the 632-mile Voyageur canoe pageant, the London-to-Victoria air race and the 4,800-mile centennial car rally.

The air race and visit by Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and their 20-year-old daughter, Princess Anne, were the two events that drew the most attention.

Afterward, there were complaints that the air race wasn't well run and wasn't really that exciting. But it did have its colorful people and moments.

If you remember anyone from that event it's likely to be one of the attractive women pilots, or one of two men — Joe Blumschein and Roger Hannagan.

Blumschein won the race. Hannagan won a fight.

But since fighting wasn't on the card, Hannagan didn't collect ay money.

Blumschein, a natty, 42-year-old plastics executive from West Germany collected $60,000 in prize money for making his swearingen Merlin III turbo-prop perform better than any of the other planes in the reace.

Executive Jet

Dressed much better than the run-of-the-mill pilot when he arrived at Victoria, he said of his plane: "This is an executive aircraft and that's the way we flew it."

Of the $5,000 in prize money he returned for the favorite charity of Prime Minister Trudeau and Bennett, he said: "No matter how properous a nation is, there are always people who need help."

One of the people who appeared at one time or another to be in need of help was the 22-year-old Hannagan, a Canby, Ore., flyer who was disqualified after he fought with his co-pilot and left him lying on the tarmac at Prestwick, Scotland.

The co-pilot, Dr. Lawrence Dennis, 56, of Portland, Oregon had wanted to turn back because of a faulty door. Hannagan disagreed and in the ensuing battle the doctor fell onto the tarmac. Hannagan took off without him and, although disqualified, continued on his way.

Pretty Navigator

At Quebec City he met pretty Francine Johnson, 22, declared her his navigator, and she finished the trip with him.

When he arrived at Victoria there appeared to be one Johnson too many for comfort. Awaiting his arrival was his Oregon girl friend, Toots Johnson, 20. But Toots created no fuss.

Of the 57 planes that began the air race July 1, two crash-landed en route at Greenland and Goose Bay, Nfld., but no one was hurt. It was started by Trudeau and Bennett through a special phone hook-up outside the B.C. legislative buildings.

Despite a mechanical breakdown near the end, two London, Ont., men — Hayden Gozzard and David Grundy — won the car rally in their Renault 8 Gordini. The car also survived a collision with a cow in Interior B.C.

Some 5,000 spectators lined up four deep on the causeway to await the finish of the Voyageur canoe pageant that began at Fort St. James with crews representing all Canadian provinces, as well as the Yukon and Northwest Territories. Manitoba was the overall winner.

Since July 20 was the actual 100th birthday, the day had to have a little something extra. And it had — a 12½-ton cake, two storeys tall. It was cut during the official Vancouver celebration with pieces sent throughout the world with messages from Bennett, Lawrie Wallace and Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan.

Highlight of a day of entertainment in Victoria was a five-nation naval display with ships from Canada, the U.S., Japan, Australia and Colombia.

Winners, Losers

The year had its winners and losers.

Among the winners were the 14 babies born in the first 71 minutes of July 20, each of them getting 100 centennial dollar coins. First born — at 12:08 a.m. in Royal Jubilee Hospital — was a son to Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Cunningham, 26 Helmcken.

Among the losers — according to some of those with an ear for music — was the Go British Columbia centennial song written by Bobby Gimby, the same man who wrote Ca-na-da for the national centennial in 1967.

The province paid Gimby Productions Ltd. $10,887.97 for the song. This was disclosed by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black in answer to written questions.

Trudeau, 14 of his cabinet ministers and their wives visited Victoria July 1 and there was a brief cabinet meeting.

The province also played host to the annual meeting of provincial premiers and the special constitutional conference during the summer.

There were medals for all sorts of things but there were some who thought the biggest winner of all (although she got no medal for it) was Queen Elizabeth.

Shaking off the effects of a bad cold, she came to B.C. May 3 for a 10-day giant game of hop-scotch across the province with Prince Philip and Princess Anne.

It was to be as informal as possible at the queen's request and, as a result, the royal family shook hands with more people than had been the case on previous Canadian tours.

The queen arrived in warm sunshine to be greeted by as many as 100,000 people along the Vancouver parade route and possibly as many as 50,000 the same evening in Victoria.

There were 5,000 to 8,000 people in and around Centennial Square and, at one point, tour officials feared the queen was in danger of being accidentally mobbed as she moved toward her car.

Wieners Off

Because of the crowd, Victoria Low Income Group was unable to serve the queen with a plate of wieners and beans it had prepared for what it called the Poor People's Banquet.

Elsewhere in the province, the royal visitors were greeted by enormous crowds in weather that was mostly good. There was a touch or two of rain and at Fort St. John the queen walked into 50-mile-an-hour winds to shake hands with the usual veterans, Brownies (there were always Brownies), housewives, children and tourists.

At Williams Lake she watched a rodeo where the unscheduled highlight turned out to be the scattering of newsmen by some bulls.

A stomach upset caused Princess Anne to miss part of the tour.

Possibly some of the greatest impressions made on royalty and others this year were made by the province's Indians through artistic talents, dancing and in other ways.

One of the major features of the year was the carving of 16-foot totem poles by Indians as gifts to Ottawa, each of the provinces and the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Council Dates Monday

Sidney Provincial Court Judge D. G. Ashby will officiate at two of the three inaugural ceremonies to be held Monday by the Saanich Peninsula councils.

At 7:30 p.m. he will swear in Sidney's Mayor Stanley Dear and Alderman Hugh Hollingworth and Carl Anderson all for two-year terms of office.

An hour later he will officiate at Central Saanich council's statutory meeting and swear in Alderman Percy Lazarz, Mrs. Jean Butler and Ray Lamont for their two-year terms on council.

North Saanich Mayor Trevor Davis and Alderman Nell Horth, H. A. Taylor and Paul Grieve will be sworn into office at 2:30 p.m. by municipal clerk Ted Fairs.

Young Victoria Girl Still Missing at Sea

Jennifer Ann Smith, 15, of 1525 Amelia, was still missing Thursday night, Surrey RCMP and Pacific Rescue Centre officials reported. The girl disappeared with two other persons after they left a marina at Crescent Beach on the mainland Sunday for a cruise in a 21-foot pleasure craft.

The bodies of Charles Richard Feltis of Crescent Beach and his daughter Catherine Elise, 8, who were aboard with Jennifer, have since been recovered. RCMP and rescue officials said the search has been called off.

Rights Act Protection?

Chabot Rejects VoW Charge

By BARBARA McLINTOCK
Colonist Reporter

The Human Rights Act protects women from job discrimination in B.C., Labor Minister James Chabot said Thursday.

In a letter to Victoria Voice of Women president Kathleen Ruff, the minister stated that a brief presented to him by the group "fails to provide evidence to support your allegations that the Human Rights Act does not protect females from discrimination in employment in British Columbia."

Mrs. Ruff said she would prefer not to comment on Chabot's statement until she has seen the letter, which was mailed Thursday, just before Chabot released it to the press.

The Voice of Women met with Chabot Dec. 9, but at that time he had not read their brief so did not comment on it.

Main points in their brief were that women were locked into low-paying jobs, both in the civil service and in industry, and that often they received less pay than a man doing the same work.

Chabot contradicted these points, and the basis of what he had to say was as follows:

In statistics which the VoW said showed that female employees in B.C. government departments are paid less than males for the same work, Chabot said the group had neglected to take into account two related factors: the high turnover rate of female employees and the increment structure of salaries in various pay classifications.

The result of these factors, he said, would be that overall women in each classification were paid a lower average salary, not because they were basically paid less by the government, but just because they hadn't been there as long.

Chabot

Women had an equal opportunity to apply for executive positions in the civil service, the minister wrote, but they had not taken advantage of it.

He cited the example of the executive development program for civil servants which is sponsored by the civil service commission in co-operation with the University of Victoria. It is a three-year course, and the participants must agree to remain in the B.C. civil service for three years after they finish it.

Since the program was established in 1956, he said, only 23 women have applied for the course, compared to 1,299 men. Of the 23, four were selected and three completed the course.

"This would hardly indicate a burning desire on the part of females in the service to prepare themselves for executive positions," Chabot wrote. "There are indications that female civil servants appear to be reluctant to bind themselves to the three-year course and then to the three years in the service subsequent to completion."

Women working in industry, he said, are protected by government industrial relations officers who make sure that women are not discriminated against.

He cited a number of examples in which these officers have obtained settlements for women who complained of discrimination under the act.

Complaints can be filed only by the person who is actually discriminated against, he said, because "in dealing with such complaints it is essential to have the evidence of the aggrieved person." If other persons could make complaints, he said, they might be made for "spiteful or frivolous reasons."

The VoW brief had stated that many women, because of this requirement, might rather suffer the injustice than risk creating ill will or losing their jobs by filing the complaint.

But Chabot said that employees may not be discriminated against because they complain under the act.

SECOND TIME AROUND

Twins seem to run in Schmidt family of Downs, Ill., as Beverly Schmidt can testify. She has just borne her second set of twins within year. Youngest set, born Dec. 19, are Kendra, left, and Kent. Mrs. Schmidt holds Shirley and Sandra, born a year ago Wednesday. She said she is not planning any more children at present. "Let's just say that for the time being I'm real busy."

Female Workers Hold One-Third of Positions

OTTAWA (CP) — There were 2.69 million Canadian women in the labor force last year, an increase of 62.3 per cent since 1960, the labor department says.

In an annual publication called Women in the Labor Force: 1970 Facts and Figures, the department says that in 1970 women made up almost a third of the total number of Canadian workers — 32.1 per cent. A decade earlier, they made up slightly more than a quarter of the force.

Despite the rise in actual numbers however, there was only a 7.6 per cent rise in womem workers when taken as a percentage of the total female population. In 1960, 27.8 per cent of all Candian women worked; last year 35.5 per cent were in the force.

The publication gives no reasons for the increase, but does list reasons other women are not out working. The majority — 78.8 per cent — were keeping house in 1970. In 1960, keeping house was the reason given by 84.6 per cent of women for the fact they were not in the labor force.

Last year, only 1.4 per cent of women said they were not in the labor force because they were unable or too old to work. Ten years earlier only 1.2 per cent gave such a reason.

By contrast, 9.4 per cent of men not working in 1970 said they weren't because they were too old or unable, compared with 10 per cent of the male work force in 1960.

A small percentage of women — 4.9 per cent in 1960; 5.4 per cent in 1970 — said they weren't working because they were voluntarily idle or retired. But 14.3 per cent said they weren't working in 1970 because they were going to school. In 1960, the total was 9.1 per cent.

The largest number of working women last year were between 20 and 24 years old, but 10 years earlier the 35-to-44-year-old age group made up the bulk.

In 1970 there were 526,000 women between 20 and 24 working, compared with 506,000 women between 35 and 44. The years earlier there were 279,000 20-to-24-year-olds working compared with 342,000 in the 35 to 44 age range.

Other points in the report:

- Married women made up 56.7 per cent of the female labor force last year, compared with 45 per cent in 1960. Last year 32 per cent of all married women worked; in 1960 only 19.2 per cent worked.
- In 1969 women were paid more than men in only two out of 56 jobs in which both were employed. There were dishwashing in hotels where women made $1.61 an hour and men $1.52 and grading synthetic textiles where female labor were paid $2.14 an hour and male labor $1.92.

In the remaining jobs — which ranged from making fur coats to packing fish — men were paid more. Men made 74 per cent more per hour than women as sewing machine operators for women's clothing — $2.61 an hour compared with $1.50 an hour.

New Sportswear Trend

Sandbox Leader

NEW YORK (UPI) — Not Paris, not the underground, not any pace-setting designer gets credit for the hottest trend in sportswear for spring. Who does? The sandbox set.

Nifty nursery rhyme prints and happy pastels will show on everything from slacks to T-shirts to sweaters — for guys and dolls.

Multi-color electric trains steam across denim jeans for the guys. Cute cutouts of kitty cats frolic on granny-inspired snuggie shirts for gals.

The kid-stuff clothes bring back the really good time of childhood when the day's most important decision was whether to buy a red or a blue hula hoop.

Tricycles and airplanes figure on shrink sweaters worn layered over pants and skirts. Beach balls, building blocks, jack-in-the-boxes adorn short and long sleeve T-shirts for guys and girls.

Taking a cue from fire crackers and festivals, Wrangler does a ribbed cotton knit shirt for girls with a torpedo pattern bursting on a red background. For guys, the figure of a toadstool sits serenely on a long-sleeved, crew-neck "cartoon" shirt.

Jeans, socks and shoes that bring back the days of intense yo-yo contests tie up the little kid look. Color is all-important — ice cream colors, candy colors.

Traditional track shoes for guys, for instance, go wild in multi-toned versions. Knee socks get the raggedy Ann stripes. jeans, of course, are rolled up to show the hot socks.

The newest thing in jeans will be baby prints in soft corduroy and brushed denim. Again the colors are bright and the decorations feature storybook animals and figures, Smiley faces, stars and stripes.

Peter Max has on deck a spirited little kid collection for one manufacturer. It features figures of doves and apples, dots and berries, pears and stars tumbling all over jeans for girls in cheeriest pink, blue and grape backgrounds.

For the guys, Max did a cosmic jump group of jeans with decorations featuring planets, stars, dots and stripes.

Neighbors Fail To Save Man

LAC DU BONNET, Man. (CP) — Norman Wedlake, 56, died in a house fire at Lee River Tourist Camp near Lac Du Bonnet, 70 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

A police spokesman said neighbors pulled Wedlake from a flaming house at about 8:15 p.m. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Pinawa General Hospital.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you published a letter from a woman who said she and her husband were deluged with visiting relatives since they had been transferred overseas and she wished they'd stay home. I'm sure it was my daughter who wrote and I'd like to address this letter to her.

Dear Daughter: We read your letter in Ann Landers' column. Thanks a lot. Your dad and I have no intention of visiting you. We did that once and were treated like creatures from Mars. That didn't deter you, however, from visiting us for months at a time, storing your furniture in our attic and making our home your home, with one exception — we paid the bills.

You allowed your children to break our furniture and ruin our rugs. We were stuck babysitting while you ran around seeing old friends and making new ones. Please enjoy your stay in Europe, dear. We hope you have a long and pleasant tour of duty. You will not be bothered by us. — Your Mom and Dad.

Dear M & D: I wonder why it took you both so long to level with each other. How much better it would have been had you done so from the beginning.

□

Dear Ann Landers: I was disappointed in your answer to "Pulling Teeth." I admit I admire intelligence and conversational ability in a girl, but in spite of the Declaration of Independence, all men are not created equal, and neither are all women.

Your answer suggests that nobody should marry a girl unless she's brainy. Don't you realize that there are plenty of lovely ladies around who aren't smart but who are good hearted, kind, giving, loving, and they make better wives than some of the high I. Quties. What are your second thoughts on the subject? — Syracuse

Dear Sy: You make an excellent point and I appreciate the opportunity to elaborate. Smart women do not make the best wives for certain kinds of men. Some husbands cannot tolerate bright women. Instead of being proud, they are resentful. Such couples are a social pain in the neck. They are forever competing, digging at one another, and they argue a lot.

It's not how smart or stupid a wife is that counts, but how a husband feels about her smartness — or stupidity. "Pulling Teeth" was bored out of his ever-lovin' mind because the girl was a ding-a-ling. I would not tell him to go ahead and marry her and settle for her fine qualities. Such marriages are doomed.

WOMEN WATCHED

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — The 17,000-member International Society of Girlwatchers Wednesday announced its first annual selection of the "ten most watchable women of the world."

Joe Beagin, president and founder of the society, said the selection board based its choices on poise, attractiveness and accomplishment of the individuals in their most watchable categories.

The women named in 10 categories were:

Princess Grace of Monaco, mother; Candice Bergen, actress; Joy Tomlinson Phelan, executive (vice-president, Edward Gottlieb and Associeates, New York); Empress Farah Dibah of Iran, wife; Nancy Dickerson, journalist (NBC television).

Mrs. Arnholt Smith, socialite (San Diego); Jean Shrimpton, model; Margie Miller, stewardess (National Airlines, Neptune Beach, Fla.); Diahann Carroll, singer; and Capt. Robin Quigley, military officer (commander of the Waves, Washington, D.C.).

$40,000 a Child in U.S.

Price of Parenthood

WASHINGTON (AP) — From birth through college it costs the average family in the United States nearly $40,000 to rear a child. And the mother who might have worked, but didn't, passed up $60,000 in income.

Those findings are the result of a federal study that seeks to put a price tag on parenthood for the rich and poor, the educated and uneducated.

The authors emphasize the potential earnings of the mother who stays home until the youngest is 14. The typical birth-through-college cost for such families with two children is $147,154. Each additional child would cost $48,793 more.

In such a family the mother with an elementary school education could have earned $44,121; the high-school-educated mother $58,904; the college-educated mother $82,467 and the mother with five years or more of college $103,023. For the latter, two children will cost the family $198,886 in costs and lost income.

On the average, the study finds, the direct cost of raising a child to age 18 ranges from $20,010 to $32,830.

The study is one of a number undertaken for the Commission on Population Growth and the American Future, which is expected to make recommendations next spring about the impact of population growth on the economy, the environment and the government.

Its authors, economists Susan McIntosh and the late Ritchie Reed figure the current cost of having the first baby at $1,534.

This includes $573 hospital costs, $280 medical, $164 for the mother's maternity wardrobe and $517 for basic nursery supplies.

(In Victoria, hospital costs would run about $50 a day less with an average six or seven day stay, plus $7 a day for the baby, for a total of about $400 for the woman who is not covered by British Columbia Hospital Insurance Service.

For the woman with BCHIS, hospital cost would be $1 a day. Medical costs could run to about $120.)

Winning Contract

By HOWARD and BEE SCHENKEN

"Confound it, Holmes, Moriarty may be a cad, but he certainly knows how to play bridge. This afternoon I executed a dashed clever deceptive play, but the fellow saw through my ruse immediately.

"Moriarty was West and led the eight of hearts, his partner's suit. East ducked and I was allowed to win with the jack.

"My only real hope was to try to enter dummy in spades and take the diamond finesse. Accordingly, I returned the jack of spades. I hoped Moriarty would play low in which case I intended to overtake with the king.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	1 NT	Pass	2 NT
Pass	3 NT	All pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♥.

"But Moriarty unhesitatingly went up with the ace and led a second heart, East taking four more tricks. Dashed astute, what?"

"My dear Watson, I have repeatedly warned you that Professor Moriarty is one of the most dangerous men in London. It is scarcely surprising that he saw through your somewhat artless subterfuge. However, the hand would have been cold if you had applied my principles of scientific deduction.

"When the eight of hearts was led you should have deduced that East had the A-K-Q, and therefore you should have covered with the ten.

"If East ducks, the lead is on the table and you can make five diamond tricks and three clubs.

"If East covers the ten, his long hearts become shut out. In this case you have ample time to force an entry to dummy in spades. Elementary my dear Watson."

GRAMPIAN NEWS!!!
Grampian 26. A justifiable but regrettable price increase. Immediate orders accepted at the old price. One Demo and one new stock G.26 still available at even greater savings.
Grampian 23. New. New. New. Now ready to accept orders for spring delivery for the largest 23-foot sloop available today.
Imagine! Sails; New outboard engine; 5 berths with cushions; carpet; galley with sink and pump; enclosed heads; stove; ice box; antifouling; and more. Delivered and commissioned in Victoria for only $6,750.
Now is the time to buy any good boat. Winter prices will evaporate like our snow. All new boats will cost more. Good used boats will also rise in cost. Many good listings in power and sail.

C-8:00—Laugh-In's main guest is Bob Goulet—2, 6.

C-8:00—Miami's Orange Bowl Parade—5.

C-8:00—Another showing of the Rogers and Hammerstein made-for-TV musical Cinderella, with Leslie Warren and a big supporting cast—7, 12.

C - 8:00—Masterpiece Theatre repeats the hilarious BBC comedy Cold Comfort Farm, starring Alastair Sim—9.

C-9:30—An NBC repeat special about sailing ships—5.

C-10:00—English comic Benny Hill on World TV Showcase—2.

C-10:00—Hollywood TV Theatre: a black satire—9.

C-11:00—Last time on KVOS for the David Frost Revue—12.

C-11:30—New Year's Eve with Guy Lombardo—2, 12.

C-1:00 a.m.—New Year's Eve with evangelist Rex Humbard—11, 12.

Friday Sport

C-11:00 a.m.—Gator Bowl football: Georgia vs. North Carolina—5.

C-1:00 p.m.—U.S. college all-star football: East vs. West—4.

C-4:30 p.m.—Bluebonnet Bowl: Colorado vs. Houston—7.

Friday Movies

9:00 a.m.—Love Happy (1949 Marx Bros.). Not their best but still good, and watch for a bit by Marilyn Monroe—4.

12:45 noon—The Big Money (1958 English comedy, not bad), Ian Carmichael, Belinda Lee—6, 8.

5:30 p.m.—Alias Mary Smith (1932 zero)—13.

C-8:00—Our Man Flint (popular 1966 spy stuff), James Coburn. Anybody who wastes this evening watching movies must choose from a poor list—8.

8:30—School for Husbands (1939 English antique), Rex Harrison, Diana Churchill. Several eons ago—13.

C-9:30—Geisha Boy (1958 Jerry Lewis)—7.

11:00—Double Cross (1941 nothing)—13.

11:30—Attack of the Puppet People (hopeless 1958 horror)—7.

C-12:00—Our Man Flint (see 8:00)—6.

C-12:00—She Beast (1965 Barbara Steelemon)—8.

1:00 a.m.—Incendiary Blonde (1945 Texas Guinan story, not much), Betty Hutton in her Murder-He-Says days—2.

C-1:00 a.m.—Story on Page One (trying 1959 courtroom soaper), Rita Hayworth, Gig Young, Tony Franciosa. Don't try it—4.

1:10—Panic in the Year Zero (1962 after-the-bomb drama). Ray Milland. He directed it, too, and the result is the best of a bad lot of late movies—7.

C-1:15—The Day the Earth Froze (1964 sci-fi disaster). Either hit the sack or get bombed; freeze this one out—8.

Friday Radio

NOTE: Every station will welcome 1972 in some special way but none of them have passed the word on to this corner. The only item of note all day is the annual CBC news review at 6 p.m. on CBU (690) and CBU-FM (105.7).

C—Color.

Record Snow Inch Away

PORT ALBERNI — December is doing its best to catch up with records for snowfull set in 1964.

Dominion weather office employees at the airport said records showed 54.1 inches of snow fell in December 1964. A few years later in 1968, a total of 52.1 inches fell in December.

For those with short memories, the winter of 1968-69 went on to set new snow records for the Alberni area with more than 200 inches registered at the McCoy Lake weather office that year.

Up until noon Thursday almost 53 inches had fallen officially in the city with many residents prepared to swear they had shovelled at least twice that much from their drives and sidewalks. Usually this was done just in time for the city's efficient snowplow service to come along and cast up another drift across their driveway.

Thursday weather office officials said rain was forecast and it was raining all along the west coast, at Nanaimo, Parksville and Campbell River.

And in Port Alberni it was mainly snow, snow, snow, with only 1.1 inches needed by midnight Friday to set a new December record.

Job Seeking Draws Fire

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Michael Mungo, member of the University of South Carolina board of trustees said Wednesday he was "shocked and appalled" to learn that Paul Dietzel, the school's football coach and athletic director, had met with officials of Denver Broncos to discuss a job offer.

Dietzel met with officials of the National Football League Broncos to discuss becoming general manager and head coach. Lou Saban, head coach last season, resigned recently to become head coach of Buffalo Bills.

Bucs Down Cubs, 6-3

Bill Prestwick scored three goals and Don Grant made 49 saves to lead Nanaimo Buccaneers to a 6-3 Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League win over Victoria Cubs at Memorial Arena Thursday.

Lindsay Thomson, Jeff Ranger and Mike Rogerson scored the other goals for Nanaimo, who held 2-0 and 5-1 period leads. Brent Patterson, Al McLaren and Chris Riddell, in his first game for the Cubs after reinstatement by the parent Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League, got the Victoria goals.

Grant was sharp in the Nanaimo net as Victoria outshot the Bucs, 52-26.

Rebels Win Peach Bowl

ATLANTA (AP) — Mississippi's sophomore quarterbacks, Norri Weese and Kenny Lyons unleashed a potent attack and an alert defence capitalized on the many Georgia Tech mistakes Thursday night and the Rebels trounced the Yellow Jackets, 41-18, in the annual Peach Bowl football game.

Mississippi got off to a 10-0 lead in the first quarter, then stunned the Yellow Jackets with a 28-point second quarter which included touchdowns only 64 seconds apart.

The Azalea

As you probably know, it has become my custom at this season of the year to do a series of articles on the care of Christmas gift potted plants, for I hate to see or hear of these lovely and normally long-lived plants lost through ignorance or incorrect care. Today we take up the culture of the most beautiful and certainly the most expensive of the Christmas-blooming houseplants, the azalea.

The ancestors of our houseplant azalea were found originally growing wild on the windswept slopes of Mount Kirishimi in Japan. However, our modern plants have been so hybridized, crossbred and improved, little resemblance remains to the original Japanese wilding. Many of the azalea houseplants sold during the Christmas season were propagater in Belgium or Holland and were shipped to this country to be grown on to maturity by local greenhouse operators.

In nature, this plant is a dwarf evergreen shrub, and this fact gives us two important clues as to its culture. Because it is a shrub, you do NOT cut it down after blooming as you would, say, with a chrysanthemum. Because it is evergreen, you do NOT dry it off and rest it, as with a cyclamen or poinsettia. You just keep it going all year round.

The plant perfers full sunshine in winter, light or partial shade in summer. At this season of the year it is happiest in a room just a little on the cool side, ideally around 60 degrees, with ample ventilation but without sudden drafts or chills.

I think the most difficult part of azalea culture is the watering. Not that it needs any more or any less water than other plants, but because it is unusually fussy as to what kind of water is given it. The plant has a pronounced dislike for the chlorine, fluorine, lime, sodium and other alkaline salts found in so many of our water supply systems, so if you get "scale" in your teakettle, your domestic water is a slow poison for this particular plant. About the only really safe way to water it is with rainwater, melted snow, or the defrostings from a refrigerator or freezer.

Frequency of watering needs some considertion too. Your plant, as it comes from the florist, will be potted in a soil mixture containing a very high proportion of peat moss; such a mixture, once it has been allowed to dry out, is difficult to moisten again thoroughly. If, by accident or neglect, your plant should become bone dry, your best bet is to submerge the pot and soil in a bucket of water until no more bubbles rise to the surface. In general, try to maintain the soil evenly but only just barely moist, never soggy wet nor dust dry, and don't allow drainage water to remain in the saucer.

Some feeding is beneficial, and a good diet for this plant is to give a very small feed once a week, alternating between straight ammonium sulphate one week to a proprietory houseplant fertilizer the next. This could be Rapid-Gro, Hyponex, RJ-15, Alginure, Blue Whale, Alaska Fish or Instant Vigoro. The idea of using ammonium sulphate in the alternate weeks is to maintain the potting soil in a slightly acid condition, which is one of the special needs of the azalea.

Some pruning of the tiny flowering shrub will be necessary to maintain a pleasing size and shape, and the rule for pruning this plant is — little and often. Keep snipping away at the soft green branch tips, with scissors or even with a sharp thumbnail, whenever they grow too long and threaten to spoil the symmetry of the plant. There is no closed season on this form of pruning.

In the spring, when the weather warms up, your plant should go outdoors for the summer. Sink the pot up to its rim in a spot where it can enjoy a little morning sunshine but where it will be shaded through the hottest part of the day.

Easy Come, Easy Go

STAN DELAPLANE

Frosty nights as we come to the end of the year. Hot buttered rum and warm resolutions. Fire on the hearth and a glaze on the eyes.

What to resolve! That is the question. Most resolutions slip out of my grip like a wet plate. Crash! They were too difficult. The thing is to make easier resolutions.

Resolved: To roll with the punches.

Totting up the past year: Fame and fortune are as elusive as ever. Why is that?

★ ★ ★

Here is Yoko Ono, married to a Beatle.

Yoko bought a little movie camera and made a movie. A movie of 365 bare bottoms. (Not much story line, but what kind of story COULD you write?)

She then appeared — with husband — both bare as radishes on a record cover.

By this, Yoko became famous and fortunate.

Resolved: To buy a camera and go to work.

We approach New Year's Eve with caution. A man must be stout of heart to put down the bubbly, put on a paper hat and blow that horn. Little Boy Blue with a blue morning coming up.

★ ★ ★

How do we know it's time to put on that crazy hat?

The Egyptians, the Persians, the Phoenicians got sauced up on September 20. The Romans popped the corks on December 20, a custom they picked up from the Greeks.

In England, they made the New Year's on March 25 — up to year 1750.

★ ★ ★

The ancient Britons peeped through the gunsights at Stonehenge to find when it was New Year's day. They drank mead and painted themselves blue.

Now we are civilized. We put on blue eye shadow and drink champagne.

Resolved: To take two aspirin on New Year's Eve and go to bed sharply at 12:01. The social ramble is rough on the rambler.

It was rough on your ancestors reaching that famous Eve. Pity the poor bloke at Stonehenge. No ice to chill his mead. No vermouth — he could not say: "Not so much vermouth in the next one. I like my mead DRY."

No olive to put in it. No bartender to tip. No funny hat to wear. No TV to see New Year's come in across the country.

★ ★ ★

We live in lively times.

Alas for the middle-aged of the Middle Ages. No electricity to light his New Year's Eve. No cover charge. No Diners Club card to charge it on.

Pity the poor Persian. The ignorant Egyptian. The fuzzy Phoenician. All of them with hangovers on the WRONG day. The right day is bad enough.

Resolved: Let somebody else do it. We may be on the wrong day ourselves.

A camera and 365 bare bottoms. That is all I need for instant fame and fortune. Instead of having all that expansive rear going AWAY from you (as Yoko did it) I will run the film backward.

The bare behinds will be coming AT you.

★ ★ ★

Getting bigger and bigger and BIGGER. It staggers the imagination.

Resolved: To keep my imagination from staggering. It's bad for your reputation.

Those were the good old days. Ignorant but happy. How did the Blue Boy at Stongehenge handle it when his Blue Wife said: "ANOTHER mead?" Do you think you should?"

"Don't you know it's New Year's?"

(He was wrong as could be, we now know. But the mead was good.)

MARILYN BECK

Prior to Roman Polanski's visit to Hollywood to plug his Playboy presentation of Macbeth, aides phoned to pass on the news: Polanski had condescended to meet with a small and fortunate handful of writers. However, came the word, "He's terribly evasive about appointments. changes his mind from moment to moment about meetings. So we're suggesting that columnists phone him directly at his hotel room. And hopefully, if he's in the mood to talk, he might agree to a last-minute chat." It didn't seem worth the effort.

Macbeth might be the picture for you if you dig blood and gore, and if you are up enough on the writings of the Bard so that garbled dialogue doesn't make some of the subtleties of the story line obtuse. It's not surprising that Hugh Hefner would select a Shakespearean classic for his debut as a motion picture producer. Hugh's been mighty eager of late to change his image, to get the world to accept him for greater accomplishments than as merely the creator of the Playboy dynasty. People might take the "new" Hugh a little more seriously if he could outgrow his need of that constantly-in-attendance Playboy bunny entourage, who seem to be his social security blanket. They were there in all their full-blown glory at the Macbeth screening to which Hollywood's elite was invited, adoringly flanking their boss as Hefner-hired photographers concentrated camera action in their direction. Perhaps it's the cynic in many of us, but it's a bit hard to buy a guy who must keep proving he's so popular. And with paid companions.

'Thingness' a Disease

During a session of the National Safety Congress in Chicago recently, one of the safety research experts pointed out that roadside "guard rails" put up to prevent highway accidents are often more dangerous than the accidents they are supposed to prevent.

Another researcher, at the same session, said that expensive and elaborate beams to protect road signs actually proved more fatal than before.

Within a week after one rail was put up, five persons died in a crash against it — whereupon, the problem was solved by erecting "a $2 wooden sign" that would break away when struck by a car.

I have long insisted that the people who design highways, and the engineers who build them, are so concerned with something called "the flow of vehicular traffic" that they ignore, or minimize, the human element involved in driving a car.

★ ★ ★

One of the prime dangers of a technical and vocational education — and this is the kind of education most people get in our society — is that the vocation, which should be a means to an end, becomes an end in itself.

Instead of a technical system working for a greater social good — and understanding its proper relationship to that good — it begins to work for its own sake.

This is the kind of "reversal of values" we have seen time and time again in our highly technicized society. It becomes more important to protect the sign than the motorist — and so the sign is supported by a metal I-beam, which is a far more fatal object of collision than the sign.

"Expense" is also a paradoxical part of this inhuman equation. If a device is more costly, it will be used, whether it is more effective or not.

To the technical mind, whatever is newer and more expensive is automatically superior, and it is unthinkable that a $2 wooden sign should go "unprotected" by a $1,000 V-wedge guard rail that looks stunning and is precisely so.

I have spoken before about companies that have nearly gone broke buying or renting high-priced computer equipment not so much because the company needed it as because corporate pride and vanity compelled the purchase of the latest technology.

No matter how much it fouls up the works, or how ill-prepared the company may be to program and run the computer, it becomes a symbol of "progress" and "success."

In fact, it is usually the people who pride themselves the most on being "hard-headed" who are the most captivated and duped by such symbolism; they are so infatuated by Thingness that they totally fail to grasp the reality that things are made for people, and not the other way around.

B.C. Pushes Drug-Alcohol Contest

Student councils of high schools, colleges and universities have been invited to participate in a provincial government-sponsored contest to stimulate ideas for drug and alcohol education advertisements.

Education Minister Donald Brothers, chairman of the government's advisory council on drugs, alcohol and tobacco, announced in a written statement Thursday that cash prizes will be awarded to winning student councils.

The high school contest, he said, will include four categories: a 60-second radio spot announcement on drugs, the same on alcohol, and a newspaper advertisement on each.

Six regional contests will be held in each category, and the three best in each region will receive prizes of $500, $250 and $100 for their schools.

The first-place winners from each region will then compete for the final provincial awards of $1,000, $500 and $250 in each category.

Two categories of competition are offered to councils from post-secondary institutions: the best idea for a 60-second television spot on drugs, and the best one for alcohol. Prizes will be $2,000, $1,000 and $500.

The winning entries will be used in the advisory council's advertising campaign, with credits going to the winning schools.

The Village Squires, Victoria's male barbershop chorus, has elected its 1972 board of directors.

The Village Squires sing to benefit charitable organizations and contribute hundreds of dollars each year to institutions which treat children's speech defects and retardation.

Along with their female counterparts, the Sweet Adelines, the Village Squires recently performed in Nanaimo to assist in establishing similar organizations in that city.

Displays, Films Lined Up for Art Gallery

Greater Victoria Art Gallery is offering an interesting program of events in the new year, including both exhibitions and a series of films.

The film series will be shown at noon and again at 8 p.m. every Wednesday from Feb. 2 to March 1. The programs, which run about two hours each, are as follows:

Picasso: War, Peace and Love; Goya; Giotto and the Pre-Renaissance; Crete and Mycenae; The Art Conservator; Kinetic Art in Paris; The Impressionists; Le Corbusier; The Greek Temple; The Cubist Epoch; Germany — Dada.

These films were four years in the making. Known collectively as Museum Without Walls, they will not be shown on television until after circulation among the cultural institutions across the country.

Individual tickets will cost $3.50 each and will be obtainable at the door if space permits. Series tickets are $10 for gallery members and $12.50 for non-members and reservations can be made by contacting the secretary, the art gallery, 1040 Moss, 384-4101.

An exhibition of paintings by realist Tom Forrestal will be shown from Jan. 4 to Jan. 23 with works of Kenneth Pawula and Hellyn Moore Pawula appearing Jan. 25 to Feb. 13. From Feb. 15 to 27 the Arts of Primitive Peoples along with Saskatchewan Watercolors will be shown, the latter exhibition including works by both contemporary and traditional artists.

The women's committee is also busy planning several events. These include a tour of some of the Samuel Maclure houses in Victoria and particulars of this event may be obtained from Madge Nash at 598-5394.

Trapped for 40 Minutes

As Victoria woman screams in pain and fright inside upside-down car in early-Thursday car crash on Blanshard near Finlayson, Victoria fire department's acting captain Michael Belton quickly figures best way to get her out. Beatrice Marie Nelson of 1150 Queens, driving alone in car which went out of control, was trapped for about 40 minutes while Victoria police, fire department and Garden City Ambulance personnel worked frantically to free her by prying open doors with crowbars. Mrs. Nelson was reported in fairly good condition Thursday night in St. Joseph's Hospital with multiple injuries.

'No Hurry'–Author

$10,000 Study Not Ready For Aldermen

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

A $10,000 downtown Victoria planning study commissioned by the city last May, was to be submitted to council today — but it won't be.

At least not according to its author, Harold Spence-Sales, a former architecture professor at McGill University, Montreal.

"There's no hurry," Spence-Sales told the Colonist Thursday.

"Somewhere along the way it'll be asked for; it's not completely written, you know," he added.

Spence-Sales also indicated that his report wasn't really to the city but to the planning department which co-operated in the report's preparation.

Spence-Sales said "a tremendous amount of work" had gone into the report which is to suggest a formula according to which the city's central area may be developed.

City Manager Bill Hooson said he had "no comment" when he was asked why the report wasn't ready.

Mayor-elect Ald. Peter Pollen said he was looking forward to the report "to see whether it will offer some type of guidance to council regarding the city's future development."

Last September, Spence-Sales submitted an interim report on his study. Referred to as the "first phase," the progress report was delivered by way of diagram slides.

The finished report will constitute a summary of the city's land resources and its main feature is division of the city's central district into precincts, each of which has its own characteristic development potential.

Spence-Sales wouldn't say whether his report will make concrete recommendations regarding future planning but it is believed that he will suggest certain zoning changes.

City hall spokesmen have also indicated that the report may contain statements regarding the city's future growth that are substantially different from generally accepted figures which predict a large growth pattern for Victoria.

"Perhaps our belief that we will grow at the same rate as other cities is a myth; Maybe the type of planning we are providing at the moment is adequate for the kind of city we are going to be 20 years from now," one spokesman said.

Aussies Ruling Tennis Tourney

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Second-seeded Ken Rosewall defeated Jean Paul Meyer of France and Alan Stone eliminated Mark Cox of Great Britain Thursday, leaving only one foreign player left in men's singles play at the Australian Open Tennis championships.

The only non-Aussie remaining is Russian Alex Metreveli who did not play Thursday.

Rosewall beat Meyer 6-4, 6-4, 6-2 and Stone blasted Cox 6-1, 6-2, 6-3 while in other third-round matches Mal Anderson ousted Neal Fraser 6-2, 6-3, 6-1 and Dick Crealy eliminated Colin Dibley 6-4, 7-6, 6-3.

EVONNE WINS

Evonne Goolagong of Australia, the Wimbledon champion, led the way into the women's semifinals with a 6-1, 3-6, 6-1 victory over Barbara Haweroff of Australia while Olga Morozova of Russia was upset 6-2, 6-1 by Aussie Helen Gourlay.

In the other two quarter-final matches, Kerry Harris of Australia beat Gail Chanfreau of France 6-3, 7-5 and Virginia Wade of England whipped Pat Coleman of Australia 6-2, 6-2.

Islanders Win Prizes

VANCOUVER (Special) — Vancouver Island players captured second, third and fifth prizes in the first B.C. Student Open chess championship played here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The tourney was won by Bruce Harper of UBC, followed by Nanaimo high school student Bruce McLaren, UVic student Danny Seoones, Gerry Vigier of UBC and Duncan Haines of UVic. Trailing them were Harold Brown, another UVic player, and Victoria high school student Tracy Cooper.

Open Friday 9:30 a.m. 'til 6 p.m.

No. 17–114th YEAR — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1971 — 10 CENTS DAILY 20 CENTS SUNDAY

Saturday Brings Big Changes for Most

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — New Year's Day 1972 is not just a holiday, as the nation's wage-earners, taxpayers and patronizers of the mails will soon discover.

It is the official launching date for tax reform, a new unemployment insurance scheme and increased mail rates.

Effective Saturday:

● The massive tax reform bill, passed by Parliament last week, goes into effect. The new tax rates and rules will affect every individual taxpayer and every Canadian business.

● The federal government's new unemployment insurance scheme goes into operation. Benefits will be increased and coverage made universal. An estimated 1,200,000 will start paying unemployment insurance premiums for the first time.

● The rate for a first-class letter mailed in Canada will be eight cents instead of the present seven cents.

Whether this New Year's financial package is received as a boon or a bane will depend upon individual philosophy as well as income.

Under the new tax bill, all married wage-earners will pay less income tax in 1972. Another 750,000 taxpayers will be eliminated from tax rolls altogether by virtue of new increased personal deductions.

Single wage-earners who earn more than $8,000 a year will, however, pay more tax in 1972 because of the new rates.

Under the tax bill, federal gift and estate taxes will be abolished and a capital gains tax will be imposed for the first time. The government has yet to declare a valuation day for capital gains purposes. This will be done retroactively to prevent investor speculation.

Following are the major items in the tax bill that will affect the individual taxpayer:

● The basic individual tax exemption will be increased to $1,500 from $1,000. For married couples this exemption will be increased to $2,850 from $2,000.

● Families will be able for the first time to deduct child-care expenses. The allowable deduction will be $500 a year for each child under age 14, to a maximum of $2,000 a year per family.

● Those aged 65 or older will have special exemption increased to $650 from the present $500.

● Wage-earners will be able to deduct up to $150 a year as employment expenses without receipts; wage-earners will also, for the first time, be able to deduct expenses incurred in moving to a new job.

There are literally hundreds

Gaunt Thant Departs

Retiring UN leader waves farewell — AP

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A gaunt, tired U Thant said goodbye to his UN associates Thursday as he ended 10 tumultuous years as secretary-general.

Some were reported near tears during the day-long round of farewells, but the 62-year-old former Burmese schoolmaster said his own feeling was one of relief.

For the United Nations, it was the end of an era. Thant had served as chief of the UN secretariat since Nov. 3, 1961, longer than either of his predecessors, Trygve Lie and Dag Hammarskhold.

Still showing the effects of his recent bout with a duodenal ulcer, Thant plans to take a complete rest for two months and then begin work on his autobiography.

"It will take me a year to write it," he said.

Thant plans to stay on at the UN-rented residence in the Riverdale section of New York for two months at least, paying the rent himself after Jan. 1.

He has received offers from several universities and foundations but has not made up his mind what he will do after finishing his autobiography.

Thant began his final day by arriving at UN headquarters at 9:45 a.m. in his official chauffeur-driven limousine. Asked whether he was happy to be leaving his post, he evaded a direct reply, saying: "I have a great feeling of relief."

Most of his schedule was reserved for a series of individual farewell meetings with senior UN officials. Other events, however, included a luncheon in honor of the departing Romanian ambassador, Gheorghe Diaconescu, and a farewell party given by Thant's staff.

Thant's successor, Kurt Waldheim of Austria, is in Florida for a brief rest before taking over Monday.

Today is technically Thant's last day in office, but it is a UN holiday.

Pullout Ultimatum Ignored

Malta Seeks Allies In Tiff with U.K.

Heath: door open

Mintoff: Soviet treaty

From AP, UPI

While Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath rejected Malta's "pay-up-or-get-out" ultimatum Thursday, the island's Prime Minister Dom Mintoff flew to Tripoli where he opened talks with Libyan leaders in an effort to find support.

Mintoff has demanded an immediate $11 million from Britain for base facilites on the island or the withdrawal of all British forces and their dependents from within Malta's six mile limit by Saturday.

Following Heath's personal rejection of the ultimatum, the 3,500-man British garrison was preparing to leave.

Tripoli radio said that Mintoff had met for three hours with Libyan leader Col. Muammar Kadafi but did not give details.

In London, Heath's government said it is ready to resume talks if Mintoff backs down. Defence secretary Lord Carrington, in a radio interview, said that British withdrawal would take about three months. He hoped that Mintoff would "not suggest or propose any harrassment" of withdrawing British forces but if there was any trouble "we would look after ourselves."

Carrington added that "although negotiations have been very difficult, I am ready to fly out for more talks if Mr. Mintoff changes his mind."

There is still concern in London that Mintoff may one day turn some Malta base facilities over to the Soviet Union which could use them to rival the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The ultimatum stems from Malta's financial problems — on Christmas Day, Mintoff told his people that its foreign debts have reached a total of $104 million which he described as "frightening" for an island population of only 322,000 people.

Earlier this week Mintoff signed a trade and friendship treaty with Russia, but without any known promises of help.

British officials estimate that withdrawal of British forces would mean a loss to Malta of about $33.8 million, spent annually be personnel and their families.

They also thought that it would add about 7,500 to Malta's present 6,000 jobless out of a total work force of 100,000.

The "rent" demanded by Mintoff is in addition to a one-time cash payment of $12.35 million already paid by Britain for six months starting Sept. 30.

Heaviest U.S. Raids End But Damage Tally Secret

AP, UPI

SAIGON — The United States ended its deepest, longest and heaviest U.S. air campaign against North Vietnam in more than three years Thursday after U.S. jets blasted targets for a fifth day Thursday.

The U.S. command said three planes were lost and five crew members missing. But it held up any announcement of damage to North Vietnamese air fields, radar and anti-aircraft facilities and supply depots by laser-guided bomb and other advanced weaponry.

The Viet Cong radio claimed eight U.S. planes were shot down Thursday with two airmen captured and numerous others killed. It said this brought to 19 the total number of planes downed. The U.S. command said one plane was shot down Sunday and two Thursday.

A previous North Vietnamese report said seven planes were shot down, making 14 in all. The discrepancy was not explained.

The Hanoi delegation to the Paris peace talks Thursday reiterated its government's claim that "a large number of women and children" were killed in the five days of U.S. air raids on North Vietnam.

Delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said President Nixon, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird and Secretary of State William Rogers "through multiple statements made over the past days have clearly indicated that the United States will continue its air attacks against the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam."

River Pipers Reach Accord

QUEBEC (CP) — Agreement has been reached in a dispute involving 91 St. Lawrence River pilots and they are returning to work immediately, Gaston Rousseau, a spokesman for their union, said Thursday night.

He told a news conference agreement was reached after day-long talks in Ottawa with representatives of the Lower St. Lawrence Pilots Corp., shipowners and the federal transport department.

The pilots stopped work Dec. 23 and held a study session that lasted a week. They were objecting to what they called a dangerous deep draught on some tankers and the refusal of shipowners to pay both pilots on a ship full rates.

The settlement averted what could have snowballed into a disruption of shipping across Canada by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Red Cross Can't Help Biharis

Food, Drugs Dwindle

NARAYANGANJ, Bangladesh (AP) — Food and medical supplies dwindled to desperate levels Thursday for 30,000 beleaguered Biharis inside the world's largest jute mill. The International Red Cross said it is unable to offer immediate aid.

Laurent Marti, the Red Cross mission director, told a news conference in nearby Dacca that he could not send in help without the consent of the Bangladesh government, and his statement indicated the approval had not come.

"I would not dare give you an estimate of when help will arrive," Red Cross spokesman Peter Kuhn told reporters. "But we are convinced the government is aware of their situation and will act very soon."

The controversy about the plight of the Bihari minority — 2 million people in the predominantly Bengali nation of 75 million — brought an angry response Thursday night from the Bangladesh government.

A statement issued by Education Minister Yusuf Ali said allegations that minorities are being harassed and deprived of food and other essential supplies "are false, baseless and malicious."

Ali said the Biharis at the Adamjee jute mill in Narayan-

Bhutto Willing To Talk With Indians

AP, Reuter

Pakistan's new president said Thursday he is willing to sit down and talk with leaders of India, which thrashed his country's armed forces in a war over Bangladesh.

But Zulfikar Ali Bhutto said he would talk with the Indians only if they demonstrated a change in attitude toward Pakistan.

Bhutto maintains that India never accepted Pakistan as a country even as far back as 1947 when the British left the subcontinent. The British created East and West Pakistan because the two areas, separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory, were chiefly Moslem. India is chiefly Hindu.

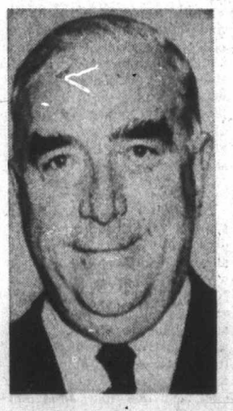
"Pakistan wants to live in friendship with all its neighbors and more especially with India," Bhutto told a meeting in Lahore, Pakistan, "and I would like to have a dialogue with India even tomorrow if it changed its policy and reconciled itself to the creation of Pakistan as an independent state."

A Radio Pakistan broadcast summarizing Bhutto's speech made no mention of East Pakistan, now called Bangladesh, as previous broadcasts have done since Bhutto took over the presidency last week.

But Bhutto was quoted as saying: "Pakistan does not want any part of India, nor will it allow India to occupy any part of Pakistan's territory."

Earlier in the day Bhutto was reported by government sources as proposing a loose federation of Bangladesh and West Pakistan along the lines of the one Egypt, Syria and Libya have formed. The informants said Bhutto made the proposal to Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader held in West Pakistan since March.

Diplomatic sources in Rawalpindi expressed doubt that the sheik would agree.



Menzies Paralysed

Sir Robert Menzies, 77, former Australian prime minister, has been admitted to hospital in Melbourne after suffering stroke which has left him paralysed. His wife, Dame Pattie, told reporters that she expected him to stay in hospital "for months" yet.

Rare Unanimity Brings Ottawa Nearer Holidays

OTTAWA (CP) — A last-minute amendment to the farm marketing bill that would give Parliament the final word on the establishment of national agricultural quotas was approved by the Commons late Thursday.

The Senate was expected to pass the bill today, which would mean the two chambers could adjourn for winter holidays after joining to witness royal assent. They will be off until Feb. 16.

The Commons, after some hesitation, gave Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson unanimous consent to introduce the amendment, which has been demanded by some of the provinces.

Third and final reading began shortly before midnight Thursday night after the opposition forced 11 votes on proposed amendments — all defeated.

About 175 members were in the 264-seat Commons despite a day-long snowstorm.

Prime Minister Trudeau led about 115 Liberals in overwhelming an opposition that combined on most of the votes.

Mud Gulps 864 Bombs

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (Reuter) — A train wreck dumped more than 200 tons of bombs into a sea of mud Thursday. Army officers said it might be late Saturday before the 864 bombs, weighing 500 pounds each, are recovered.

U.K. Vetoes UN Vote On Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Britain vetoed a resolution in the Security Council Thursday night rejecting its proposals for a settlement with the Smith government in Rhodesia.

It was only the sixth time that Britain had used its right of veto in the 26-year history of the United Nations.

Voting on the resolution was nine in favor, one against Britain, with five abstentions.

Skiers Injured

HYAK, Wash. (AP) — Several persons were injured, at least one seriously, when the chairs on the main ski lift at the Hyak ski area slid backwards out of control Thursday afternoon.

New Awards System Planned in '72

Heroes Must Wait

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday the government hopes to announce early in 1972 a new system of military and civilian awards.

He was replying in the Commons to David Groos (L-Victoria), who said bravery awards earned by crew members of the destroyer Kootenay in an explosion and fire are more than two years overdue.

Trudeau said the entire question of awards for bravery and other reasons has been under consideration for some time.

Belmont Building To Be Restored

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

A Victoria developer says he will restore and rehabilitate the old Belmont Building — if the federal government lets him.

The Belmont Building at the corner of Government and Humboldt is owned by the federal government which has invited prospective developers to submit plans for the building's renovation and future use under a 50-year lease.

Sam Bawlf of Fort Victoria Ltd. is one of the bidders. He told the Colonist Wednesday his company would invest an estimated $1 million in the building's rehabilitation if Ottawa chose his firm over other bidders.

Bawlf's plans call for restoration of the building's facade, renovation of the 70,000 square-feet of office space, construction of a restaurant on the top floor, and creation of a "traditional and historic atmosphere" on the ground floor which would be occupied by retail stores.

"The facade, we think, should remain; there should be no drastic alterations; it's a beautiful facade that needs a lot of sprucing up," Bawlf said.

Imported Tiles

The entire facade, he said, was "done in terra cotta tiles," imported from Europe when the Belmont Building was constructed at the turn of the century.

Bawlf said his firm was the only one from Victoria interested in leasing and renovating the building. Other bids, he said, have been submitted from all over Canada.

Bawlf is no newcomer to the field of renovating old and historic buildings. His credentials include the recently-completed Counting House at the corner of Broad and Broughton, and the restored Law Chambers at Bastion Square.

At 27, having done graduate research in the economics of land use and locations; having served as consultant to government and private enterprise, Bawlf now heads Fort Victoria Ltd., an investment syndicate specializing in the restoration of old buildings.

Bawlf says restorations and renovation of old buildings is economically feasible, aesthetically desirable and can be financially profitable to both taxpayers and investors.

"The location of the Belmont Building is very strategic in terms of Victoria's environment. It's right at the Inner Harbor, and its general appearance blends beautifully with the Empress Hotel," he said.

Well Served

"We think that Victoria would be very well served by the restoration of that building. It will also help get the message across that offices in restored buildings can be just as good, in fact, a lot better than in new buildings, and the rent is less," Bawlf said.

Offices in a restored Belmont Building, he said, would be "contemporary, but a lot more interesting than in some of the new and dull office buildings."

The eight-storey building, he said, was very sound and offered a lot of potential for development.

Most of the building's office space has been vacated by the federal government. The main floor is now occupied by the Sydney Reynolds Ltd. china store and a temporary office of Canada Manpower.

"All that's needed to convert the building into a bustling place of activity, is an injection of life," Bawlf said.

A decision by the federal government, he said, was expected early in January.

"This would be the biggest project for our firm so far, at least as far as our direct involvement as developers is concerned and we have high hopes of getting the lease from Ottawa," Bawlf said.

Injured Man Released

Frank B. Albany, 61, of 5 Cooper's Road, View Royal, injured in a two-car crash near Ladysmith on Nov. 21, was recently released from Royal Jubilee Hospital. Albany received multiple injuries in the mishap. He had been reported in fairly good condition since the crash.

Year for Special Projects, Rallies... ...Flyers and a Gracious Queen

Out Goes 'Centennial of Century'

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

What will you be thinking tonight when the fireworks start to explode and the time draws near?

Of a swashbuckling flyer who slugged his co-pilot and traded him in on an attractive blonde?

Of a gracious queen who smiled in the sun, in the rain and into the teeth of a 50-mile-an-hour wind?

Of those special projects — like new washroom facilities for the old community hall? Or the new library? New park?

Will you be trying to remember (or hopefully forget) Bobby Gimby's Go British Columbia, a song that cost the province close to $11,000?

Noise, Color

Or maybe you will be thinking of rally cars, planes, big canoes, gaily lit warships, new books, snowmobiles, hikers, assorted politicians, standard speeches, choirs, school kids, totem poles, flags, bunting, coins medals Brownies, Boy Scouts, soldiers, big bands, little bands, dogs wearing hats and more Brownies.

They were all there as part of B.C.'s Centennial 71, a year that will die New Year's Eve as it began — with a combination of noise, color and ceremony.

B.C. Centennial Committee chairman Lawrie Wallace and Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson are to preside over ceremonies that begin at 11:30 p.m. at Heritage Court. This will include the lowering into place of a time capsule, the playing of the carillon bells, a performance by a band and a choir, and a massive fireworks display in Inner Harbor.

When it all began the previous New Year's Eve the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon was ablaze with lights in the Inner Harbor as thousands lined the causeway and the legislative lawns. There were choirs and bands made up of more than 300 young people, bells, whistles and the usual fireworks.

Bomb Salute

There was also a 100-mortar bomb salute, fired with non-military charges just to give the year the booming start that was wanted.

Sandwiched between these two outdoor New Year's parties has been another special year that should serve as proof of B.C.'s super tolerance for centennials.

If the province is just a little slaphappy from it all, it's only because there have been no less than four centennials over a 13-year period — five where the city of Victoria is concerned.

The record reads like this: 1958, 100 years after founding of crown colony of B.C.; 1962, 100th birthday of Victoria as a city; 1966, a century after the marriage of the crown colony of Vancouver Island to the B.C. mainland; 1967, Canada's big centennial year; 1971, B.C.'s 100th birthday as a member of confederation.

Big Thought

In spite of all of this, some obscure slogan-maker approached the latest big year with this thought: In the century of centennials, this will be the centennial of the century.

And that may be mighty big by any standard, but not big enough to keep Premier Bennett at home for the official kickoff.

As two air force jets passed over the legislative buildings in special salute last New Year's morning, the tourist-conscious premier was on the reviewing stand in Pasadena, Calf., watching B.C.'s centennial float go by in the 82nd Tournament of Roses parade.

This was supposedly a good move for tourism, especially in centennial year. And never mind just which centennial year.

Windfall Time

What the premier had in mind was 30 seconds of exposure before more than 100 million TV fans.

Back home, the folks were showing a great deal of enthusiasm. And not necessarily for the special events and all the pageantry. It was a time to latch on to the windfalls — or semi-windfalls — that go with such years.

With federal and provincial money helping out, little communities and big cities could tackle some of those things that couldn't otherwise be done — or, at least, wouldn't be done.

No less than 390 regional centennial committees planned projects that ranged from heating and washroom facilities for community halls, to skating rinks, recreation centres, libraries and parks.

The spending could be done at the rate of $2.60 per capita, with the community concerned putting up only 60 cents of this. Each of the senior governments tossed in $1 per person.

Federal Gift

The federal government's gift to B.C. was $10 million, of which $2 million was earmarked for the projects. Another $4.5 million was for ecological preservation purposes, $1 million for celebration programming and $2.5 million will go toward the building of an Indian heritage museum at the University of B.C.

The size of the federal gift didn't mean everyone was going to be happy. Within B.C., there were all kinds of suggestions about how the money should be spent. Cities like Victoria and Vancouver wanted sizeable slices of the action.

Outside B.C., there were those who didn't think any federal money should be pouring into the province. The Calgary Herald said in an editorial that B.C. should be providing all the money necessary.

Books Born

Meanwhile, books were being born in honor of the occasion. Among them was the 126-page Century of Adventure with selections from The Daily Colonist's Islander magazine.

A year such as this, of course, brings out the rugged, adventuresome qualities of people, both individually and on a collective basis.

Individually, there were people like Bill Hembroff of Courtenay who walked 282 miles from Dallas Road in Victoria to Cape Scott at the northern tip of Vancouver Island to raise money for a new museum in the Courtenay district.

Top Drawcards

Collectively, there were those who entered the 300-mile snowmobile race over early snowshoe trails, the 632-mile Voyageur canoe pageant, the London-to-Victoria air race and the 4,800-mile centennial car rally.

The air race and visit by Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and their 20-year-old daughter, Princess Anne, were the two events that drew the most attention.

Afterward, there were complaints that the air race wasn't well run and wasn't really that exciting. But it did have its colorful people and moments.

If you remember anyone from that event it's likely to be one of the attractive women pilots, or one of two men — Joe Blumschein and Roger Hannagan.

Blumschein won the race. Hannagan won a fight.

But since fighting wasn't on the card, Hannagan didn't collect ay money.

Blumschein, a natty, 42-year-old plastics executive from West Germany collected $60,000 in prize money for making his swearingen Merlin III turbo-prop perform better than any of the other planes in the reace.

Executive Jet

Dressed much better than the run-of-the-mill pilot when he arrived at Victoria, he said of his plane: "This is an executive aircraft and that's the way we flew it."

Of the $5,000 in prize money he returned for the favorite charity of Prime Minister Trudeau and Bennett, he said: "No matter how prosperous a nation is, there are always people who need help."

One of the people who appeared at one time or another to be in need of help was the 22-year-old Hannagan, a Canby, Ore., flyer who was disqualified after he fought with his co-pilot and left him lying on the tarmac at Prestwick, Scotland.

Pretty Navigator

The co-pilot, Dr. Lawrence Dennis, 56, of Portland, Oregon had wanted to turn back because of a faulty door. Hannagan disagreed and in the ensuing battle the doctor fell onto the tarmac. Hannagan took off without him and, although disqualified, continued on his way.

At Quebec City he met pretty Francine Johnson, 22, declared her his navigator, and she finished the trip with him.

When he arrived at Victoria there appeared to be one Johnson too many for comfort. Awaiting his arrival was his Oregon girl friend, Toots Johnson, 20. But Toots created no fuss.

Of the 57 planes that began the air race July 1, two crash-landed en route at Greenland and Goose Bay, Nfld., but no one was hurt. It was started by Trudeau and Bennett through a special phone hook-up outside the B.C. legislative buildings.

Despite a mechanical breakdown near the end, two London, Ont., men — Hayden Gozzard and David Grundy — won the car rally in their Renault 8 Gordini. The car also survived a collision with a cow in Interior B.C.

Some 5,000 spectators lined up four deep on the causeway to await the finish of the Voyageur canoe pageant that began at Fort St. James with crews representing all Canadian provinces, as well as the Yukon and Northwest Territories. Manitoba was the overall winner.

Since July 20 was the actual 100th birthday, the day had to have a little something extra. And it had — a 12½-ton cake, two storeys tall. It was cut during the official Vancouver celebration with pieces sent throughout the world with messages from Bennett, Lawrie Wallace and Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan.

Highlight of a day of entertainment in Victoria was a five-nation naval display with ships from Canada, the U.S., Japan, Australia and Colombia.

Winners, Losers

The year had its winners and losers.

Among the winners were the 14 babies born in the first 71 minutes of July 20, each of them getting 100 centennial dollar coins. First born — at 12:08 a.m. in Royal Jubilee Hospital — was a son to Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Cunningham, 26 Helmcken.

Among the losers — according to some of those with an ear for music — was the Go British Columbia centennial song written by Bobby Gimby, the same man who wrote Ca-na-da for the national centennial in 1967.

The province paid Gimby Productions Ltd. $10,887.97 for the song. This was disclosed by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black in answer to written questions.

Trudeau, 14 of his cabinet ministers and their wives visited Victoria July 1 and there was a brief cabinet meeting.

The province also played host to the annual meeting of provincial premiers and the special constitutional conference during the summer.

There were medals for all sorts of things but there were some who thought the biggest winner of all (although she got no medal for it) was Queen Elizabeth.

Shaking off the effects of a bad cold, she came to B.C. May 3 for a 10-day giant game of hop-scotch across the province with Prince Philip and Princess Anne.

It was to be as informal as possible at the queen's request and, as a result, the royal family shook hands with more people than had been the case on previous Canadian tours.

The queen arrived in warm sunshine to be greeted by as many as 100,000 people along the Vancouver parade route and possibly as many as 50,000 the same evening in Victoria.

There were 5,000 to 8,000 people in and around Centennial Square and, at one point, tour officials feared the queen was in danger of being accidentally mobbed as she moved toward her car.

Wieners Off

Because of the crowd, Victoria Low Income Group was unable to serve the queen with a plate of wieners and beans it had prepared for what it called the Poor People's Banquet.

Elsewhere in the province, the royal visitors were greeted by enormous crowds in weather that was mostly good. There was a touch or two of rain and at Fort St. John the queen walked into 50-mile-an-hour winds to shake hands with the usual veterans, Brownies (there were always Brownies), housewives, children and tourists.

At Williams Lake she watched a rodeo where the unscheduled highlight turned out to be the scattering of newsmen by some bulls.

A stomach upset caused Princess Anne to miss part of the tour.

Possibly some of the greatest impressions made on royalty and others this year were made by the province's Indians through artistic talents, dancing and in other ways.

One of the major features of the year was the carving of 16-foot totem poles by Indians as gifts to Ottawa, each of the provinces and the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

Brothers Reverses His Stand

Cumberland Wins School Vote Fight

Education Minister Donald Brothers will allow the Courtenay school district to hold a referendum for construction of a new elementary school in Cumberland.

Brothers' decision to allow the referendum was a reversal of a number of decisions made by the education department over the past three years in which it refused to allow a new school at Cumberland.

In an interview with the Colonist Thursday night, the minister confirmed that the government would allow the referendum to go ahead early in 1972. Earlier in the day, Comox MLA, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, armounced the decision to his constituents.

Brothers said the decision to allow the referendum was the result of a careful review of the problem with the Cumberland school on the request of the Courtenay district.

The department had found, he said, that the old school on Dunsmuir "was in such bad shape that it really couldn't be repaired." Previously officials had believed it was possible to keep the school operational.

The referendum, the minister said, would involve funds for only the one school.

The decision culminated several years of effort by the district school board, the Cumberland village council, the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, the local parents to have the old school replaced.

It also ended a threat by some Cumberland parents to keep their children out of school in protest against the poor conditions if plans were not made for replacement.

The education department condemned the school three years ago and replacement costs were scheduled in a referendum. Two weeks before the vote, a building freeze was instituted by the Social Credit government and the referendum was not allowed to be put to the voters.

Since then repeated efforts to get money for a new school have failed.

When he heard the news Thursday, Moncrief said he was delighted and he thanked Campbell for his efforts on behalf of Cumberland.

Trustee Ruth McKellar, who represents Cumberland on the school board, said she was pleased with the decision.

"My faith in the minister has been justified."

The school board will meet Wednesday to work out details of the referendum and the school project.

The board already has land for a new school, given to it by the village. The site is adjacent to the village park which is at the southern entrance to the village on Dunsmuir.

Record Snowfall Only Inch Away

PORT ALBERNI — December is doing its best to catch up with records for snowfall set in 1964.

Dominion weather office employees at the airport said records showed 54.1 inches of snow fell in December 1964. A few years later in 1968, a total of 52.1 inches fell in December.

For those with short memories, the winter of 1968-69 went on to set new snow records for the Alberni area with more than 200 inches registered at the McCoy Lake weather office that year.

Up until noon Thursday almost 53 inches had fallen officially in the city with many residents prepared to swear they had shovelled at least twice that much from their drives and sidewalks. Usually this was done just in time for the city's efficient snowplow service to come along and cast up another drift across their driveway.

Thursday weather office officials said rain was forecast and it was raining all along the west coast, at Nanaimo, Parksville and Campbell River.

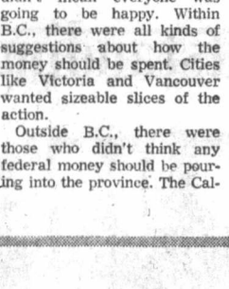
And in Port Alberni it was mainly snow, snow, snow, with only 1.1 inches needed by midnight Friday to set a new December record.

Parksville Prepares Celebration

PARKSVILLE — The New Year will be ushered in with a number of gala parties and dances in Parksville.

One of the largest events will be a dance at the Community Hall jointly sponsored by Parksville Lions and Kinsmen Clubs commencing at 10 p.m. on New Year's Eve. There will be party favors, spot dances and other features and Music will be provided by the Shawnigans.

The Island Hall Hotel will open its doors for a festive celebration featuring a smorgasbord and dance and the La Bonte orchestra will be playing there.



Winch
. . . personal reasons

JUDGE WINCH CALLS IT QUITS

NANAIMO (CP) — Judge Eric Winch of Parksville, who has been Nanaimo district Provincial Court judge for the last six years, announced Thursday he will resign at the first of the year "for personal reasons."

Winch took the position of supervising judge in 1966 and has been covering the wide-ranging Nanaimo county.

He said that although he's officially finished Jan. 1, several cases are still pending which demand his attention.

Teachers Win 7.4% Hike

LAKE COWICHAN — Teachers in Lake Cowichan have been awarded 7.4 per cent salary increases in an arbitration decision.

The decision was announced Thursday by Adam Andraschuk, secretary-treasurer of the Lake Cowichan school board. The arbitration board had heard presentations from the teachers and the school board Dec. 15.

During negotiations, teachers had sought an increase of 9.2 per cent, while the board had offered 6.7 per cent.

In a second award the arbitration board ruled that the administrative allowances for teachers be 7.4 per cent.

Labor Council Safety Pleas Bring Little Joy

COURTENAY — The Campbell River-Courtenay District Labor Council tackled the Comox-Strathcona Regional District on two points of safety this week but received little joy for its efforts.

Chairman of district and municipal affairs for the labor council Roi Smith said in a letter that two safety points were causing his membership concern.

He told the regional board loosely stacked piles of salvage logs on the beaches were a hazard to children playing in the area.

The regional board recommended that the complaint should be taken up with the provincial forestry department.

The labor council also complained that towboats scows, seaplanes and commercial fishing boats presented a dangerous situation, particularly in the summer when many boats are sport fishing at the river mouth.

"We feel there should be some regulation to protect defenceless fishermen and their small boats," Smith said in his letter.

Director Norman Lysne said: "Send the sport fishermen home and there would be no problem".

The regional board told the labor council to also take the complaint up with the fisheries department.

Comox Fair Aftermath

Exhibition Body Fails To Muster Meeting Quorum

COURTENAY — The future of the Comox Valley Exhibition Association remains bleak after a quorum failed to make an appearance for the body's annual meeting this week.

The meeting, called for last Wednesday at the Farmers' Institute building in Sandwick, near Courtenay, appeared doomed from the start.

President T. G. Ryan arrived and walked through deep snow to the building, only to find there was no electricity. Later six members of the news media arrived and six of the directors. After much foot stamping in the cold snow, it was decided to adjourn the meeting until Jan. 12.

The evening was typical of the bad luck which has dogged the exhibition association since the failure of its summer fair in late August. The fair was an attempt to revitalize the association and the fairs, which at one time drew crowds from all parts of Vancouver Island.

A list of fall fair creditors released this week, shows an outstanding debt of $9,107.77 exclusive of the prize list payable. The sum of $2,943.38, included in the list, is payable to radio stations, other news media and a printing shop. The list shows $708.30 payable to the Interior Rodeo Association, Williams Lake and $1,039.74 owing Creative Crests in Nanaimo.

Neither the association secretary or treasurer turned up Wednesday.

Ryan said he was disappointed but called it a typical situation. "People criticize", he said, "but do nothing to help".

Grizzly Bear Pays a Call

By BEA HAMILTON
Colonist Correspondent

FULFORD HARBOR — Wednesday turned out to be an unusual day after starting out with warm sunshine as a lovely bonus for a couple of hours.

Then a phone call came that visitors were coming and were bringing a grizzly bear that some one had won in a rafle and they would arrive in about 5 minutes.

Wanted a picture of the bear and winner, they did and before the time was up, they were at the gate and we heaved a sign of relief — the grizzly was in a cardboard carton so it had to be dead!

It was, and had been for about a year. In fact it was now a beautiful rug and the winner was young Kerry Akerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Akerman of Salt Spring.

This silver-tip grizzly was a young bear once weighing about 200 lbs. and it was shot in the far North by Leonard George, a hunter and taxidermist, who made a fine job of the skin and head.

George comes from Telkwa Lake, B.C., and is a member of the B.C. Association of Non-status Indians.

The draw for this rug was sponsored by the B.C. Association for non-status Indians, Victoria branch, Local 121. The president, Campbell McDonald and Mrs. McDonald, came to Salt Spring Island escorted by Ron Pappenburger, who is a grand son of the pioneer Papenburgers of Beaver Point, to present the unusual and exciting prize to Kerry Akerman.

"This was the first effort of our association to raise funds to start an arts and crafts centre in Victoria, or some suitable place," said Pappenburger. "Such a centre would be a great inspiration and help to all indians and part-time people."

McDonald expressed sincere thanks to all who had participated in the raffle as he congratulated Akerman.

The Azalea

As you probably know, it has become my custom at this season of the year to do a series of articles on the care of Christmas gift potted plants, for I hate to see or hear of these lovely and normally long-lived plants lost through ignorance or incorrect care. Today we take up the culture of the most beautiful and certainly the most expensive of the Christmas-blooming houseplants, the azalea.

The ancestors of our houseplant azalea were found originally growing wild on the windswept slopes of Mount Kirishimi in Japan. However, our modern plants have been so hybridized, crossbred and improved, little resemblance remains to the original Japanese wilding. Many of the azalea houseplants sold during the Christmas season were propagater in Belgium or Holland and were shipped to this country to be grown on to maturity by local greenhouse operators.

In nature, this plant is a dwarf evergreen shrub, and this fact gives us two important clues as to its culture. Because it is a shrub, you do NOT cut it down after blooming as you would, say, with a chrysanthemum. Because it is evergreen, you do NOT dry it off and rest it, as with a cyclamen or poinsettia. You just keep it going all year round.

The plant perfers full sunshine in winter, light or partial shade in summer. At this season of the year it is happiest in a room just a little on the cool side, ideally around 60 degrees, with ample ventilation but without sudden drafts or chills.

I think the most difficult part of azalea culture is the watering. Not that it needs any more or any less water than other plants, but because it is unusually fussy as to what kind of water is given it. The plant has a pronounced dislike for the chlorine, fluorine, lime, sodium and other alkaline salts found in so many of our water supply systems, so if you get "scale" in your teakettle, your domestic water is a slow poison for this particular plant. About the only really safe way to water it is with rainwater, melted snow, or the defrostings from a refrigerator or freezer.

Frequency of watering needs some considertion too. Your plant, as it comes from the florist, will be potted in a soil mixture containing a very high proportion of peat moss; such a mixture, once it has been allowed to dry out, is difficult to moisten again thoroughly. If, by accident or neglect, your plant should become bone dry, your best bet is to submerge the pot and soil in a bucket of water until no more bubbles rise to the surface. In general, try to maintain the soil evenly but only just barely moist, never soggy wet nor dust dry, and don't allow drainage water to remain in the saucer.

Some feeding is beneficial, and a good diet for this plant is to give a very small feed once a week, alternating between straight ammonium sulphate one week to a proprietory houseplant fertilizer the next. This could be Rapid-Gro, Hyponex, RJ-15, Alginure, Blue Whale, Alaska Fish or Instant Vigoro. The idea of using ammonium sulphate in the alternate weeks is to maintain the potting soil in a slightly acid condition, which is one of the special needs of the azalea.

Some pruning of the tiny flowering shrub will be necessary to maintain a pleasing size and shape, and the rule for pruning this plant is — little and often. Keep snipping away at the soft green branch tips, with scissors or even with a sharp thumbnail, whenever they grow too long and threaten to spoil the symmetry of the plant. There is no closed season on this form of pruning.

In the spring, when the weather warms up, your plant should go outdoors for the summer. Sink the pot up to its rim in a spot where it can enjoy a little morning sunshine but where it will be shaded through the hottest part of the day.

Easy Come, Easy Go

STAN DELAPLANE

Frosty nights as we come to the end of the year. Hot buttered rum and warm resolutions. Fire on the hearth and a glaze on the eyes.

What to resolve! That is the question. Most resolutions slip out of my grip like a wet plate. Crash! They were too difficult. The thing is to make easier resolutions.

Resolved: To roll with the punches.

Totting up the past year: Fame and fortune are as elusive as ever. Why is that?

★ ★ ★

Here is Yoko Ono, married to a Beatle.

Yoko bought a little movie camera and made a movie. A movie of 365 bare bottoms. (Not much story line, but what kind of story COULD you write?)

She then appeared — with husband — both bare as radishes on a record cover.

By this, Yoko became famous and fortunate.

Resolved: To buy a camera and go to work.

We approach New Year's Eve with caution. A man must be stout of heart to put down the bubbly, put on a paper hat and blow that horn. Little Boy Blue with a blue morning coming up.

★ ★ ★

How do we know it's time to put on that crazy hat?

The Egyptians, the Persians, the Phoenicians got sauced up on September 20. The Romans popped the corks on December 20, a custom they picked up from the Greeks.

In England, they made the New Year's on March 25 — up to year 1750.

★ ★ ★

The ancient Britons peeped through the gunsights at Stonehenge to find when it was New Year's day. They drank mead and painted themselves blue.

Now we are civilized. We put on blue eye shadow and drink champagne.

Resolved: To take two aspirin on New Year's Eve and go to bed sharply at 12:01. The social ramble is rough on the rambler.

It was rough on your ancestors reaching that famous Eve. Pity the poor bloke at Stonehenge. No ice to chill his mead. No vermouth — he could not say: "Not so much vermouth in the next one. I like my mead DRY."

No olive to put in it. No bartender to tip. No funny hat to wear. No TV to see New Year's come in across the country.

★ ★ ★

We live in lively times.

Alas for the middle-aged of the Middle Ages. No electricity to light his New Year's Eve. No cover charge. No Diners Club card to charge it on.

Pity the poor Persian. The ignorant Egyptian. The fuzzy Phoenician. All of them with hangovers on the WRONG day. The right day is bad enough.

Resolved: Let somebody else do it. We may be on the wrong day ourselves.

A camera and 365 bare bottoms. That is all I need for instant fame and fortune. Instead of having all that expansive rear going AWAY from you (as Yoko did it) I will run the film backward.

The bare behinds will be coming AT you.

★ ★ ★

Getting bigger and bigger and BIGGER. It staggers the imagination.

Resolved: To keep my imagination from staggering. It's bad for your reputation.

Those were the good old days. Ignorant but happy. How did the Blue Boy at Stongehenge handle it when his Blue Wife said: "ANOTHER mead?" Do you think you should?"

"Don't you know it's New Year's?"

MARILYN BECK

Prior to Roman Polanski's visit to Hollywood to plug his Playboy presentation of Macbeth, aides phoned to pass on the news: Polanski had condescended to meet with a small and fortunate handful of writers. However, came the word, "He's terribly evasive about appointments, changes his mind from moment to moment about meetings. So we're suggesting that columnists phone him directly at his hotel room. And hopefully, if he's in the mood to talk, he might agree to a last-minute chat." It didn't seem worth the effort.

Macbeth might be the picture for you if you dig blood and gore, and if you are up enough on the writings of the Bard so that garbled dialogue doesn't make some of the subtleties of the story line obtuse. It's not surprising that Hugh Hefner would select a Shakespearean classic for his debut as a motion picture producer. Hugh's been mighty eager of late to change his image, to get the world to accept him for greater accomplishments than as merely the creator of the Playboy dynasty. People might take the "new" Hugh a little more seriously if he could outgrow his need of that constantly-in-attendance Playboy bunny entourage, who seem to be his social security blanket. They were there in all their full-blown glory at the Macbeth screening to which Hollywood's elite was invited, adoringly flanking their boss as Hefner-hired photographers concentrated camera action in their direction. Perhaps it's the cynic in many of us, but it's a bit hard to buy a guy who must keep proving he's so popular. And with paid companions.

Sydney Harris

'Thingness' a Disease

During a session of the National Safety Congress in Chicago recently, one of the safety research experts pointed out that roadside "guard rails" put up to prevent highway accidents are often more dangerous than the accidents they are supposed to prevent.

Another researcher, at the same session, said that expensive and elaborate beams to protect road signs actually proved more fatal than before.

Within a week after one rail was put up, five persons died in a crash against it — whereupon, the problem was solved by erecting "a $2 wooden sign" that would break away when struck by a car.

I have long insisted that the people who design highways, and the engineers who build them, are so concerned with something called "the flow of vehicular traffic" that they ignore, or minimize, the human element involved in driving a car.

★ ★ ★

One of the prime dangers of a technical and vocational education — and this is the kind of education most people get in our society — is that the vocation, which should be a means to an end, becomes an end in itself.

Instead of a technical system working for a greater social good — and understanding its proper relationship to that good — it begins to work for its own sake.

This is the kind of "reversal of values" we have seen time and time again in our highly technicized society. It becomes more important to protect the sign than the motorist — and so the sign is supported by a metal I-beam, which is a far more fatal object of collision than the sign.

"Expense" is also a paradoxical part of this inhuman equation. If a device is more costly, it will be used, whether it is more effective or not.

To the technical mind, whatever is newer and more expensive is automatically superior, and it is unthinkable that a $2 wooden sign should go "unprotected" by a $1,000 V-wedge guard rail that looks stunning and is precisely so.

I have spoken before about companies that have nearly gone broke buying or renting high-priced computer equipment not so much because the company needed it as because corporate pride and vanity compelled the purchase of the latest technology.

No matter how much it fouls up the works, or how ill-prepared the company may be to program and run the computer, it becomes a symbol of "progress" and "success."

In fact, it is usually the people who pride themselves the most on being "hard-headed" who are the most captivated and duped by such symbolism; they are so infatuated by Thingness that they totally fail to grasp the reality that things are made for people, and not the other way around.

B.C. Pushes Drug-Alcohol Contest

Student councils of high schools, colleges and universities have been invited to participate in a provincial government-sponsored contest to stimulate ideas for drug and alcohol education advertisements.

Education Minister Donald Brothers, chairman of the government's advisory council on drugs, alcohol and tobacco, announced in a written statement Thursday that cash prizes will be awarded to winning student councils.

The high school contest, he said, will include four categories: a 60-second radio spot announcement on drugs, the same on alcohol, and a newspaper advertisement on each.

Six regional contests will be held in each category, and the three best in each region will receive prizes of $500, $250 and $100 for their schools.

The first-place winners from each region will then compete for the final provincial awards of $1,000, $500 and $250 in each category.

Two categories of competition are offered to councils from post-secondary institutions: the best idea for a 60-second television spot on drugs, and the best one for alcohol. Prizes will be $2,000, $1,000 and $500.

The winning entries will be used in the advisory council's advertising campaign, with credits going to the winning schools.

Officers Named

The Village Squires, Victoria's male barbershop chorus, has elected its 1972 board of directors.

It consists of Tim Sinclair, president; Dave Jefferson, administrative vice-president; Peter Cox, program vice-president; Peter Battison, treasurer; Allan Watson, secretary; George Holden, past president; Simon Flett, Wyn Cringan, Jerry Walkley and Bill Staton.

The Village Squires sing to benefit charitable organizations and contribute hundreds of dollars each year to institutions which treat children's speech defects and retardation.

Along with their female counterparts, the Sweet Adelines, the Village Squires recently performed in Nanaimo to assist in establishing similar organizations in that city.

When We Were 100

It Was a Very Good Year

Queen talks to Victorians in Centennial Square ceremony

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

What will you be thinking tonight when the fireworks start to explode and the time draws near?

Of a swashbuckling flyer who slugged his co-pilot and traded him in on an attractive blonde?

Of a gracious queen who smiled in the sun, in the rain and into the teeth of a 50-mile-an-hour wind?

Of those spehial projects — like new washroom facilities for the old comm.unity hall? Or the new library? New park?

Will you be trying to remember (or hopefully forget) Bobby Gimby's Go British Columbia, a song that cost the province close to $11,000?

Or maybe you will be thinking of rally cars, planes, big canoes, gaily lit warships, new books, snowmobiles, hikers, assorted politicians, standard speeches, choirs, school kids, totem poles, flags, bunting, coins, medals, Brownies, Boy Scouts, soldiers, big bands, little bands, dogs wearing hats and more Brownies.

Noise, Color

They were all there as part of B.C.'s Centennial 71, a year that will die New Year's Eve as it began — with a combination of noise, color and ceremony.

B.C. Centennial Committee chairman Lawrie Wallace and Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson are to preside over ceremonies that begin at 11:30 p.m. at Heritage Court. This will include the lowering into place of a time capsule, the playing of the carillon bells, a performance by a band and a choir, and a massive fireworks display in the Inner Harbor.

When it all began the previous New Year's Eve the destroyer-escort HMCS Yukon was ablaze with lights in the Inner Harbor as thousands lined the causeway and the legislative lawns. There were choirs and bands made up of more than 300 young people, bells, whistles and the usual fireworks.

Bomb Salute

There was also a 100-mortar bomb salute, fired with non-military charges just to give the year the booming start that was wanted.

Sandwiched between these two outdoor New Year's parties has been another special year that should serve as proof of B.C.'s super tolerance for centennials.

If the province is just a little slaphappy from it all, it's only because there have been no less than four centennials over a 13-year period — five where the city of Victoria is concerned.

The record reads like this: 1958, 100 years after founding of crown colony of B.C.; 1962, 100th birthday of Victoria as a city; 1966, a century after the marriage of the crown colony of Vancouver Island to the B.C. mainland; 1967, Canada's big centennial year; 1971, B.C.'s 100th birthday as a member of confederation.

Big Thought

In spite of all of this, some obscure slogan-maker approached the latest big year with this thought: In the century of centennials, this will be the centennial of the century.

And that may be mighty big by any standard, but not big enough to keep Premier Bennett at home for the official kickoff.

As two air force jets passed over the legislative buildings in special salute last New Year's morning, the tourist-conscious premier was on the reviewing stand in Pasadena, Calf., watching B.C.'s centennial float go by in the 82nd Tournament of Roses parade.

This was supposedly a good move for tourism, especially in centennial year. And never mind just which centennial year.

Windfall Time

What the premier had in mind was 30 seconds of exposure before more than 100 million TV fans.

Back home, the folks were showing a great deal of enthusiasm. And not necessarily for the special events and all the pageantry. It was a time to latch on to the windfalls — or semi-windfalls — that go with such years.

With federal and provincial money helping out, little communities and big cities could tackle some of those things that couldn't otherwise be done — or, at least, wouldn't be done.

No less than 390 regional centennial committees planned projects that ranged from heating and washroom facilities for community halls, to skating rinks, recreation centres, libraries and parks.

The spending could be done at the rate of $2.60 per capita, with the community concerned putting up only 60 cents of this. Each of the senior governments tossed in $1 per person.

Federal Gift

The federal government's gift to B.C. was $10 million, of which $2 million was earmarked for the projects. Another $4.5 million was for ecological preservation purposes, $1 million for celebration programming and $2.5 million will go toward the building of an Indian heritage museum at the University of B.C.

The size of the federal gift didn't mean everyone was going to be happy. Within

Safety Catch

To provide room and safety for final celebrations in Victoria of the province's entry into Confederation, a number of downtown streets will be closed to traffic tonight.

Government will be closed from Humboldt to Superior, and Belleville from Douglas to Menzies. The public may use government employees' parking lots in the vicinity of the legislative buildings.

Takeover Soon At St. Joseph's

The takeover of St. Joseph's Hospital by the Southern Vancouver Island Hospital Society is imminent, sources said Thursday.

The society was organized more than two years ago to manage the hospital when the Sisters of St. Ann would surrender interest in it.

When the society takes over the hospital under a lease from the provincial government, many members of the Roman Church order will remain with the hospital.

St. Joseph's will be leased to the Society by the provincial government. The existing hospital will be conveyed to the government by the Sisters of St. Ann while property adjoining the hospital, purchased as the site for later expansion, will be conveyed to the government by the Capital Region's hospital board.

Most of the documents are ready for signature by all of the parties involved. The signing could take place next week, and that will mean the present St. Joseph's hospital board will be succeeded by the society.

Blaze Damages Victoria Home

Victoria firefighters quickly extinguished a blaze Thursday night that resulted in heavy damage to the main floor and furniture of a home next to Westendale Construction Ltd., 1198 Yates, Victoria fire department reported. Officials said possible cause of the blaze, which had been burning for some time before they received the report, was a cigarette smouldering in the chesterfield. They said no one was home at the time of the fire.

Two Settle Down

Exhilarating Royal Audience

Having royalty for an audience can be quite an exhilarating experience for a budding composer and musician, but two Saanich youths who shared the Centennial 71 experience in Victoria May 4 are now taking things in their stride.

Rich Margison, 17, of 915 Arundel, Saanich, is now working for a wholesale firm in Victoria and his partner Greg Davidson, 18, of 6844 Woodward Drive, Central Saanich, is currently studying at Camosun College.

Margison and Davidson sang their own song — For This is British Columbia — to Queen Elizabeth, Prince Philip and Princess Anne during the second day of the royal Centennial 71 tour of B.C. They were Claremont high school students at that time.

The two musicians had 1,000 records of the song made in a Saanich studio and started selling them. Only about 30 of the records, which were made last September, remain unsold.

No. 17—114th YEAR — VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, FRIDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1971 — 10 CENTS DAILY 20 CENTS SUNDAY

Saturday Brings Big Changes for Most

By MARJORIE NICHOLS
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — New Year's Day 1972 is not just a holiday, as the nation's wage-earners, taxpayers and patronizers of the mails will soon discover.

It is the official launching date for tax reform, a new unemployment insurance scheme and increased mail rates.

Effective Saturday:

● The massive tax reform bill, passed by Parliament last week, goes into effect. The new tax rates and rules will affect every individual taxpayer and every Canadian business.

● The federal government's new unemployment insurance scheme goes into operation. Benefits will be increased and coverage made universal. An estimated 1,200,000 will start paying unemployment insurance premiums for the first time.

● The rate for a first-class letter mailed in Canada will be eight cents instead of the present seven cents.

Whether this New Year's financial package is received as a boon or a bane will depend upon individual philosophy as well as income.

Under the new tax bill, all married wage-earners will pay less income tax in 1972. Another 750,000 taxpayers will be eliminated from tax rolls altogether by virtue of new increased personal deductions.

Single wage-earners who earn more than $8,000 a year will, however, pay more tax in 1972 because of the new rates.

Under the tax bill, federal gift and estate taxes will be abolished and a capital gains tax will be imposed for the first time. The government has yet to declare a valuation day for capital gains purposes. This will be done retroactively to prevent investor speculation.

Following are the major items in the tax bill that will affect the individual taxpayer:

● The basic individual tax exemption will be increased to $1,500 from $1,000. For married couples this exemption will be increased to $2,850 from $2,000.

● Families will be able for the first time to deduct child-care expenses. The allowable deduction will be $500 a year for each child under age 14, to a maximum of $2,000 a year per family.

● Those aged 65 or older will have special exemption increased to $650 from the present $500.

● Wage-earners will be able to deduct up to $150 a year as employment expenses without receipts; wage-earners will also, for the first time, be able to deduct expenses incurred in moving to a new job.

There are literally hundreds

Gaunt Thant Departs

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — A gaunt, tired U Thant said goodbye to his UN associates Thursday as he ended 10 tumultuous years as secretary-general.

Some were reported near tears during the day-long round of farewells, but the 62-year-old former Burmese schoolmaster said his own feeling was one of relief.

For the United Nations, it was the end of an era. Thant had served as chief of the UN secretariat since Nov. 3, 1961, longer than either of his predecessors, Trygve Lie and Dag Hammarskhold.

Still showing the effects of his recent bout with a duodenal ulcer, Thant plans to take a complete rest for two months and then begin work on his autobiography.

"It will take me a year to write it," he said.

Thant plans to stay on at the UN-rented residence in the Riverdale section of New York for two months at least, paying the rent himself after Jan. 1.

He has received offers from several universities and foundations but has not made up his mind what he will do after finishing his autobiography.

Thant began his final day by arriving at UN headquarters at 9:45 a.m. in his official chauffeur-driven limousine. Asked whether he was happy to be leaving his post, he evaded a direct reply, saying: "I have a great feeling of relief."

Most of his schedule was reserved for a series of individual farewell meetings with senior UN officials. Other events, however, included a luncheon in honor of the departing Romanian ambassador, Gheorghe Diaconescu, and a farewell party given by Thant's staff.

Thant's successor, Kurt Waldheim of Austria, is in Florida for a brief rest before taking over Monday.

Today is technically Thant's last day in office, but it is a UN holiday.

Pullout Ultimatum Ignored

Malta Seeks Allies In Tiff with U.K.

Mintoff: Soviet treaty

Heath: door open

From AP, UPI

While Britain's Prime Minister Edward Heath rejected Malta's "pay-up-or-get-out" ultimatum Thursday, the island's Prime Minister Dom Mintoff flew to Tripoli where he opened talks with Libyan leaders in an effort to find support.

Mintoff has demanded an immediate $11 million from Britain for base facilites on the island or the withdrawal of all British forces and their dependents from within Malta's six mile limit by Saturday.

Following Heath's personal rejection of the ultimatum, the 3,500-man British garrison was preparing to leave.

Tripoli radio said that Mintoff had met for three hours with Libyan leader Col. Muammar Kadafi but did not give details.

In London, Heath's government said it is ready to resume talks if Mintoff backs down. Defence secretary Lord Carrington, in a radio interview, said that British withdrawal would take about three months. He hoped that Mintoff would "not suggest or propose any harrassment" of withdrawing British forces but if there was any trouble "we would look after ourselves."

Carrington added that "although negotiations have been very difficult, I am ready to fly out for more talks if Mr. Mintoff changes his mind."

There is still concern in London that Mintoff may one day turn some Malta base facilities over to the Soviet Union which could use them to rival the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean.

The ultimatum stems from Malta's financial problems — on Christmas Day, Mintoff told his people that its foreign debts have reached a total of $104 million which he described as "frightening" for an island population of only 322,000 people.

Earlier this week Mintoff signed a trade and friendship treaty with Russia, but without any known promises of help.

British officials estimate that withdrawal of British forces would mean a loss to Malta of about $33.8 million, spent annually by personnel and their families.

They also thought that it would add about 7,500 to Malta's present 6,000 jobless out of a total work force of 100,000.

The "rent" demanded by Mintoff is in addition to a one-time cash payment of $14.35 million already paid by Britain for six months starting Sept. 30.

River Pilots Reach Accord

QUEBEC (CP) — Agreement has been reached in a dispute involving 91 St. Lawrence River pilots and they are returning to work immediately, Gaston Rousseau, a spokesman for their union, said Thursday night.

He told a news conference agreement was reached after day-long talks in Ottawa with representatives of the Lower St. Lawrence Pilots Corp., shipowners and the federal transport department.

The pilots stopped work Dec. 23 and held a study session that lasted a week. They were objecting to what they called a dangerous deep draught on some tankers and the refusal of shipowners to pay both pilots on a ship full rates.

The settlement averted what could have snowballed into a disruption of shipping across Canada by the Canadian Merchant Service Guild.

Heaviest U.S. Raids End But Damage Tally Secret

AP, UPI

SAIGON — The United States ended its deepest, longest and heaviest U.S. air campaign against North Vietnam in more than three years Thursday after U.S. jets blasted targets for a fifth day Thursday.

The U.S. command said three planes were lost and five crew members missing. But it held up any announcement of damage to North Vietnamese air fields, radar and anti-aircraft facilities and supply depots by laser-guided bomb and other advanced weaponry.

The Viet Cong radio claimed eight U.S. planes were shot down Thursday with two airmen captured and numerous others killed. It said this brought to 19 the total number of planes downed. The U.S. command said one plane was shot down Sunday and two Thursday.

A previous North Vietnamese report said seven planes were shot down, making 14 in all. The discrepancy was not explained.

The Hanoi delegation to the Paris peace talks Thursday reiterated its government's claim that "a large number of women and children" were killed in the five days of U.S. air raids on North Vietnam.

Delegation spokesman Nguyen Thanh Le said President Nixon, Defence Secretary Melvin Laird and Secretary of State William Rogers "through multiple statements made over the past days have clearly indicated that the United States will continue its air attacks against the Democratic Republic of (North) Vietnam."

U.K. Vetoes UN Vote On Rhodesia

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Britain vetoed a resolution in the Security Council Thursday night rejecting its proposals for a settlement with the Smith government in Rhodesia.

It was only the sixth time that Britain had used its right of veto in the 26-year history of the United Nations.

Voting on the resolution was nine in favor, one against Britain, with five abstentions.

Red Cross Can't Help Biharis

Food, Drugs Dwindle

NARAYANGANJ, Bangladesh (AP) — Food and medical supplies dwindled to desperate levels Thursday for 30,000 beleaguered Biharis inside the world's largest jute mill. The International Red Cross said it is unable to offer immediate aid.

Laurent Marti, the Red Cross mission director, told a news conference in nearby Dacca that he could not send in help without the consent of the Bangladesh government, and his statement indicated the approval had not come.

"I would not dare give you an estimate of when help will arrive," Red Cross spokesman Peter Kuhn told reporters. "But we are convinced the government is aware of their situation and will act very soon."

The controversy about the plight of the Bihari minority — 2 million people in the predominantly Bengali nation of 75 million — brought an angry response Thursday night from the Bangladesh government.

A statement issued by Education Minister Yusuf Ali said allegations that minorities are being harassed and deprived of food and other essential supplies "are false, baseless and malicious."

Ali said the Biharis at the Adamjee jute mill in Narayan-

Bhutto Willing To Talk With Indians

AP, Reuter

Pakistan's new president said Thursday he is willing to sit down and talk with leaders of India, which thrashed his country's armed forces in a war over Bangladesh.

But Zulfikar Ali Bhutto said he would talk with the Indians only if they demonstrated a change in attitude toward Pakistan.

Bhutto maintains that India never accepted Pakistan as a country even as far back as 1947 when the British left the subcontinent. The British created East and West Pakistan because the two areas, separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory, were chiefly Moslem. India is chiefly Hindu.

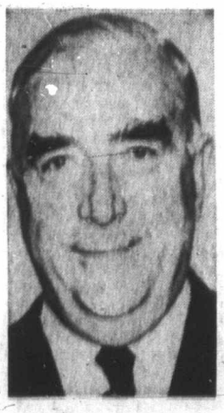
"Pakistan wants to live in friendship with all its neighbors and more especially with India," Bhutto told a meeting in Lahore, Pakistan, "and I would like to have a dialogue with India even tomorrow if it changed its policy and reconciled itself to the creation of Pakistan as an independent state."

A Radio Pakistan broadcast summarizing Bhutto's speech made no mention of East Pakistan, now called Bangladesh, as previous broadcasts have done since Bhutto took over the presidency last week.

But Bhutto was quoted as saying: "Pakistan does not want any part of India, nor will it allow India to occupy any part of Pakistan's territory."

Earlier in the day Bhutto was reported by government sources as proposing a loose federation of Bangladesh and West Pakistan along the lines of the one Egypt, Syria and Libya have formed. The informants said Bhutto made the proposal to Sheik Mujibur Rahman, the East Pakistani leader held in West Pakistan since March.

Diplomatic sources in Rawalpindi expressed doubt that the sheik would agree.



Menzies Paralysed

Sir Robert Menzies, 77, former Australian prime minister, has been admitted to hospital in Melbourne after suffering stroke which has left him paralysed. His wife, Dame Pattie, told reporters that she expected him to stay in hospital "for months" yet.

Rare Unanimity Brings Ottawa Nearer Holidays

OTTAWA (CP) — A last-minute amendment to the farm marketing bill that would give Parliament the final word on the establishment of national agricultural quotas was approved by the Commons late Thursday.

The Senate was expected to pass the bill today, which would mean the two chambers could adjourn for winter holidays after joining to witness royal assent. They will be off until Feb. 16.

The Commons, after some hesitation, gave Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson unanimous consent to introduce the amendment, which has been demanded by some of the provinces.

Third and final reading began shortly before midnight Thursday night after the opposition forced 11 votes on proposed amendments — all defeated.

About 175 members were in the 264-seat Commons despite a day-long snowstorm.

Prime Minister Trudeau led about 115 Liberals in overwhelming an opposition that combined on most of the votes.

New Awards System Planned in '72

Heroes Must Wait

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday the government hopes to announce early in 1972 a new system of military and civilian awards.

He was replying in the Commons to David Groos (L-Victoria), who said bravery awards earned by crew members of the destroyer Kootenay in an explosion and fire are more than two years overdue.

Trudeau said the entire question of awards for bravery and other reasons has been under consideration for some time.
